To the readers of the Herald: The Herald, like most other daily newspapers, is facing a severe newsprint shortage because of labor difficulties at the large Canadian paper mills.

Our supplier of newsprint, International Paper Co., is now being struck and paper supplies are dwindling.

We will do our best during this paper shortage to give you the full range of news and advertisements you have come to expect in the morning Herald. But for the duration of the Canadian paper strike we will be forced to make some adjustments to our total press run.

Naturally, our home delivered subscribers will get priority delivery of the Herald; there may be a short supply of the Herald at some newsstands while the strike continues.

Survey finding

Many unaware of U.S. probe here

by JEANNETTE De WYZE

Most Wheeling residents apparently are unaware of the current U.S. grand jury investigation of building and zoning shakedowns in the village, a Herald telephone survey revealed yesterday.

Nine out of 15 residents contacted at random said they had not heard of the investigation.

However, five out of the six residents who said they were aware of the grand jury proceedings indicated they knew there have been no charges filed against any Wheeling officials as of this date.

THE FEDERAL investigation has been under way for several months. Several present and former village officials along with a number of developers, have been subpoenaed to testify before the grand jury.

Federal investigators are seeking evidence of violations of the Hobbs Anti-Racketeering Act, as well as possible income tax and fraud violations. The Hobbs Act has been used in the past to obtain convictions of public officials in bribery cases.

Several Wheeling officials have expressed concern that village residents may not understand the subtleties of a grand jury proceeding and thus may be equating the issuing of subpoenas with allegations of guilt.

Some of the officials already subpoenaed also have said that aspersions of guilt resulting from the probe have interfered with their professional private lives.

HOWEVER, MOST of the residents contacted by the Herald who knew of the investigation appeared to have at least a rough understanding of the workings of the grand jury.

A grand jury is a special jury chosen to investigate evidence of wrongdoing. It issues indictments, or formal accusations, against persons when it decides those indictments are warranted.

Individuals subpoenaed by a grand jury must appear to give evidence relevant to the investigation. A subpoena is not an indication of guilt, however.

The grand jury investigating alleged shakedowns in Wheeling has not issued any indictments so far. It is not known at this point whether or when any indictments will be issued.

MRS. ROBERT KINSBURY, 1239 Anthony Rd., one of the residents contacted yesterday, echoed the concern of Wheeling officials about public confusion over the proceedings.

"I think many people don't know exactly what a grand jury does. Some people may confuse it with a regular jury and just assume that the people who are testifying before it are guilty," she said.

She added, however, that she knew there have been no indictments yet issued.

Mrs. James Green, 140 Mockingbird Lane, also said she knew no Wheeling officials have been formally accused of any wrongdoing.

"I realize that no indictments have been issued so far and that the grand jury hasn't made its findings public yet. And until that happens we really won't know what's going on," she said.

A FEW OF the residents contacted did say that although they knew no formal charges have yet been filed against anyone, they suspected some misconduct would be uncovered.

Mrs. John Donohue, 231 S. Lincoln Lane, said she knew Wheeling officials were only being questioned at the moment.

"But there's probably something wrong going on or they wouldn't be holding an investigation," she added.

Still, the majority of Wheeling residents apparently are not harboring any suspicions against any of the officials involved in the investigation.

"I haven't heard anything about it," was the most common response yesterday.

Only one hopeful so far for vacant park board job

The Wheeling Park District Board of Commissioners so far has received only one application for the board's vacant seat created by the recent resignation of Board Pres. Gus Nizzi.

Nizzi has left the village to assume a position in the Neenah, Wis., school system.

Frank Schnaitmann, St. George Rd., is the first person to express an interest in filling the park commissioner seat. Schnaitmann submitted his written request for the appointment about two weeks ago.

THE BOARD HAS not yet set a deadline for accepting applications, but Commissioner Lorraine Lark yesterday said she hopes the seat will be filled by the middle of September.

"A lot of decisions will have to be made about that time," Mrs. Lark commented. "We could find ourselves with a 2-2 impasse if we don't have our fifth member. It could be a real predicament for us where we'd really be stymied."

Some of the decisions Mrs. Lark referred to include pending land purchases, finalizing plans for scheduled remodeling at Heritage Park and taking bids on a proposed maintenance garage at Heritage Park.

"We have a lot of big things that we'll be starting soon that will begin with a big expenditure of money. We should have a full board," she said.

Gus Nizzi

MRS. LARK SAID the main thing the board will look for in prospective commissioners is a desire to serve the community.

"We want someone who has community interest at heart, a general feeling for the recreation needs of the community and a genuine willingness to contribute the time and effort it takes," she said.

Wheeling Park Supt. Dave Phillips agreed, saying flexibility is another desirable trait in park board commissioners.

"A good feature of the present board is that while they don't always agree with me and I don't always agree with them, nobody holds anything against anyone else," he said.

"A park commissioner needs the ability, I think, to be able to express his idea, make his reasons known for feeling that way but be able to accept whatever decision is made by everybody. We have a good healthy relationship between board members now and I'd like to see it continue with the fifth board member."

THE PARK BOARD meets the first and third Thursdays of each month at the Heritage Park building, 222 S. Wolf Rd. In addition to attending regular board meetings the commissioners also participate in committee meetings conducted on their own time.

Phillips and Mrs. Lark stressed quite a bit of time is involved in doing a commissioner's job.

"Besides the two meetings per month, the board members need other time to review information and get involved in park district activities to give them a better firsthand knowledge of the workings of the district," Phillips said. "It's a complicated process that can't be learned overnight."

Anyone interested in applying for the park board seat should submit a written application in the form of a letter to the board. Commissioners will review all applicants and vote to appoint the new member.

The board must still decide whether to name the commissioner to serve until the next park board election in 1975 or to complete Nizzi's term that expires in 1977.

Swan Lake, freight projects to planners

The Wheeling Plan Commission will review plans for two controversial developments tonight. One project is Swan Lake, a 624-unit apartment project in southern Wheeling. The other is an industrial development that includes three motor freight terminals.

Commission members continued their review of both projects last week so developers could provide more information on various planning problems.

Swan Lake developers are expected to present the commission with letters from School Dist. 21 and the Prospect Heights Park District explaining their claim to part of the land in question.

CURRENTLY 23 acres of the 39.5-acre site are designated for a school-park site. Developers cannot begin work on the apartment project until both districts relinquish their public use designation on the property.

Last week the plan commission received a letter from Dist. 21 saying their claim to the property from the northern to the southern 20 acres of the site. The district did not, however, release the land from its public use classification.

The park district has informed the commission it will release the land if developers will provide a written guarantee that the district can use five acres of land for park programs.

PLANS FOR the proposed motor freight terminals hit a snag last week when the commission asked for more information on potential traffic, noise and air pollution problems. The commissioners have asked the police department to review a traffic study presented by developers. The review is expected to be available for consideration tonight.

Developers from the First American Realty Co. were also asked to investigate ways of muffling the sound of the freight trucks. Commission members were concerned noise would cause problems for single-family homes east of the terminals.

The meeting will begin at 7:30 p.m. at the village hall, 255 W. Dundee Rd.

Swim team takes 3rd place in meet yesterday said he was happy with the park district swimmers in their first year of competition.

"I think they did real well for the first year as an organized team," he said. About 56 local youngsters are members of the team and Phillips said most of them participated in the meet.

DIVING COMPETITION included contests for boys and girls 14 and under and boys and girls 15 and over. Swimming competition was conducted for children eight and under, 9 and 10-year-olds, 11 and 12-year-olds, 13 and 14-year-olds and those older than 15 years of age.

Phillips praised the park district's swim coach, John Elliot, for organizing the team. Elliot, one of the directors of the Central Lake Family YMCA in Libertyville, last winter leased Neptune's Pool for kids interested in YMCA competition.

Phillips said the park district team is an offshoot of the group of youngsters who participated in the YMCA meets.

The park superintendent said he hopes to expand the swim team next summer to include more local children.

"Swimming is the type of sport we like to stress," he commented. "It's a lifetime sport and besides that it's a skill that people — especially kids who are around water a lot — really need to survive. We'd really like to see more kids get involved."

Phillips added that he hopes those who participated on the swim team this year and anyone interested in joining the team next year will keep in shape by swimming in YMCA competition next winter.

Six Northwest suburban residents included

by AL MESSERSCHMIDT

Six Northwest suburban residents were tabbed as possible Republican candidates for county and state office in 1974 by the GOP's "search committee."

Forty-two names, many familiar political figures, were submitted to the committee at its second meeting in Chicago Tuesday.

The list of potential candidates could grow to "about 100 names" by the committee's last meeting Aug. 28. The names will be submitted to the Republican central committee for candidacy consideration, chairman Joseph Tecson said.

INCLUDED ON the list are:

• Arlington Heights Mayor Jack Walsh, a six-year village trustee who was elected mayor in 1969. Walsh was 1970 president of the Cook County Council of Governments. He resigned as Arlington Heights mayor in 1972 to become assistant director in the state Department of Local Government Affairs. He was elected mayor again in 1973.

• Arlington Heights Trustee James Ryan, a Chicago attorney. Ryan was appointed to the village board in January, 1970 and was elected in April, 1971. Ryan unsuccessfully sought the GOP nomination for the 3rd Dist. Illinois House seat in 1971.

• Wheeling Township Assessor Marshall Theroux, who was elected in 1969.

Theroux was Wheeling Township GOP president in 1968 and also failed to win the 3rd Dist. House nomination in 1971.

• State Sen. David Regner, R-Mount Prospect. Regner was elected in 1966 to the Illinois House and is former Elk Grove Twp. auditor.

• Donald Rumsfeld, former 13th Dist. Congressmen. Rumsfeld headed the Office of Economic Opportunity and President Richard Nixon's Cost of Living Council before appointment as U.S. Ambassador to NATO.

• Wayne Anderson of Des Plaines. Anderson was legislative aide to State Rep. Henry Hyde, R-Park Ridge, for two years. He announced candidacy last spring for Des Plaines alderman but did not file candidacy petitions. He is an attorney.

THE "SEARCH" committee is seeking names of "blue ribbon" GOP candidates for U.S. Senator, state treasurer, three Metropolitan Sanitary District trustee posts; county assessor, treasurer, sheriff, clerk, superintendent of educational services; two board of tax appeal posts; president of the county board and five county commissioner posts.

Rumsfeld, U.S. Rep. John B. Anderson, R-Ill., and Atty. Gen. William Scott are considered possible candidates for Sen. Adlai Stevenson's, D-Ill., seat.

Tecson said the committee is finding reluctance to run for office among possible candidates. "It isn't just Watergate," he said. "It's the whole climate of political activity. It isn't limited to the Republican Party either."

"If the news is bad, we should know about it now," he said. Many possible candidates have not started planning for the 1974 campaign.

NAMES ON THE committee list were submitted by "search" members. "I didn't know in advance what names would be submitted," Tecson said. "I was advised by committee members that they had contacted the people named."

Bar association seeking to remove its 'tarnish'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The American Bar Association (ABA) is considering what to do about the tarnish some say has been placed on the legal profession by lawyers involved in the Watergate affair.

A resolution introduced early in the 96th annual ABA Convention referred to "shocking, shameful conduct" on the part of such lawyers and suggested that ABA recommend that those who have admitted guilt be disbarred summarily.

But a later version by the association's drafting committee toned down the language to omit the "shocked dismay" and instead merely cited "alleged instances of professional misconduct."

The resolution denounced "any unethical action which might cast aspersions upon the integrity of the profession" and called for "prompt and vigorous disciplinary investigation and appropriate action."

Both ABA President Robert W. McNamee of Boston and President-elect Chesterfield Smith of Lakeland, Fla., have deplored the involvement of so many lawyers in Watergate-related matters. But they say discipline can come only from state bars and courts.

NEVERTHELESS, ABA is establishing a new National Center for Disciplinary Enforcement to assist state and local bars in their disciplinary activities.

The resolution must be acted on first, possibly in revised form by the entire ABA Assembly and then by the ABA House of Delegates, a smaller, policymaking body.

At hearings before the assembly resolutions committee Tuesday, the only opponent of any resolution whatsoever on this subject was Sen. J. M. Hernandez-Sanchez of San Juan, who said the association should not involve itself "in a political issue."

The assembly resolutions committee was asked by James W. Hewitt of Lincoln, Neb., to recommend that the ABA withdraw its approval of a uniform probate code which has already been enacted in modified form in Alaska, Arizona, Colorado, Idaho and North Dakota, with other states about to act.

The code provides a simplified method of settlement of estates. It was prepared by the National Conference of Commissioners on Uniform State Laws.

The study shows there is less crime in Illinois than in vacation spas like Arizona, Colorado, Hawaii, Florida and Nevada. The state had 57,162 violent crimes which include murder, forcible rape, robbery and aggravated assault. Nationwide, crimes reported to police dropped 2 per cent, but Atty. Gen. Agnew attacks allegations

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew denied Wednesday as "damned lies" allegations that he was involved in a kickback scheme. He said he would fight to prove his innocence rather than resign.

The vice president said he was personally answering the "false, scurrilous and malicious allegations" that have appeared in the press in the last 48 hours because "I have no intention of being skewered" — remaining silent while others accuse him of wrongdoing.

At a news conference he called 24 hours after holding what he termed a "very far-reaching discussion" with President Nixon, Agnew confirmed he was under federal investigation for possible violation of bribery, tax fraud, extortion and conspiracy laws.

But Agnew expressed confidence he would not be indicted. Federal prosecutors in his native Baltimore, Md., are reported to be investigating an alleged scheme by prominent Maryland Republicans to influence federal contract awards in return for cash kickbacks or political contributions from construction firms.

Agnew disclosed he has hired an outside attorney to advise him on a federal grand jury's request for certain of his financial papers, which he described as bank statements, savings account passbooks, cancelled checks and deposit slips.

Agnew said he first became aware of the grand jury investigation last February when some friends told him of "rumors in the cocktail circuit" that he might be involved.

He said he retained counsel in early April and discussed the rumors with Gen. Alexander M. Haig, a presidential aide who later succeeded the ousted H. R. Haldeman as White House chief of staff.

Last Thursday, the vice president said, he received a letter from the U.S. Attorney for Maryland, George Beall, informing him he was under investigation for "possible violations of the criminal statutes."

Agnew said he "very shortly" informed the President through Haig, but did not speak to Nixon directly until they met for an hour and 45 minutes on Tuesday at the President's hideaway office in the Executive Office Building.

The grand jury has been investigating the entire matter since January. The Los Angeles Times, quoting a source close to the inquiry, reported Wednesday that prosecutors expected to present tax fraud evidence against Agnew to the grand jury within the next few weeks.

He specifically denied one allegation, published by the Knight Newspapers, that Jerome B. Wolff, a Baltimore contractor and former aide to Agnew as Maryland governor and later as vice president, "has given federal prosecutors details of alleged payments to Agnew amount to $1,000 a week."

Reports of such kickback payments, Agnew said, were "damned lies."

The White House, which had refused comment on the Agnew matter Tuesday, said Wednesday before the vice president's news conference that "the fact of this investigation is no reason for the President to change his attitude about the vice president or his confidence in the vice president."

'damned lies'

Asked what he thought of this "grudging" expression of support from the President, Agnew replied:

"I think the vice president of the United States should stand on his own feet. It's not important what the President said. I'm not looking around to see who is supporting me . . . I'm defending myself."

Three separate federal court decisions Wednesday rebuffed legal efforts to order an immediate halt of American bombing in Cambodia in accordance with congressional legislation.

While the bombing issue was being debated in U.S. courts, the capital of Cambodia was threatened by rebels pressing on the outskirts of Phnom Penh.

Cambodian rebels captured Phnom Penh's communications center Wednesday, destroying all international telephone circuits. They also began circulating leaflets in the capital advising residents how to behave when insurgent forces enter the city.

Although U.S. warplanes were flying heavy raids outside the capital during the day, they managed only scattered success in driving back the advancing rebels.

'Big picture' still ahead for Senate investigators

What next for the Senate Watergate committee?

The first phase of its work done, the group — officially the Senate Select Committee on Presidential Campaign Activities — will resume hearings Sept. 10 and take further testimony for a month to six weeks.

The committee is uncertain about how it will proceed, because the broader phase of its assignment is still ahead: an investigation into 1972 political "dirty tricks" and campaign financing.

First the senators have to finish up the Watergate portion of the investigation, by hearing six or seven more witnesses, including former White House special counsel Charles Colson and convicted Watergate conspirator E. Howard Hunt.

Then they have to decide whether to immediately into the broader investigation; whether to conduct those hearings as a full committee or by two subcommittees; and whether to continue to permit television coverage.

The committee has logged 37 days and 7,000 pages of nationally televised testimony from 38 witnesses — focused primarily on the break-in at the Democratic National Committee headquarters in the Watergate complex June 17, 1972, the in-

Freshman U.S. Rep. Samuel H. Young, R-10th, returned home to his North suburban district this week for an extended visit and the customary August ritual of fence-tending that goes with being a U.S. representative.

Soon to be entering his first campaign for reelection, Young came armed with proposals for campaign reforms, which would include financial concessions to his new opponent.

UNCHING with reporters in Morton Grove Wednesday, Young declared that he would favor not only placing a limit on campaign financing, but would be inclined to grant a financial edge to challengers running against incumbent congressmen, who have certain campaign advantages deriving from their offices.

"I WOULD BE willing to put a limit of $100,000, or $150,000, or $200,000 on congressional campaigns," said Young, who indicated that the highest figure was approximately what he spent in his 1972 campaign against former Democratic congressman Abner J. Mikva.

But, he added, such a campaign spending limit would work as an advantage to incumbents, who have the convenience of the congressional franking privilege for mailing literature, and more ready exposure to the public through the press.

To offset that, he proposed that candidates running against incumbents be given a higher spending limit — "... maybe $12,000 or $15,000 more" or that they be granted the franking privilege "for maybe two free mailings."

Rep. Samuel H. Young

YOUNG ALSO indicated that legislation he will propose will include provisions eliminating "good government" funds operated by corporations and unions, by which the bypass prohibitions against direct contributions to candidates. (Employers and union members are encouraged to make voluntary contributions, which are then distributed to "good" candidates.)

"I would like to get back to the situation where individuals simply contribute where they want to," he said.

Looking toward the 1974 election,

YOUNG indicated that such a provision will be included in legislation for campaign reform that he plans to introduce in Congress shortly after Labor Day.

He also said he favored limits on the amount that individuals may contribute to any candidate's campaign. He noted proposals now before Congress which would limit individual contributions to $3,000 in primary elections, $3,000 in general elections, and $3,000 in runoff elections. Since runoff elections are conducted only in the Southern states, he proposed that the limit be set at $4,500 for primary and general elections, with provisions that candidates involved in runoffs might spend part of that $9,000 in the runoff.

"But I would favor any whatever limits are decided upon," said Young. "My opponent is going to have to follow the same rules."

A news analysis

Young compared the current status of his party to "the winter at Valley Forge," but discounted the "fallout" of the Watergate scandal against Republican candidates next year.

He declared that economic issues will be the overriding issue in the 1974 campaign, and expressed the hope that "we can balance the situation in about a year."

Over-all crime totals increase, but felonies are down

by LYNN ASINOF

Comparative midyear figures released by the Wheeling Police Department show a 10 per cent increase in the number of reported criminal cases, but a 19 per cent decrease in felonies.

As of the end of June this year 956 criminal offenses were reported to police compared to 889 reported at the same time last year.

Most of the increase is attributed to a rise in the number of less serious criminal cases — including disorderly conduct, drunkenness and minor assaults. This year 607 less serious offenses were reported representing a 28 per cent increase over last year's 536 reported cases.

CRIMINAL CASES considered felonies

include homicide, rape, robbery, aggravated assault, burglary, larceny and auto theft. In this category, the number of reported criminal cases, but a 19 per cent decrease in felonies.

The most substantial decrease in the serious category was in the number of reported larcenies involving less than $30. Last year, 171 cases were reported compared to 93 this year, a 46 per cent decrease.

Correspondingly, the number of reported larcenies involving more than $50 increased 25 per cent from 97 cases last year to 121 this year. Police have arrested suspects in about two per cent of all reported larcenies.

Another large decrease in serious crime was in the number of reported aggravated assaults. Last year 23 cases were reported compared to only eight this year.

OF THE TOTAL number of criminal incidents reported so far this year, police have arrested suspects in 6.9 per cent of the cases. This is a decrease from last year when arrests were made in 9.8 per cent of all reported crimes.

Enforcement also decreased in the number of arrests for serious criminal offenses. The police department arrested suspects in 6.7 per cent of reported cases, compared to last year's 12.6 per cent.

Police made arrests in 6.9 per cent of the less serious criminal cases. Last year arrests were made in 8.2 per cent of these cases.

WHILE THE NUMBER of reported crimes has increased over last year's figures, the number is still well below the 1971 mid-year count. More than 1,100 criminal offenses were reported in 1971 compared to 956 this year.

The total number of juvenile offenses decreased substantially. This year 122 cases were reported, compared to 213 last year, a 43 per cent change.

Serious juvenile offenses decreased largely because of a 47 per cent drop in reported cases of larceny involving less than $50. Last year 28 such juvenile cases were reported compared to this year's 15.

THE NUMBER OF less serious juvenile offenses decreased 40 per cent, with large drops in the number of reported cases of disorderly conduct, weapons offenses and runaways.

This year the number of juveniles involved in disorderly conduct cases dropped 82 per cent from 38 to 7 cases. The number of runaways decreased 19 per cent from 43 last year to 35 this year.

There were, however, increases in the number of reported juvenile drug, truancy and sex offenses.

Most arrested juveniles were released to their parents' custody, while four were referred to family court.

In most areas, the number of traffic citations increased this year over last year. The number of reported accidents was up 19 per cent from 318 last year to 377 this year.

THE NUMBER OF persons injured in accidents increased 17 per cent, from 54 to 63. Likewise, property damage increased 19 per cent, with 305 cases reported this year compared to 256 cases last year.

The largest number of traffic citations were issued for speeding and parking offenses. The largest increase in the number of traffic citations was for driving while intoxicated. This year 43 persons were charged for this offense while only 12 were charged last year, representing a 250 per cent increase.

Only the number of traffic citations issued for improper turns decreased. This year 28 such traffic tickets were issued compared to last year's 43.

Arlington Park C&NW rates, times set

Chicago and North Western Ry. officials have established the timetable and fares for trains that will stop at the new depot at Arlington Park Race Track, scheduled to open Sept. 1.

The Arlington Park stop on the North Western's northwest line will not affect any existing arrival or departure times in Chicago or at any of the suburban stations.

One exception, train 621, which now leaves Chicago at 4:13 p.m. will be changed to a 4:10 afternoon departure.

A single round-trip ride from Arlington Park to Chicago will cost $2.90, an unlimited monthly pass will be $37.60. Monthly service from the downtown Arlington Heights depot now costs $36.20; from Palatine, $33.

Regular commuter trains are scheduled to begin stopping at Arlington Park on Saturday, Sept. 1. Most trains now running on Saturday and Sunday will stop at the new depot.

Regular, Monday through Friday schedules will not go into effect until Tuesday, Sept. 4, the day after Labor Day.

THE RACE TRACK will make available parking for 800 cars near the new station, built by the village at a cost of $100,000.

Tom Rivera, Arlington Park's director of public relations, said the details of exit and entrance, parking fees and location have not yet been determined.

The first few days of the depot's operation may be complicated by the Future

Rohlwing and Wilke roads.

A three-way agreement between Arlington Heights, the railroad and the race track limits the cost of parking to the rate prevailing in the village, currently 50 cents a day.

Commuters from northern parts of Arlington Heights, Rolling Meadows, Palatine, Elk Grove, Schaumburg and Hoffman Estates are expected to take advantage of the track's easy access off of Rt. 53.

The new depot was included in the 1969 annexation agreement between the village and the race track.

Brothers 'fiddle on the roof'

by DIANE STEFANOS

Sneakers and cut-off jeans, freckles, cellos and violins — that's what little boys are made of?

At least Steve and Dominick Pezen are so much, that the mischievous but creative twosome days ago decided to present their own rendition of "Fiddler on the Roof" to the world by playing upon their family rooftop.

It had been what any mother of six would call a normal day until then. The eldest daughter, Laura, 22, was leaving the house when a sudden wind of "If I

Were a Rich Man" filled the air.

Plinky, plunky, squeaky notes from horse hair sliding across violin strings echoed throughout the neighborhood. With astonishment, neighbors and family located the origin of the innocent pluckings on the family's rooftop.

THE MUSICAL efforts of the two grinning, baseball loving boys were met by the laughing and smiling approval of those who looked on.

"It's really a shock for a mother to see her sons practicing their instruments as they usually do on the roof instead of in the family room. Those kids did it all on their own because they like music so much," Mrs. Dolores Pezen said.

Inspired by the fiddlers of fate and the musical score from the movie "Fiddler on the Roof," the two young string students decided to bring a little Jerry Bock's musical composition to their Hoffman Estates neighborhood.

Dominick, 11, loves to play the violin as much as his brother Steve, 12, loves to play his cello. The two of them team up for practice at home and in their school District 34 orchestra.

It was Dominick's idea to play on the roof, first playing outside on the family's front lawn and later moving to the wooden fort the boys had built in their backyard.

"I don't know really why I went up there. I thought it would be fun because the fiddler in the movie did it. Besides, it made a lot of people laugh and enjoy it," Dominick said.

"We play classical music in school and I like that. But I like songs with rhythm that move too, like the songs from 'Fiddler on the Roof.' That's why Steve and I decided to play that ourselves," he added.

IT'S IMPRESSIVE enough when children ask to take up playing instruments on their own at a young age, but when they take it upon themselves to do their own improvising, it can only prove parental satisfaction, Mrs. Pezen said.

Every member of the Pezen family seems convinced that music brings out the best in people, creatively, spiritually and emotionally. When Lawrence Pezen gathers with the rest of his family after a day's work, Loretta, 17; Lawrence Jr., 19; Stan, 14, and grandma Celia, all play audience to the two musicians' practice sessions.

"We watch musical shows on television like Arthur Fiedler and the Boston Pops, or we go to hear concerts at Harper Junior College. Hearing music and seeing musicians at work stimulates the boys and gives the whole family a good experience," Mrs. Pezen said.

The boys enjoy playing cello and violin enough to stick with it through high school.

"One of us might do it professionally someday. I'll do it if the orchestra's good enough," Dominick said.

"FIDDLER ON THE ROOF" became the story of two fun loving boys from Hoffman Estates who decided to do their own roof top fiddling around while playing music from the famous production. Dominick Pezen, 11, left, and his brother, Steve, 12, first went roof side with their routine as a joke on their sister, Laura. The incident turned into an amusing one for neighbors as well.

SUMMER'S ALMOST GONE, and kids everywhere are playing hard to get in as much fun and games as possible before the old school bells start ringing again. It won't be long now.

Omni-House fund-raising 'big success'

by JEANNETTE De WYZE

Omni-House: Youth Services Bureau has declared its first year fund-raising efforts a complete success, according to director Peter Digre.

The bureau's first grant year began July 1, 1972, when Omni-House received a $121,000 grant from the Illinois Law Enforcement Commission. The bureau then committed itself to raising one third of that amount from other sources to make up the remaining funds for the year.

"Because of our extreme frugality we've been able to extend that first grant year to Oct. 1, 1973," Digre said.

Mechanics, car dealers call pact agreement a 'fair deal'

Termed a fair agreement by both sides a new contract agreement has been made between auto mechanics and new car dealers in the Chicago metropolitan area.

The new contract was approved "overwhelmingly" last week by the 4,000 members of Local 701, International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers. It was worked out between negotiators for the union and the Employers Association of Greater Chicago.

THE NEW AGREEMENT follows a month-long dispute between the mechanics union and the dealer association. Local 701 members worked the entire month of July, without a contract, and had voted to strike this week if no settlement was reached.

The new contract provides for a 25 cent an hour pay increase retroactive to Aug. 1. This will bring the hourly wage scale from $3.75 an hour to $3.95 an hour. An additional 25 cents an hour increase is slated for 1974. Mechanics who service trucks will earn 50 cents more per hour.

Don Gustafson, president and business manager of Local 701, said the new contract provides increased employer contributions into the union health and welfare plan, and the pension plan. Vacation pay was improved, he said. A worker can take three weeks vacation after nine years of service rather than the 10 years previously required.

"SOME OF THE major issues, as the 10-hour day, were scrubbed," Gustafson said. The dealer association had sought an optional 10-hour day as well as changes in the method of compensation for auto mechanics.

"It was a fair settlement," said Warren Latoff, general manager for the Latoff Motor Sales Co. in Arlington Heights. "It's something we can live with. We would say everyone came out a winner." Good employee relations are the most important aspect of the settlement, he said.

This was seconded by Tom Todd owner of Tom Todd Chevrolet Inc., in Wheeling. He said the individual dealer makes a great difference in job satisfaction for mechanics. He added, "I would rather pay people more money to do a good job than hire someone with less skill for lower pay." This pays off in customer satisfaction, he said. Todd said his mechanics proposed a cut in service rates three years ago, in order to attract more business. This was put into effect voluntarily.

The reduction will remain in effect until the first day of the month following an opening at the recreational center.

"We admit there are problems in Sheffield Village and are obviously very concerned," said Don Lawrence, national president of Levitt Property Management.

CONSTRUCTION ON the recreational center has been started and completion is expected early this fall, Lawrence said. He also noted that the corporation will handle other complaints on an individual basis.

Tenants contend that recreational facilities were promised verbally by rental agents, advertised in roadside displays and in brochures and pictures displayed in the Schaumburg rental office.

Other tenant demands concern just compensation for property damage suffered through water leakage, 24-hour maintenance service, repair of leaks and cracks, insect and rodent control and unauthorized apartment entry by management personnel.

STEVE COOL, co-chairman of the tenants group, described the Levitt response as "apparently inadequate" but said he prefers to withhold further comment until he has had a chance to study a three-page letter received from Lawrence this week.

"I personally feel they (Levitt) should provide us with a rebate on past rent and them for money," he said.

"Our financial development has gone much better than we expected. In fact, I'm rather awed by it," Digre said.

He said the bureau has attempted to develop a multi-source fundraising program in the past year. To date, 12 different areas of the community, including PTAs, churches, individuals, businesses, social service clubs, industry, foundations, the United Fund and local governments have contributed.

THE OMNI-HOUSE budget for the second grant year will be slightly lower than the first year's budget, Digre said.

However, the Illinois Law Enforcement Commission grant for the second year will be cut in half, since the first year grant was intended primarily as seed money, he said. Consequently, a greater percentage of funds for the second year budget will have to come from the community.

Despite the lower second year budget, more money will be available for programming in the second year, according to Digre. This is because many first year expenditures, such as desks and office equipment, will be unnecessary in the second year, he said.

THE NEED FOR the clinic was prompted by a 1971 survey of public schools that showed more than 2,000 children living in Northwest Cook County could not afford services of a private dentist.

by MIKE ZAREMBA

Two years ago, the Cook County Department of Public Health (CCDPH) made an offer to the City of Des Plaines: We'll give you a part-time dentist to open a free dental clinic for needy children if you find us an office and dental equipment.

It was an offer many people refused. Then, finally four months ago, a church congregation of 15 people stepped forward.

Through the efforts of the Des Plaines League of Women's Voters, the Westminster Presbyterian Church of Des Plaines will open its doors, August 20, to low and moderate-income Northwest suburban families, whose children need dental care — but can't afford it.

THE CHILDREN'S Dental Service Inc. was organized by the CCDPH to help maintain and run the clinic. The Northwest suburban organization is soliciting for funds and trying to secure volunteers to help run the clinic.

"We're going to need clerical volunteers and drivers to bring the people to and from the clinic," Mrs. Rose said.

The clinic will be open to children under 16-years-old. Appointments can be made by calling the health department's North District office at 293-3800. Health department officials will screen each child's school file before an appointment is made, to determine his parent's financial status.

MRS. ROSE SAID county health department family income guidelines will be used in determining a family's eligibility to use the clinic.

A family of three must earn no more than $8,442 yearly, according to county guidelines. A family of four must earn no more than $9,641 while the minimum for a family of five is $11,004 and $12,467 is ceiling for a family of six or more.

The two offices set up in the Westminster Presbyterian Church at 800 S. Beau Dr., Des Plaines, will be open every week on Monday and Tuesday from 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

Quirks in the news

by JIM HARVEY

In San Ysidro, Calif., have two dozen parrots on their hands. The parrots apparently were given tequila to keep them from squawking while they were smuggled into the U.S. Inspectors found the parrots — barred from the U.S. because of the danger of disease — hidden in a boxspring beneath a mattress in a northbound van at the border point. The van's driver, Donald Head, 51, was charged with smuggling the birds, worth about $2,400 on the pet store black market.

MUGGER PICKS ON on wrong old man: A mugger in Newcastle-on-Tyne, England picked the wrong man when he attacked Duncan McLeod, 75, in a dark alley. McLeod knocked him down with a combination left and right to the body and head. It was the sort of punching that earned McLeod scores of victories when he fought professionally as "The Battling Bombardier." McLeod said "I only hit him in self defense."

CAN'T FIGHT CITY HALL: A tax consultant in San Anselmo, Calif., piled up 150 parking tickets because he lives on a street that divides his town from San Rafael. It seems he disputed for three years the fact there was a parking ban on the San Anselmo side of the street while San Rafael had no such law. He was fined $270, put on probation for a year and ordered to attend traffic school. When he left court he found an overtime parking tag on his car ... In the town of Escondido, Mayor Will Mason, acting as his own lawyer, defended himself in Municipal Court on a charge of making an illegal right turn. He lost and was fined $14.50.

NOW YOU CAN 'RENTA YENTA': Two self-proclaimed "busybodies" in Tarzana, Calif., have been in business since March solving problems for their subscribers. For $25 a year, Lila Greene and Toby Brown, two mothers who use the name "Renta Yenta" will do such things as: 1) Send a bouquet of flowers and a pillow to a man's wife who had been horseback riding ... 2) Dispatch a spiritualist to rid a house of a decapitated ghost who knocks over drinks and uses the typewriter at night ... 3) Provide a balloon for a groom and his bride on which to fly away from their wedding.

ANOTHER FINE MESS: Richard Fiske, 33, brought the ceiling down in Oroville (Calif.) Justice Court early this week while awaiting arraignment on robbery charges. It seems Fiske, of San Luis Obispo, accused of a liquor store robbery, was confined in a holding cell when he apparently tried to pry a hole in the ceiling and escape. Authorities however, heard a loud crash and found Fiske on the floor of the cell with half the ceiling around him. Deputies said even if he had not fallen, Fiske would not have been able to cut a reinforced steel network in the roof of the cell. Additional charges of escape and destruction of public property were lodged against him.

STORY DIDN'T HOLD WATER: David Wickwire said he and a friend were watching the sunset when their 18-foot motor boat was struck by a 382-foot ferry boat in Seattle, Wash., Harbor Patrolman Ken Fulk, however, had a different version. He said Wickwire was drunk and his boat struck the ferry. Wickwire was charged with operating a watercraft while intoxicated.

POOR MINI: Mini Mustang, the world's smallest horse, has hay fever — and she got the condition from being around too many people. A Goshen, Ind., veterinarian told Dale and Donna Carman, owners of the horse that was 13½ inches at birth May 17, to keep Mini Mustang in air-conditioned quarters until she outgrows the problem. The Carmans are now exhibiting Mini in a 16-foot air-conditioned van with a plexi-glass back for viewing.

NO USE RUSHING IT: "How much is it to Australia from the Horsham (England) bus station, guv?" the taxi driver asked his boss. "Get off the road," his boss radioed back. "You're drunk."

But taxi owner Bernard Francis finally told the driver the trip by taxi should cost someone $3,750 — and Mrs. Ethel Murphy said fine. She said she plans to visit her daughter in Perth, Australia. "When you're going that far," Mrs. Murphy said, "it is silly to rush it. Going by car is the only civilized way to do it." She did not explain quite how she expected to be driven there.

ROMANCE RAMPANT: It seems that nothing can bar romance from the Salt Lake County (Utah) Jail. County Sheriff Delmar Larson said female inmates had been lowering a blanket ladder out a window so male inmates could climb one story up into the women's facility and have what the sheriff termed "sex parties." Larson said deputies learned that a party occurred Friday night, with a second taking place about an hour later. He added that he didn't know if any laws had been broken.

VIOLENT AND LETHAL: The thief who stole a vial of Dilithonate from the auto of a medical supply salesman in Pasadena, Calif., along with scalpels and other items, probably wouldn't want to keep it if he knew more about the nature of his loot, police said. Dilithonate, a white powder, is used to remove blood from medical instruments. If taken internally, it will cause instant death, and the chemical explodes on contact with water.

80 pct. in area to use state aid plan

by KATHERINE BOYCE

Richard Martwick

The new state aid plan for schools is "the best thing since popcorn in Cook County districts," according to Fred Bradshaw, director of finance and claims for the office of the Illinois superintendent of schools.

Bradshaw spoke to teachers, school board members, school administrators and parents yesterday in a breakfast meeting at the Sheraton O'Hare Motel in Rosemont. Sponsored by Richard Martwick, Cook County Superintendent of Schools, the meeting was designed to bring local school officials up to date on new education legislation.

A new state aid formula, signed into law last month, was the main concern of most school officials present. The formula, called the resource equalizer, guarantees the amount of revenue each school district would receive if it had a certain set assessed property valuation per pupil. According to sponsors of the formula, most school districts will get a substantial increase in state aid.

Bradshaw said the new formula is very popular in Cook County schools because they will receive some of the largest increases. Most Cook County schools are dual districts, where the high schools and elementary schools are operated and funded separately. Under the old formula dual districts received less money than unit districts where the schools operate together. The resource equalizer does away with this disparity, said Bradshaw, because each school figures state aid with the same formula.

THE NEW FORMULA is also popular in Cook County because tax rates are higher here than downstate and these rates are a "key factor in the formula," Bradshaw said.

School districts still have the option of using the old formula, which figures state aid on local property taxes and average daily student attendance. "Statewide this year, I would say only half of the districts will be on the resource equalizer," said Bradshaw, but in Cook County, the figures will jump to about 80 per cent of the schools.

State Rep. Arthur Berman, D-Chicago, member of the Illinois House education committee, said legislators have been trying to get a resource equalizer bill passed by the General Assembly for several years.

"I think we shared both optimism and a good deal of surprise that a good bill was able to be introduced," said Berman.

ONE DISAPPOINTMENT came to supporters of the formula with the governor's signature last month. The governor used his selective veto power to reduce the appropriation accompanying the bill by about five per cent to $900 million. The reduced appropriation could mean that this year school districts will not receive the full amount called for under the formula.

If appropriations run out before the end of the school year, the legislature will introduce a deficiency appropriation next spring, Berman said.

Schools need public's help: Bakalis

NEW YORK (UPI) — Illinois Supt. of Public Instruction Michael J. Bakalis said yesterday greater citizen participation in policy-making is essential to the survival of schools.

"Public support for education is diminishing and will continue to do so until participatory environments are created," Bakalis said at a noon speech before the American Management Association.

Bakalis said his experience in Illinois convinced him future school administrators must recognize seven "characteristics of policy-making."

• "From the standpoint of public education, greater citizen participation is desirable, and, I suspect, inevitable."

• "The attitudes and opinions of citizens should be regularly and systematically sought and weighed in the formulation of educational policy by administrators and school board members."

• "Lay control of education must be firmly reestablished."

• "Citizen participation does not mean administrators must 'surrender or even share' policy-making roles, but it requires that citizens be permitted real opportunities to influence the exercise of these prerogatives and the choices made by policymakers and administrators."

• "School administrators must broaden their concept of efficiency and traditional management values to accommodate expanding societal needs and citizen perceptions of program effectiveness."

• "Expanded citizen participation is likely to cause some professional discomfort and inconvenience — a necessary but modest price for a more effective and responsive educational system."

• "Educational administrators must be prepared and trained more effectively to navigate in participatory environments."

College course for servicemen

Harper College is beginning a program this fall which will provide servicemen and women with skills necessary to pursue a college-level education upon discharge from the military service.

Harper's Office of Continuing Education is sponsoring the program, with the cooperation of Glenview Naval Air Station. The pre-discharge education program will be conducted by the learning laboratory staff at the college. The student will be expected to carry 10 to 15 credit hours in a 16 week cycle. A total of 10 junior college credit hours will be available under the program.

The curriculum will include basic arithmetic and algebra courses. Reading courses will provide an individualized program designed to meet each student's needs as determined by diagnostic and placement testing. Three communication skills courses will refresh students in areas of spelling, writing and vocabulary.

'Nation's worst' fuel shortage plight

Colorado's pumps nearly all dry

DENVER (UPI) — Chuck Stiesmeyer looked at the three rows of automobiles lined up for gasoline at his Texaco service station Sunday and said the eight fuel pumps would be dry within the hour.

Across the city other pumps already were dry or were not opened at all.

"When we opened seven months ago, we had to hustle business," said Stiesmeyer.

"We offered free car washes and we vacuumed out cars. Now we have to turn business away, especially on Sundays."

"The lines are nothing like they'll be pretty soon when we have to close down and the people start coming home from church. They really get mad when we put up the 'no gas' sign."

THE WEEKDAY gasoline shortage in Denver that forces stations to close after selling daily allotments skyrockets on Sundays, when only a handful of stations remain open. Fifty gas stations were closed within a seven-mile radius of Stiesmeyer's Texaco Sunday.

The American Automobile Association has called Denver's fuel situation the worst in the nation. Gov. John Vanderhoof last week ordered a crash out-of-state advertising program downplaying the problem in an effort to avoid $100 million in lost tourism this summer.

One Denver station manager has passed out identification cards to regular customers and will not sell to strangers. City stations are out of lock-caps for gas tanks. The lock-caps have been bought by motorists fearful of having fuel siphoned away.

OIL INDUSTRY officials have blamed the shortage on an unexpected increase in the state's population and lack of adequate pipelines to bring gasoline into Colorado.

"They can't believe the gas shortage," said Stiesmeyer, assistant station manager. "I had one person who had a big car drive back in the next week in a compact and say, 'look at my new car.' Imports are selling like crazy because of their mileage."

"We've almost had fights here on Sundays, especially when we tell them we're shutting down and that there's no more gas. Our other business is off. We don't have time to sell tires because we're too busy selling gas."

A FEW MILES away, Jack Charrin waited in a line of cars to buy gas at a Conoco station at a busy intersection in south Denver. Charrin works for Conoco in Denver and predicts the shortage will last "at least two or three more years."

"The oil companies aren't holding out on gas," he said. "If the gas was available there wouldn't be a shortage. The problem is pipeline capacity. There will be a shortage in Denver every summer until pipeline capacity matches the tourist demand."

Behind him, Bill Speckman sat in his yellow convertible and said he'd been forced to get gas on Sunday because he had put off refueling during the week.

"I usually don't try and buy gas on Sundays," he said. "But I haven't had any trouble getting it during the week."

"I have a neighbor who has a Cadillac sitting in his driveway. He doesn't drive it any more."

Many stations operate normally

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The American Automobile Association reported that more than half the 3,962 gasoline stations

FTC investigating funeral industry

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Trade Commission said it is investigating the funeral service and cemetery industry to determine whether unfair or deceptive practices are being followed.

The investigation was first disclosed in Houston, Tex., by a Service Corp. International executive, who said the FTC had not filed a formal complaint. An FTC spokesman said that a "nonpublic investigation" had begun but refused to give further details.

"We are confirming that our staff is looking into certain practices in the funeral industry," the spokesman said. "We can't go any further than that."

Herald editorial

In the name of 'security'

"The right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers, and effects, against unreasonable searches and seizures shall not be violated, and no Warrants shall issue, but upon probable cause, supported by Oath or affirmation, and particularly describing the place to be searched, and the persons or things to be seized."

That declaration, the Fourth Amendment of the United States Constitution, is so eloquently simple that it seems to defy elaboration.

But the proliferation in recent years of electronic snooping, political spying and "national security" investigations of private and public citizens demands even more explicit prohibitions against unreasonable searches and seizures.

Two such measures have been introduced in the Congress recently, and we urge Illinois legislators to give them absolute support.

One would specifically ban spying on civilians by any military agency. The other would tighten control and increase penalties for illegal use of electronic spying devices.

It has been the declared policy of military intelligence agencies since their inception that they conduct no activities aimed at civilian "targets." But there have been constant violations of that policy.

The widespread illegal use of wiretaps, hidden recorders and other electronic devices, both by private and governmental agencies, is common knowledge in the business and law enforcement worlds.

Such snooping by private citizens is obnoxious enough. When perpetrated by the government, it is intolerable.

There are, of course, instances when the national security argument becomes valid — but they are provided for in the Fourth Amendment. We have been told recently that for many years there have been as many as 300 or 400 legal wiretaps being conducted under the authorization of the federal courts by the U.S. government.

The courts, we believe, are competent to decide when a wiretap is necessary to protect the national interests. What court, we wonder, would have condoned the "search" of Dr. Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist's office in the interest of national security?

We have had too many grim demonstrations in recent years of how fragile the rights of the people are when pitted against the awesome weight of the government and the military.

If citizens of the United States cannot be secure in their homes, and in their ideas, their opinions and their confidences, then the very concept of "national security" is meaningless.

Speaking of speaking...

Where has our poetry gone?

by RALPH NOVAK

You can say it is caused by the slings and arrows of outrageous fortune. You can say it is a case of children wandering in the wilderness. You can even say it is the result of wringing the neck of eloquence.

You cannot say — please do not say — that it is not a heavy scene, man.

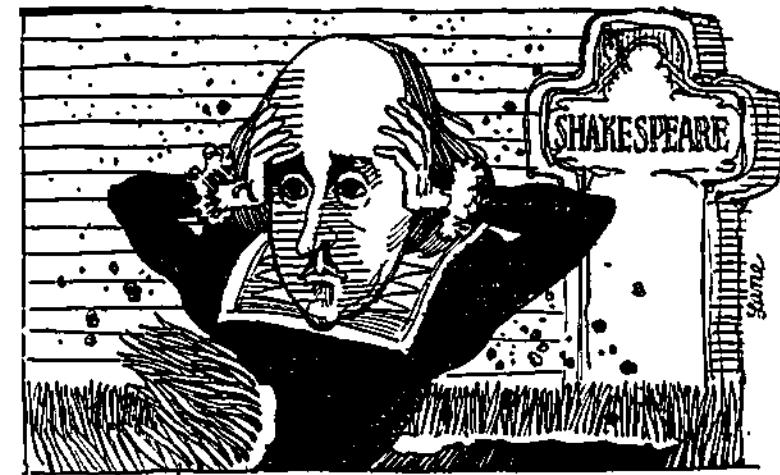

The subject is the loathsome disease that has afflicted American English, making the language break out in a rash of unsightly expletives, causing grotesque contortions that deform what has been a beautiful language, drying up the occasional oases of poetry that can sometimes transform even the most mundane communications into a casual, subtle art form.

THE RECENTLY published "Webster's New Collegiate Dictionary" contains about 22,000 words and meanings that were not in the previous edition, which first appeared in 1963. And if T. S. Eliot was right when he wrote that "every vital development in language is a development of feeling as well," we are in a lot of trouble.

It is to search in vain to search the list of new dictionary entries for the happy adjective, the gentle adverb, the loving noun that make music in a language. What you find instead are harsh, awkward, mechanical words, the linguistic equivalents of artificial plants that do nothing but fill space.

Where is the joy in such words as "groovy," "rip off," "computerese," "environmentalist," "paraprofessional," "robotics," "cinematize," "trendy"? The medium, as Marshall McLuhan said, is the message and this message bespeaks an unseemly haste and lack of grace.

MANY OF THE NEW entries are, of course, technical words and it is true that "adenohypophysis" by any other name would probably still be unpronounceable. But whatever happened to the people who invented such pleasing words as "pie," "book," "serene," "nimble," "prance," "lovely," "fascinating," "hug," "reverie," "beach," "kitten"? They just don't write words like that any more, it seems.

It is true, as English observer George Steiner has written, that "at its best (which is most certainly not that of politics, advertisement or genteel pap), American speech has a raw precision of imagery, a musical wealth, a vulnerability to the uprush of argotic and neologistic experiments, a sheer onrush — the proposition seeking out the listener with a palpable directness."

But most of us are not Norman Mailer or John Updike or Martin Luther King Jr. and we do not appear to have profited very much from the example of their use of language.

THERE IS NO reason, however, why we can't all cultivate a little more fondness, respect and sensitivity for the language that is so much a part of us.

It is too much to ask that we become like the Houyhnhnms in Jonathan Swift's satirical classic "Gulliver's Travels." (The Houyhnhnms had no word for "lie" or "war" and when Gulliver attempted to tell one of them what war was the Houyhnhnm "found it gave him a disturbance in his mind, to which he was wholly a stranger before. He thought his ears being used to such abominable words, might by degrees admit them with less detestation.")

And we can keep in mind how much of a people is reflected in their language. "All languages," writes linguist Mario Pei, "are potentially equal, but the extent and range of a language's vocabulary reflect the state of civilization of its speakers, the activities in which they indulge, the material objects they create and use, the abstract concepts they evolve."

THE ESKIMOS' language, for instance, is filled with many words to capture the differences in varieties of the substance we describe simply as "snow." Arabic includes lists of nouns and adjectives dealing with the (to our eyes) scarcely noticeable differences among camels.

In our language, alas, our resourcefulness is most evident in the skyscraping list of synonyms we have created in one area: lucre, wampum, rhino, simoleons, jack, scratch, long green, shekel, greenback, boodle, hay, chips, fin, gelt, chink, dubs, needful, wherewithal, wad, velvet, palf, juice, sawbuck, "G," "C," bankroll, kale, cabbage, lettuce, bread, dough... (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

Bob Lahey's column

Grim prospects for GOP in 1974

There are omens of the 1974 congressional elections to be read in the major topic of discussion brought up to visiting congressmen by the press and the public — Watergate, of course.

Those omens do not augur well for Republican candidates.

When Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-12th, appeared at the Nike base in Arlington Heights this week, the prime topic on the mind of the press corps was Watergate.

Both Crane and Rep. Samuel H. Young, R-10th, declare that Watergate is what people in their districts want to discuss.

WHILE NEITHER Crane nor Young is remotely connected with the national scandal, it appears now that the effect of Watergate on their reelection campaigns is going to be comparable to the effect that the slating of controversial state's attorney Edward V. Hanrahan by the Democrats in 1972 had on other Democratic candidates.

Just as Crane and Young, in varying degrees, are critical of the Nixon administration over the Watergate mess, so were the Democrats' top statewide candidates, in varying degrees, opposed to the slating of Hanrahan.

After he was added to the ticket, the three top candidates, Paul Simon (for governor), Roman Pucinski (for the U. S. Senate), and Michael Howlett (for secretary of state) found that they were unable to discuss hardly anything in public appearances but the Hanrahan candidacy.

It was only after they convinced Mayor Daley and the Cook County lawmakers of this dilemma that Hanrahan was removed from the ticket.

THEIR IS, however, no way that Crane and Young or other Republican candidates can "unslate" the Watergate issue.

It will not disappear before November, 1974, and most political observers are convinced that it will work against Republican candidates across the nation.

Last year Crane attracted nearly 73 per cent of the vote in gaining reelection. Persons close to this campaign are figuring that the effect of Watergate, coupled with the normal slippage of the administration's party in an off-year election, will reduce their vote total by about 10 per cent, for openers.

For Crane, whose victory margin approached 100,000 votes, that kind of slippage is tolerable. Young, however, defeated former representative Abner J. Mikva by approximately 3,000 votes.

Mikva is certain to challenge Young again and it can be expected that he will dwell long and hard — especially from his vantage point as chairman of Gov. Daniel Walker's Ethics Commission — on Watergate. If the Crane camp's estimate of the Watergate toll is anywhere near correct, it could be fatal to Young's congressional career.

IN A REPORT to the Herald from Washington the other day, Greg Kaczewski outlined the viewpoints of both Crane and Young on the Watergate affair.

Neither is prepared to accuse President Nixon of anything worse than poor judgement, but Young apparently is more eager to defend the President and his aides John Erlichman and H. R. Haldeman.

There are undoubtedly a great many of his constituents who will agree with Young's opinion, which may well be correct and which are without question sincere.

But it is the skeptical and not-so-dedicated Republican voters who will be critical to Republican candidates in marginal districts next year. And that is the problem that the leader of his party has created for Sam Young.

Public confused over cause of inflation

Before me I have the editorial page of the July 24 Herald in which Ray Cromley discussed the risks facing the economy with regard to rising prices. Perhaps Mr. Cromley's article is a disservice to the economists mentioned therein, or perhaps the economists have done the disservice themselves. Whatever may be the case, I disagree with the conclusions of the article and the problems mentioned by C. Jackson Grayson, Jr. of Phase 2.

I would like to start my rebuttal with the warning of Thomas Jefferson, also a noted economist: "To preserve our independence, we must not let our leaders load us with perpetual debt. We must make our election between economy and liberty, or profusion and servitude."

Actually, although everyone is deeply concerned about inflation, most Americans do not know what it is. When the cost of living jumps, as it does now every month, the mass media wring their hands over "inflation." There is much talk about greedy businessmen and selfish unions. You may select your own villain; if you are a Republican it is labor unions; if you are a Democrat it is big business. Virtually nobody in the mass media even names the real culprit, and so the American people are confused over what causes inflation and frustrated over how to stop it.

THE FACT is that what we are all suffering from is inflation of the money supply. Thus, neither unions nor businessmen cause inflation because neither can create money. While you are led to believe that inflation is the rising cost of living or the wage-price spiral, this is simply not true. The definition of inflation is "an increase in the amount of currency in circulation, resulting in a relatively sharp and sudden fall in its value and rise in prices; it may be caused by an increase in the volume of paper money issued or gold mined." This means that the cost of living rises as a result of increasing (inflating) the money supply. Any student passing his entrance exam will tell you that this is the association theory, not the cause and effect theory. (i.e. Pumpkins and watermelons mature together (association) but one does not cause the other (cause and effect).)

As for prices, imagine you are at an auction and you have ten dollars in your pocket to spend. Suddenly a government official bursts in carrying a suitcase of newly printed ten dollar bills and proclaims that each and every person there is now 200 dollars richer. Surely you realize that the price of the articles being auctioned have suddenly increased also.

Dr. Franz Pick is widely regarded as the world's foremost expert on currency and gold. Dr. Pick studied at the Universities of Leipzig and Hamburg and the Sorbonne in Paris. He wrote his Ph.D. dissertation on currency devaluation. Dr. Pick writes of Nixon's devaluation as follows: "The two most recent devaluations alone amount to about 18%. The gross total public and private debt in the United States is about $5 1/2 trillion. So these devaluations wiped out more than a trillion dollars of savings. Investors who bought bonds, life insurance, annuities or similar things were simply cheated without compensation. If we continue to do this, we are going to ruin the United States — and we may drift into dictatorship. To talk about the industrial power of the United States is just bunk. If the currency doesn't work, the country cannot work. The destiny of the currency is, and will be, the destiny of the nation."

The worst thing about the recent ten per cent devaluation of our dollar, I believe, is that it didn't shock the American people. Americans still don't appreciate the gravity of the worsening situation with respect to their currency. No one yet has called for any of the major steps which would solve the intertwined problems of inflation, B.O.P. deficits (balance of payment) and international monetary chaos. The solutions are: 1. drastically cut federal spending. 2. balance the federal budget and control the creation of bank credit so that presses that print unbacked money will grind to a halt. 3. gradually re-establish the convertibility of the dollar for both foreigners and Americans. 4. remove federal regulatory agencies off the backs of American producers so that we can once more outproduce the world. 5. stop the union enforced feather-bedding and related anti-production practices which are helping to make American products more expensive and less competitive in the world market.

IS IT ANY WONDER that wage and price controls have proved to be a joke? Richard Nixon once said that wage and price controls put on at a time when you are increasing the money supply is like clamping a lid on a boiling cauldron; you either have to take the lid off and release the steam or the cauldron will explode. He was right, of course. With Phase 3 the steam was released and sure enough prices climbed like a Saturn rocket. When Americans deluded by the mass media once again began demanding controls, the President obliged with Phase 3 1/2. When we finally feel Phase 4, you can bet your bottom devalued dollar that it will not call for balancing the Budget — the one thing that would stop inflation. Increasingly we are being told that our only way out of the international monetary maze is through the establishment of a world currency under the International Monetary Fund, a subsidiary of the United Nations which reports directly to the U.N. Economic and Social Council. In 1953 Mr. Norman Dodd, chief investigator for the Reece Congressional Committee was told by Rowan Galter, then president of the Ford Foundation, that it was working "to so alter American society that it could be comfortably merged with that of the Soviet Union." Certainly our society, particularly our economy, is being so altered. Much progress has been made in that direction in the past year through taxes, inflation and regulation, while at the same time, the Establishment is using the U.S. Government and our giant Establishment corporations to upgrade the power of the Soviet economy to make it possible for such a merger. Not surprisingly, the Rockefellers latest and most prestigious address is "Number One Karl Marx Square, Moscow."

John Maynard Keynes, the infamous Keynesian economist, boasts that "Lenin was certainly right. There is no subtler, more sure means of overturning the existing basis of society than to debauch their currency. The process engages all the hidden forces of economic law on the side of destruction."

If the government admitted that dilution of the money supply, by itself, was the cause of inflation, it would be admitting that government is the inflation culprit. If the government admitted that, the logical cure for inflation would immediately suggest itself to millions of puzzled, frustrated and plundered taxpayers. They would demand a drastic reduction in government spending and put a halt to the flooding of the economy with deficit money. Moreover, in such an eventuality, the government's controls on the economy would no longer make sense to even the economically ignorant. To counterfeit is to make an image of the real thing. The Federal Reserve has been "legally" counterfeiting paper money since 1933, instead of coining gold and silver. This process would not be legal if it was not sanctioned by official rules. But if the government is forced to stop diluting the money supply with the legally counterfeited money it spends in enormous amounts, it would be reducing its own power. And no government of self-interested politicians is likely to do that.

The plain, frightening, obscene truth is that our government is unalterably committed to an inflationary policy, and has no intention of reverting to a policy of sound money that would curtail its growing power. In the book, The Constitution of Liberty, written by F. A. Hayek, one of history's great economists, it is stated: "Those who wish to preserve freedom should recognize, however, that inflation is probably the most important single factor in that vicious circle wherein a kind of government action makes more and more government control necessary."

While the mass media prints countless articles regarding inflation, the majority are usually too shallow and misleading. A like analogy is if a child tries to put out a burning log, he would throw water on the flame, while the flame is not the cause, but a by-product of a burning timber. Mr. Cromley and his so-called experts would not make the Campfire Girls in this case of economics.

REDWOOD CITY, Calif. — Ampex Corp., the company that brings you tape recorded music and the instant TV replay, almost went bankrupt 18 months ago.

Today its top executives say the "New Ampex" is on the road back.

During the fiscal year ended April 28, Ampex had a $3.8 million profit — compared with a loss of $3.7 million the previous fiscal year.

Alexander M. Poniatoff, a former Russian Navy Air Force pilot, founded Ampex in 1944 to produce radar equipment. The name was made by adding "ex" for excellent to his initials.

WHEN WORLD WAR II ended, the little electronics firm on the San Francisco peninsula picked up magnetic recording technology in occupied Germany and set about making recorders.

In October, 1947, Bing Crosby listened to the first recorder built by Ampex. He liked it and bought it to prerecord his radio show, a technique that quickly spread through radio broadcasting. Crosby Enterprises helped promote Ampex.

In 1956 the company introduced the video tape recorder. It became indispensable to the television industry, making possible broadcasts across time zones and the instant replay enjoyed by sports fans.

In the fall of 1971, San Francisco financier Richard Elkus, an Ampex board member, became concerned about a relatively modest loss the previous fiscal year which seemed to be continuing. He investigated and uncovered a situation which showed that the losses were mounting at an alarming rate.

WHEN THE EXTENT of the financial disaster became known it was mostly on the basis of Elkus' prestige that Ampex creditors gave the company time to save itself. There was a general housecleaning throughout management. Arthur H. Hausman came in as president. Elkus became the full-time "top policy officer."

Unprofitable fields such as the home tape recorder and broadcast transmitters were dropped.

Ampex had gone into a number of expensive royalty contracts for music to use on its tapes. This alone accounted for many millions of dollars loss. That division was shaken up.

The company continued making tape recorders and automated tape-playing equipment for broadcasting. It also kept its computer storage equipment lines, recording devices such as those used in Skylab, and the music tape business.

AMPEX STOCK, which hit a high of 49 7/8 in 1970, slipped to a low of 31 1/2 earlier this year. It is now selling a little higher.

A year ago, says Elkus, Ampex was in "a catastrophic situation . . . We had no agreement with our bank." He is not making predictions for profits this year but told a meeting of analysts recently that "It is going to be a good year — and good year is defined as a better year than last year."

Seventy per cent of the products Ampex now manufactures did not exist three years ago. One development is a system for recycling music tapes. Instead of forcing retailers to discount and lose money on music that doesn't sell, Ampex takes the tape back, electronically wipes away the music, changes the tune, and relabels the tape.

The U.S. tape market is about 108 million tapes a year, of which 25 million are Ampex.

Borg-Warner Corp.

Borg-Warner Corp. reported record second quarter earnings of $16.6 million, or 96 cents a share, up 15 per cent from $16.2 million, or 83 cents a share, in the same period last year.

Sales increased 16 per cent to a record $39.7 million from $33.9 million in the second quarter of 1972.

During the first half, earnings were $15.5 million, or $1.82 a share, up 24 per cent from $28.6 million, or $1.46 a share, during the same period last year. Sales increased 17 per cent to $75.6 million from $64.7 million in the first half of 1972.

"Our backlog of unfilled orders is an all-time high and more than 50 per cent above last year at this time," said James F. Bore, president and chief executive officer. "This is a solid indication of the economy's continuing strength and is one of the reasons we believe our third quarter will be an excellent one compared with that of last year." The company has a Des Plaines facility.

ComEd rate hike tied to ecology

The Illinois Commerce Commission (ICC) will keep a watchful eye on Commonwealth Edison Co.'s environmental programs as the hearings for a service rate increase continue this summer.

At least, that's Illinois Atty. Gen. William Scott's request. He asked this week that the ICC require an assurance of a continuing pollution control program by the utility before granting a rate increase.

Edison is seeking service rate boosts which would average 12.5 per cent. Hearings on this request will continue before the ICC Aug. 20 at the State of Illinois Building, Chicago.

SCOTT has intervened twice before in Edison rate-increase hearings. In 1969, the company was granted a lower service rate increase than it requested, and the boost was contingent upon pollution control programs to be guaranteed by the electric utility. Then in 1972, the firm was granted a reduced rate increase, provided that it continue antipollution programs.

"A great issue was made of this a couple of years ago, and at that time the commission handed down a decision requiring us to follow a specific pollution control program," said company spokesman Clem Stava. He says the company is involved in a variety of antipollution projects, including an experimental gasification project and sulphur removal systems. The company's $4 billion construction program for the next five years includes more than $300,000 in environmental programs, he said.

ENVIRONMENTAL ISSUES also have been brought before the ICC in a separate case involving Edison. The commission conducted a series of hearings this year to investigate advertising policies and practices of Illinois public utilities.

The Citizens for a Better Environment (CBE) organization submitted a statement to the ICC, denouncing Edison as "environmentally reckless." The promotion of all-electric homes will add to summer and peak loads and will aggravate what may become a critical shortage of fuel oil, CBE said. The group asks that Edison be required to prove the benefits to customers before its advertising costs are included in the company rate base, and that all advertising should be banned.

Northern Illinois Gas

Northern Illinois Gas Co. reported earnings per share for the 12 months ending June 30, 1973 of 83¢ on net income of $41.9 million, as compared with 82.82 on net income of $39.5 million for the same period one year ago. Revenues increased to $444 million from $399.1 million, according to C. J. Gauthier, NI-Gas chairman and president. Results for the six months ending June 30, show earnings per share of $2.82 in 1973, up from $2.74 in 1972. Similarly, net income has increased to $37.8 million on revenues of $281.3 million.

DeSoto Inc.

DeSoto, Inc., Des Plaines, reported second quarter sales of $73,910,342 were 12 per cent greater than for the same period of last year. Net earnings for the quarter were $2,933,448, an improvement of 130.7 per cent. Earnings per share for the second quarter of this year were 54 cents compared to 24 cents last year.

Net sales for the quarter increased in both the Chemical and the Home Furnishings Group, and in each product category within the groups. The increases ranged from 2 per cent in Furniture to 78 per cent in Wallcoverings. DeSoto attributes the improved profitability to the sales increases and to the continued success of operating efficiencies experienced in the first quarter.

Sales for the first six months were $136,330,544, up 14.3 per cent from last year. Net earnings for the first half of 1973 were $4,308,099, an increase of 127.9 per cent from last year's $1,800,000. Earnings per share for the first six months were 81 cents compared to 38 cents for the same period last year. Income before federal income taxes was

THE QUALITY OF life is hard to define and even harder to improve. But we need a means of formulating an index to characterize the common good, says the most recent issue of Argonne University's publication.

We've been working toward satisfaction in several areas, Argonne says. This includes material goods and services as well as the quality of the material environment. Some environmentalists have tried to push down the production of goods and services in an effort to serve

AA meetings open Mondays, Saturdays

Two "open" meetings of Alcoholics Anonymous are scheduled each week at Alexian Brothers Medical Center. The meetings, at 8:30 p.m. Saturdays and 8:30 p.m. Mondays, allow interested persons to learn about AA.

These meetings are different from "closed" meetings to which a person must be invited and must be willing to become involved. No audience participation is required at an open meeting.

The meetings are in Stritch Hall on the ground floor of the main hospital building at 800 Blesterfield Rd.

Universal Oil gets pollution contract

Universal Oil Products Co.'s (UOP) new Fluid Sciences Division has obtained a contract from Green Bay Packaging Inc., Green Bay, Wis., for the paper board industries' first application of reverse osmosis equipment to control pollution.

The equipment consists of a reverse osmosis unit with a 28,000 gallon per day capacity. It will become an integral part of Green Bay Packaging's pollution abatement program for cleaning waste effluent from its Green Bay manufacturing plant.

The reverse osmosis unit will become their cause. Delicate tradeoffs are needed to work toward a quality of life that is most beneficial to all, specifically in the development of a national energy policy.

This critical approach is needed as Congress moves toward a compromise bill to allow construction of the trans-Alaska pipeline project. Here, the material production takes precedence over the environmental concerns as legislators may vote to eliminate any environmental curbs on the project. Translating a vague notion of the quality of life into a workable plan which allows for the preservation of the environment can still be accomplished in this project.

WHAT CAN YOU do to help conserve energy resources and improve our environment?

Plenty, says the Wheeling Township Republican Organization in a new booklet entitled "Environment and Energy." The purpose of the booklet is to suggest practical steps individuals can take to help solve ecological problems.

To curb air pollution organize a car pool for transportation to school or work; keep your car well-tuned; and buy non-leaded gasoline if your car can run on lower octane levels. The use of low phosphate or no phosphate detergents will cut down on water pollution. And leaky plumbing should be repaired to avoid waste.

Recycle newspapers, glass and cans at various recycling centers in this area. Return extra clothes hangers to the local dry cleaner. Buy beverages in returnable bottles whenever possible.

You can save money by limiting energy consumption. Each degree above 70 degrees will increase your electric bill by about 3 per cent. Your air conditioning bill will increase about 5 per cent for each degree you maintain your home below 78 degrees.

When you're using a dishwasher, clothes washer or dryer, always run a full load. Turn off electric appliances when they're not in use.

The booklet has many more convenient suggestions for conservation-conscious consumers. For a copy, call the Wheeling Township Republican Organization at 259-0730.

TINY INTRUDER'S poisonous South American fire ants, are on the march in the 10 southeastern states. A University of Southern California professor, Dr. Findlay E. Russell, is working on a first aid program to treat the insect's painful sting.

Russell is conducting research in USC's neurological research center at the school of medicine to develop an antivenin for the thousands of persons stung by fire ants. These pesky insects have infested more than 20 million acres in Alabama, Georgia, Mississippi and other southern states. Severe reactions to the venom of the fire ant are common in persons stung repeatedly, and deaths due to allergic sensitivity have been reported.

The threat presented by the fire ant is twofold. First, it builds a mound 18 inches high as hard as cement. Machinery blades are easily broken on these habitats. Mowing and harvesting operations have been curtailed in some areas due to the antics of the insects.

Second, the aggressive little creatures have multiplied and spread to parks, playgrounds and other public areas. Farm workers will not go into the fields infested by the ant.

A nationwide program to study the fire ant, launched by the U.S. Department of Agriculture, has run out of money. A recent meeting of experts in agriculture, biology, pharmacology and related fields, including some pesticide manufacturers, brought about an agreement to pool research efforts.

Local programs are needed to control the spread of the fire ants, says Russell. One insecticide will destroy fire ants at all stages of development. But it is virtually impossible to annihilate the ants in their underground habitat, he says.

CLEANUP GRANTS awarded by the federal government in the fiscal year ended June 30 reached a whopping $3.1 billion for water pollution control programs, reports Commerce Clearing House.

The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency awards were made to help states and cities build or modernize some 3,500 wastewater treatment plants. This brings to $4.4 billion the amount which EPA has earmarked for sewage construction projects since the agency was established in December, 1970.

Approximately one half the $3.1 billion granted in fiscal 1973 was covered by amendments to the federal water pollution control act.

The federal agency shelled out a total of $3.3 billion for all its programs in fiscal 1973, more than three times the $990 million awarded in fiscal 1972.

SUPPLEMENTAL WATER pollution control grants were recently announced for the six state area comprising Region V of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency. In letters to the governors of Illinois, Wisconsin, Ohio, Indiana, Michigan and Minnesota, deputy regional administrator Valdas Adamkus said, "These supplemental funds are for the specific purpose of furthering activity directly related to waste load allocation studies."

The supplemental grant to Illinois of $20,000 brings to the total grants for fiscal 1973 to $718,300.

PROBLEM-SOLVERS in the environmental field will meet this fall at Philadelphia's Civic Center. The four-day International Pollution Engineering Congress and Exposition will begin Oct. 22. The program will include helpful hints for industry in solving environmental problems.

TRAVELER'S WARNING: any tourists who bring back-mounted armadillos, turtles and iguanas are doing so illegally, warn federal authorities. They say much of this illegal importing is pulled off by Illinois residents.

These species are protected by the Lacey Act in the U.S. Armadillos and iguanas are protected in Mexico. Some turtles are on the endangered species list. The Lacey Act automatically provides protection for any species protected by another country.

Lieberman Realtors is interested in people!

Lieberman Realtors is an established, growing firm on the move. Since its inception in the spring of 1971, Lieberman now has two offices, a new office and plaza under construction, has founded Video Homes of America, pioneering the use of instant replay TV in the field and has over 65 brokers nationwide belonging to its Video Homes buyer referral service.

Because the firm's philosophy of business is highly service-oriented to the client, as well as modern marketing concepts, the firm is doing a phenomenal business. Lieberman Realtors sold over $4 million of homes in its first year of operation and should top $8 million this year. A large majority of the firm's listings sell in one month or less. Lieberman Realtors hold an incredible record on the ratio of listings sold to listings taken.

Future plans include growth and expansion as well as the use of new concepts and ideas to help service clients. Lieberman Realtors is 100 per cent service-oriented, in fact their theme is "Good Old Fashioned Service," and is highly selective of the personnel it hires. An elaborate training system is utilized which involves video tape, class, conference, and multi-media presentations. Lieberman encourages prospective selling clients to stop at homes with his signs to ask owners what they think of his services, because he knows an excellent response will be obtained. "Our best advertising is our satisfied clients."

The Plaza will be a different concept than any in the area. It will feature custom and boutique shops as well as professional offices such as doctors, attorneys and accountants. The Plaza will also have extensive landscaping as well as the latest in the most attractive materials and design.

The staff of Lieberman Realtors are concerned, interested citizens who care about you, your community and your home. Many staff members hold offices and are active in many civic groups.

Lieberman Realtors encourages all of the staff to attend Graduate Realtors Institute in Peoria, as well as Realtor Board seminars and functions.

Stan Lieberman's instant replay videotape service, begun in early 1972, enables buyers to take an armchair tour of a prospective area. A salesman brings his camera and video recorder out to a home, focuses on the features of the residence and gives a little talk on its merits. Back in the office, clients breeze through homes listed by the firm. Lieberman is a pioneer in the use of this equipment to market real estate.

A window's style should contribute to house beauty inside and out. Today's wide style range allows a choice of windows to suit every architectural decor. Examples are: bows and bays for Colonial homes; double-hungs for traditional; casements and sliders for contemporary.

Handy removable grilles are available with all ponderosa pine window styles. They give an elegant small-pane appearance, and lift off the glass for easy window washing. There's just one large pane to clean, instead of many small ones.

Annen & Busse Realtors announce $23 million half year sales

At their semi-annual sales meeting held recently at the Howard Johnson Motor Lodge in Palatine, Annen & Busse, Inc. Realtors announced a record-breaking $23 million in real estate sales in the first half of this year. This is a 20.7 per cent increase over the same period last year.

Featured speaker at the breakfast meeting was Tom Brinkoetter, president of Tom Brinkoetter & Co., Decatur, a leading real estate firm in southern Illinois. Mr. Brinkoetter is a member of the board of governors of the Realtors Institute of Illinois and is the exclusive member of the Homes for Living Network in that area.

Brinkoetter's remarks were based on the importance of a positive attitude, when working with the public and in living with oneself. He noted the many changes which have occurred in the real estate field over the past 15 years and said only positive attitudes could have brought about these changes.

Other highlights of the meeting included a first anniversary celebration for Annen & Busse's newest office, located in Schaumburg. With a staff of nine associates, this office has produced almost $5 million in sales volume during that period.

Pearl Dombrowski and Jane Jackson, serving from the firm's Arlington Heights office, and Del Sears from their Mount Prospect location, were honored for becoming the newest 1973 Million Dollar Sales Club members during the month of June, and all the associates who reached their personal goals in the first half of 1973 were recognized by the assembly.

Donald G. Heidorn, vice-president and general sales manager for Annen & Busse, attributes the firm's successful year to various factors. All of Annen & Busse's sales production is handled in cooperation with other realtors through the MAP Multiple Listing Service locally and through the Homes for Living Network on both a regional and national basis.

In conjunction with the Homes for Living Network, Annen & Busse participates in national tele-communications system which allows the transferring client instant visual contact with a broker in another city, giving him the opportunity to familiarize himself with a new area before visiting it.

We think your home deserves special selling effort. Do You?

There is a difference. All real estate firms are not created equal! You want special selling effort that gets your home sold fast and for top price.

This calls for more and better merchandising. Such as:

Professional color photography of the outside and inside of your home that presells buyers on the property. Other brokers try and sell homes from 2" x 3" black and white printer's reproductions. We use six full color Kodak silk prints mounted in an album (you get the album after we sell your home).

A multi-page professionally printed brochure devoted only to your home. Again, sharp, crisp exterior and interior photos that highlight the best features (you get to check the copy before it's printed). These impressive brochures are mailed to over 300 major corporations and to over 650 RELO brokers across the country.

Our Showcase of Homes in each of our five offices will feature an 8 x 10 full color Kodak silk print of your home until sold.

And these are just a few of the many extra things we do to sell your home. If you think your home deserves special selling effort, stop by our nearest office. Or call and one of our Sales Associates will give you full details and answer all of your questions.

Best of all — STARCK EXTRA SELLING EFFORT costs you nothing.

A place to live only begins with finding the right home.

We work where we live.

Village Square REALTORS

Since we live right here, we can tell you about the neighborhoods, the schools, shopping, and everything else from trash collection times to where the freshest vegetables are sold. Things that help turn a "new home" into a "new life."

If you're looking for a home, but you really want a place to live, come to Village Square. We can help you find what you're looking for.

You've heard the old expression, "a house is not a home." Well, it also follows that a home is not necessarily "a place to live."

We realize that fact. And so, when you come to Village Square, we do more than just find you the right home.

Do-It-Yourself

If your toilet is leaky...

Noisy toilet tanks are a nuisance. They also are expensive. The noise often indicates a continuous run of water.

But the problem is not a disaster. Parts are easy to find, cost little and are not too much trouble to install. Often you can figure out what to do just through observation.

The continuous flow of water into the bowl is the most common problem. Start by opening the tank on the back of the toilet. Lift the top off carefully and set it down where it will not be damaged. You may find it difficult to replace broken top and could end up buying an entire toilet.

WATER WILL enter the bowl one of two ways. It will enter through the overflow tube — the pipe that stands vertical in the tank and is open at the top.

Or the water enters through the opening in the bottom of the tank, an opening kept closed with a rubber ball.

Check the level of the water. If it is below the top of the overflow pipe the problem is with the rubber ball that fits into the valve that releases the water into the bowl.

Then turn off the water supply so you can work in an empty tank. If you cannot turn off the water supply, keep the tank from filling by keeping the float rod up. The float rod is a metal rod with metal float ball attached to it.

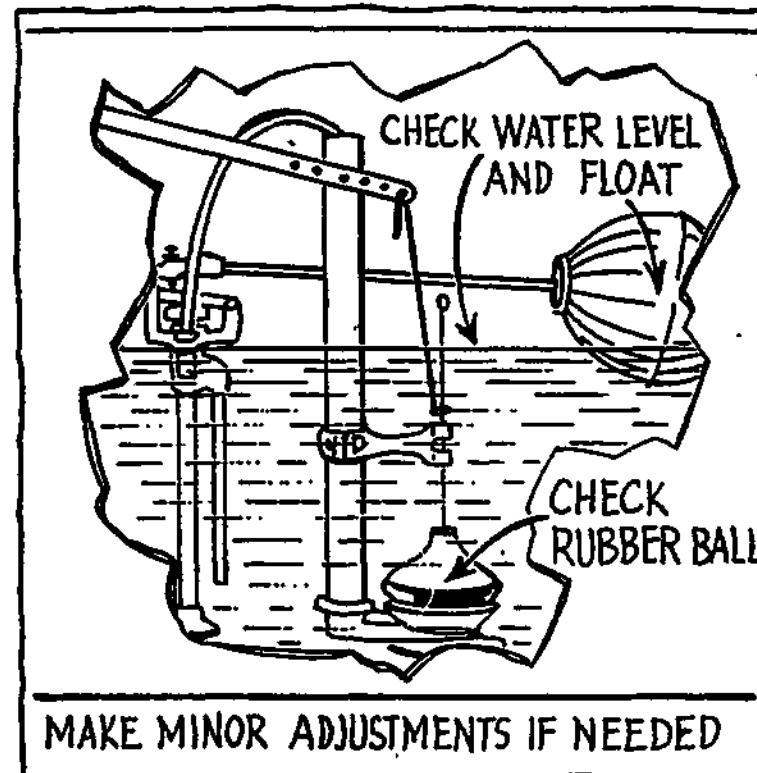

WHEN THE water rises, it raises the rod. When the rod is horizontal it closes the water intake valve. Hold up the rod with a piece of string tied to a stick. Place the stick across the top of the tank.

Work the handle a few times to see if the rubber ball is sealing itself properly or shifting to the side. A bracket fastened to the overflow pipe guides the rod that holds the ball. This may get out of line if the screws holding the bracket loosen. Adjust and tighten the screws.

If the trouble isn't here, check the condition of the rubber ball. You may find that it is worn or damaged. Replace with a new one. Rub the valve seat where the ball rests with fine emery cloth or steel wool to get rid of rough spots that may be causing the ball to wear.

IF THE WATER level is above the overflow tube, then it is entering the bowl this way. Check the float rod. It may be going too high. Bend the rod slightly so that the ball is lower down than it was. Check the float to see that it isn't leaking and taking in water. This will destroy its buoyancy. Replace it with a new one if necessary.

Infrequently the trouble may be with

THE MANUFACTURERS of gas fired domestic incinerators have succeeded in their efforts to have their products recognized as environmentally acceptable by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency EAA. Because modern gas incinerators, which control smoke and odor, were omitted by an oversight from previous EPA directives, many city, state and federal officials responsible for clean air enforcement interpreted the omission as a ban on the use of this equipment, according to Harry A. Paynter, president of the Gas Appliance Manufacturers Association. In a new directive to all regional offices of EPA, however, the federal agency has clarified its position and stated: "Based upon the data available, it appears that the domestic gas-fired incinerators tested (to American National standards) will be environmentally acceptable if they are installed properly, kept in proper adjustment, and operated in conformance to the manufacturers' instructions supplied to the purchaser when the unit is sold."

The report adds that available data "indicate that few units are operated in a poor fashion." Persons wishing to obtain a copy of the new EPA directive on gas incinerators can do so by contacting the nearest regional office of EPA or by writing to the Gas Incinerator Division, Gas Appliance Manufacturers Association, 1901 North Fort Myer Drive, Arlington, Va. 22209.

NETWORK COURIER SERVICE, the Los Angeles based company that sends couriers across the nation each night as personal escorts for urgent material has opened a Chicago office. Pickup of material within a half-hour is available twenty-four hours a day by calling 297-7161. Delivery in the destination city will be made no later than 8 a.m. Material sent to Washington, D.C. by the 6:45 a.m. courier will be delivered in that city no later than 10:30 a.m. Once the material is in the hands of Network Courier it is never out of sight except for the time when the aircraft is

FEDERAL CRIME INSURANCE is available to Illinois residents and businessmen. The low-cost insurance, currently available in 12 states and Washington, D.C., offers protection against robbery and burglary for both residential and commercial premises. The program is underwritten by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) and continues to be serviced in Illinois by Insurance Company of North America (INA). George K. Bernstein, administrator of the Federal Insurance Administration (FIA), said, "Federal Crime Insurance is an effective means to afford adequate protection to everyone who needs it. It is particularly important that the program is being offered through the nation's insurance agents and brokers, representing a significant cooperation between government and the private sector of our economy."

According to INA president Frank E. Raab, Jr., public response to the program has been disappointing, even though the insurance has been offered in most of the participating states for nearly two years.

NEW CHICAGO familiarization programs have been recently launched by the Chicago Convention and Tourism Bureau, Inc. Designed to highlight Chicago history, cultural and entertainment attractions, the schedule includes a briefing by bureau staff and tours of the city, said bureau president Frank Sain. Among the host hotels were Howard Johnson's in Palatine and Regency Hyatt in Rosemont.

ANTIQUE TRUCK and bits of nostalgia — these will be the top attractions at the Aug. 17-18 50th anniversary celebration at Chicago Kenworth Inc., in Addison. The show will be held at 1768 Armitage Ct.

I'm Ben Pekin.
My company built Baybrook Park Condominiums. When people tell me they love what they see here, I tell them they should love what they don't see.

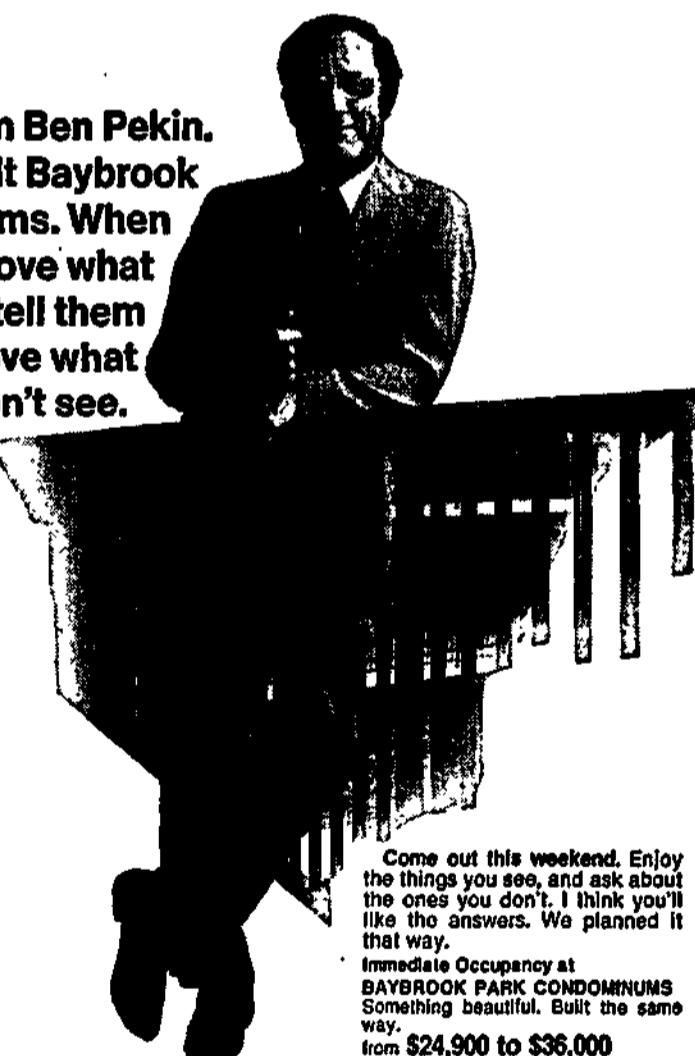

There's nothing wrong with people getting excited about extra large living and dining rooms, or 47 foot balconies, or big closets, or kitchens with a window. Those are the kinds of amenities that have made Baybrook Park Condominiums sell so well. I don't have to point them out to anybody. They speak for themselves.

But there are other things to look for when you're buying a condominium home. Things that will affect your pleasure and ease of maintenance while you live there, and your resale price when you move.

Consider my checklist below.

Construction: We built Baybrook Park Condominium with concrete and steel construction throughout. Which may not mean anything to you until you talk to your insurance broker and find out it means lower fire insurance rates.

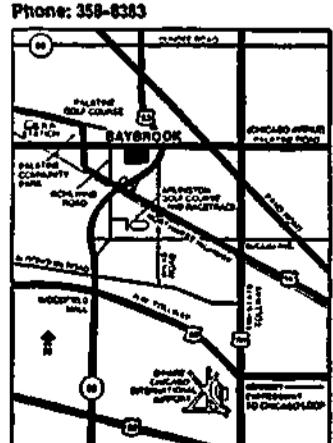

We build with the finest materials... or we don't build. Makes for a costlier building. And a more valuable one, too. Both for us to sell you, and for you to sell to someone else.

Come out this weekend. Enjoy the things you see, and ask about the ones you don't. I think you'll like the answers. We planned that way.

Suburban Living

ESPECIALLY FOR THE FAMILY

How suburbia lives

Home decor that's thoroughly modern

by FRAN HECKART

Barefoot and beaming, Iris Stone ushered me through the bright orange double doors of her Arlington Heights home.

First glance offers the impression of glass and chrome mellowed by animal skin rugs in the entryway, strategically placed antiques and many large, well-tended plants. A wall of windows accents the open, airy living-dining room area.

There's no doubt that this is the home of a casual, contemporary woman with more than just a flair for decorating.

Iris prefers crisp, clean lines and a feeling of openness. Although contemporary decors leave many traditionalists cold, Mrs. Stone says that her first and only love has been modern interiors.

A decisive woman, Iris has a keen eye for selecting a house, furnishings and accessories to achieve "just the right look."

A HOME BUILDER might have nightmares about women like her, Iris concedes, but she insists on quality and exact design. Although the exterior of the Stone home differs little from others on the subdivision block, there have been drastic changes in its interior design.

"I practically re-did or changed everything in the builder's original design," declared Iris.

She insisted on oak floors in the living-dining room area. "Hardwood floors are very scarce in new homes," she said. Just as scarce are the natural red brick floors she chose for the kitchen.

Sliding glass patio doors in the original design were rejected for large windows. Iris felt that the doors would only encourage excess traffic through the dining area.

Iris refers to her decorating talent as simply "a natural feeling for design." And although she has done a few freelance jobs, Mrs. Stone thinks that her home and business are enough to handle. She and husband Lowell own and operate The Pottery Barrel in Barrington and have future plans to open more.

CONTACTS through The Pottery Barrel have afforded Iris an almost free reign in the European market for home furnishings. However, she never misses a local art fair and often frequents flea markets in search of home accessories.

A collector by her own admission, Iris has almost every available space filled with an assortment of art forms. Ceramics, teakettles, ashtrays, sculptures, strawflowers all blend in the home's decor.

The free style, natural look of the home is not accidental and is achieved with excellent taste.

"Things that are expensive or cost the most are not necessarily good," said Iris. "It's possible to do a nice room on a limited budget. The important thing is knowing where to cut corners."

Choosing primarily pieces that can be used and re-used is one important asset. Mrs. Stone remarked that she prefers originals and will wait until she finds the exact one or "can afford the real thing."

ON THE OTHER hand, Iris creates professional looking wall hangings by stretching fabric over artist's frames.

"It's important to tie a room together," said Iris. "A lot of amateur decorators get the basic pieces, then lack the right finishing touch."

Unfortunately the right touch is simply a look that you notice when it's lacking and is almost impossible to pinpoint or describe when you have achieved it.

There is no standard color scheme in the large, open living room of the Stone home. Large, shag area rugs in black and white geometric designs are placed over the dark oak floors. A black leather sofa and chair further enhance the modern design.

Mrs. Stone chose neutral colored draperies for the entire house. "They will blend with any individual room decor," she said. "But having the drapes the same gives the house more continuity from the outside."

TO SOFTEN the lines in the living-dining area, Iris chose a large buffet and secretary from Mexico.

"The heavier pieces add warmth and depth to the crisp lines of the contemporary motif," she commented.

Iris selected a comfy, sink-in sofa for the family room. Covered in blue denim, "to withstand dogs and kids," the three-piece sectional is positioned around a red brick fireplace accented with rough-hewn cedar. Red and yellow accent pieces add sparks of color to the low key, comfortable room.

Although a very contemporary individual, Iris likes a touch of the traditional and recently purchased an antique clock for the mantel.

"All mantels should have a clock," she smiled. Just as she smiled a few moments later as she patted the globed penny bubblegum machine in the upstairs hallway. "I was going to save this until Christmas, but everybody needs one of these."

IRIS HAS four children, Allyson, 13, Melanie 12, Amy, 8, and Elizabeth, 4. The two older children have their own bedrooms decorated to individual preference.

"This is the red, white and blue room," said Iris as she led the way to Melanie's room. She painted supergraphics on the white walls. Unable to find the right chest, Iris chose a campaign unit, took off the brassy trim and added white knobs on the red and blue drawers. A red bean bag chair offers an additional decorative but functional touch.

The "safari room" is Allyson's domain. Animal posters dominate the walls along with a cork board tacked with more posters. Since there wasn't enough wall space, Allyson had a large orange circle painted on the ceiling of "her den."

Although the Stones have lived in their home a little over a year, Iris says that she is "constantly changing." If she decides a piece is not right, she simply sells it.

Perhaps the secret of Iris' talents lies with her positive attitude. Excellent taste combined with an innate feeling for design may be only fundamentals. To these Iris adds energy and style with her constant arranging and rearranging. It's not likely that a decor will become stale or dull when "there's always room for change."

UNPOLISHED RED brick floors are a natural for the rustic simplicity of Iris Stone's kitchen. Unadorned dark wood cabinets surround the work area, and a light butcher block table enhances the decor. Clay pots, wooden utensils and hanging plants decorate the walls. In winter floors are a little chilly for bare feet.

DESIGNED ESPECIALLY for kids, the Lowell Stone family room has been decorated to withstand dogs, spills and clutter. Casual and comfortable, it is a blend of texture and color. Mrs. Stone chose a sink-in sectional sofa covered with durable blue denim and accented the room with red and yellow.

Mary Newsome bride of Richard Ford

Two Arlington Heights families were united July 14 by the marriage of Mary Kathryn Newsome and Richard F. Ford. The William R. Newsomes of 630 S. Kaspar and the Frederic Fords, 309 S. Evergreen, gathered with their relatives and friends in St. James Catholic Church that morning for the 11 o'clock nuptials. Afterwards there was a luncheon and dancing for 100 guests at the Royal Court Inn, Des Plaines.

The color scheme for the day was in ivory with touches of pastel hues to match the embroidered flowers on the attendants' gowns. The girls wore ivory chiffon, Victorian styled, with a bodice overlaid in lavender, apricot, blue, pink and yellow flowers.

THERESE NEWSOME, the bride's sister, was maid of honor, wearing a lavender picture hat and a lavender sash on her gown. She carried an ivory basket filled with lavender daisies and baby's breath.

Bridesmaid Maureen Piper of Arlington Heights wore an apricot sash and picture hat and her flowers were apricot-tinted daisies. Bridesmaid Maryanne Spiekerman, also of Arlington, wore a blue sash and hat and carried a basket of blue daisies.

For the double ring ceremony, the bride was attired in an ivory peau de soie gown highlighted by a wide yoke of lace embroidered in flowers and tiny pearls. A pleated ruffle and lace accented the high neck and edged the yoke and the cuffs of the long sleeves. The wide train on the gown was also bordered with the ruffle and lace motif.

OVER THE DRESS Mary wore a chapel-length veil of nylon tulle secured by a crown of pearls. White roses and baby's breath made up her cascade bouquet.

Four-year-old Paul Newsome, the bride's brother, preceded her down the aisle as ring bearer.

Robert Novarla of Champaign was best man, with Scott Butler, West Chicago, and Dale Thake, Arlington, as grooms-men.

The wedding guests were seated by the groom's brother, Douglas and Patrick Clate, his brother-in-law of Romeoville, Ill.

After a two-week honeymoon in Colorado the newlyweds are back in the area living in an apartment in Hoffman Estates.

Both attended Arlington High School, and Richard also went to Harper College. He works for M. J. Holland in Park Ridge and his bride for Schroeder, Latin, Welch of Arlington Heights.

Pair has camping honeymoon

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Rose Jr. spent their two-week honeymoon camping in the Rocky Mountains in Colorado and in the Grand Teton and Yellowstone national parks in Wyoming.

They were married June 30 in St. Mary's Church, Des Plaines, in a 5 p.m. double ring service. Both are of Des Plaines and both are graduates of Maine West High School.

Nadine, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold L. Drewes, 322 Grove, also studied at Western Illinois University, and is with General Telephone Directory Co., Des Plaines. Ralph, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Rose, 1633 Lincoln, is with Central Telephone Co., Des Plaines.

ATTENDING NADINE as matron of honor was her sister, Nancy Jakacki, Des Plaines. Bridesmaids were Debby Jobst and the bride's sisters, Norene and Nita Drewes, all of Des Plaines.

Ron Rose, Des Plaines, was his brother's best man, and ushers, all of Des Plaines, were Larry Krushinski, Tom Malloy, Rich Lorenz, Gordon Lewis and the bride's brother, Mickey and Tony Drewes.

A reception for 175 guests was held in the banquet hall of the Edison Park Bowl.

The Consumer

by Monica Welch

Money does not grow on trees, nor is it just lying around in banks or government agencies waiting for you to claim it — despite what a certain pamphleteer would have you believe.

Residents in this area have been receiving mailings recently advertising various gimmicks for obtaining money.

"How to Get All the Money You Need Without Borrowing Or Asking a Single Penny!" screams one brochure, which urges the recipient to send for an allegedly "free report" (except that you have to enclose $9.95). The book supposedly lists scores of "secret" and "little-known" sources of ready cash.

Another mailing invites recipients to join the "Moneytree Club" and get rich. A "special introductory offer" allows the lucky letter-holder to join this club for only $10.

EACH MAILING comes from a different individual, whose smiling, business-fraud, a federal offense.

THE JEWEL TEAL CO. and the Illinois Department of Revenues have taken opposing positions on a sales tax question, with the consumer getting the short end of the deal.

An Arlington Heights resident, Mrs. Norman Johnson, had reported to The Herald some weeks ago that the Jewel on Dryden had charged her sales tax on each of four cartons of soft drinks instead of on the total grocery bill.

The store manager told her it is done that way because people thought they were paying tax on the bottle deposit otherwise. But, Mrs. Johnson pointed out to him, this procedure cost her a penny more than the other way.

While a penny might not be much, they do add up, Mrs. Johnson declared. But it was also a matter of principle. It is not the right way to figure sales tax, she insisted.

And according to the Illinois Department of Revenues, Mrs. Johnson is right.

"Tax should be figured on the total purchase," Brian Wolfberg, a revenue department attorney, told The Herald. "The law doesn't distinguish between items. Just because they (Jewel) are having problems with deposits doesn't mean they should do it this way."

BUT RICHARD LARSON of Jewel's public relations department insisted that the store's legal advisers had determined that the procedure was lawful. Thus, it had been declared a storewide policy, affecting some 50 per cent of Jewel stores. The other half have computerized cash registers which automatically deduct bottle deposits so that the tax can be added at the end.

Other supermarket chains The Herald checked either have these cash registers or have instructed their employees to mentally deduct the bottle deposit before adding the tax.

As of this writing, Jewel is still charging sales tax on each separate carton of pop. According to Larson, the company reviewed the situation and once again determined that the procedure is proper, despite notification from the Department of Revenues to the contrary.

U. S. looking into promises of easy money like face is pictured on the envelope. However, the schemes all originate with an outfit called "National Counselor Reports" in Kerrville, Tex. The organization is currently under investigation by the U.S. Postal Inspector's office.

According to inspectors in Fort Worth who are carrying out the investigation, a number of complaints have been received, as well as copies of the various mailings.

Dear Dorothy: It seems so simple I'm half embarrassed about asking, but I'm new at it and you are helpful. What's the difference between jelly, jam and preserves? —Holly Russell

None of us knew much when we started. Holly. Jelly is made from filtered fruit juice and has a firm clear gel that holds its shape when turned out of the jar. Jam and preserves are similar, made from pureed or crushed fruit. The gel is not clear, not as firm as in jelly. Both jams and preserves include whole, large pieces of pureed fruit, in a thick but not stiff gel.

Dear Dorothy: Hope this tip might be of help to someone. Our dog wet a quilted, solid color bedspread. I was able to remove the stain easily with a baking soda solution. However, two weeks later the odor was unbelievable. Then the light! I sprayed on my underarm deodorant — that did it. Only one application was needed. —Ann Smedley Never heard this one before. It's remarkable. Hope a week of humid weather doesn't bring it back.

Dear Dorothy: When eggplant slices are dipped in egg before frying, no extra oil is needed during frying. The beaten egg coats the slice. I learned this secret when living for a year in Israel. Not frying the slices before using in a casserole would change the consistency of the dish, making it watery. —Pearl F. Schwartz

Dear Dorothy: Can anything be done about stretch marks which show up after one has lost considerable weight? —Rose H.

I've heard that cocoa butter will help. However, everyone I know who has had these still does — even after several years.

The Doctor Says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb — Would you tell me why, after most of the stomach is removed, the blood will not stay built up and one gets very little food value out of what is eaten?

The first few years after most of my stomach was removed, because of a duodenal ulcer, a vitamin tablet was taken every day, and a B-12 shot once, and sometimes twice, a month. But, within a year blood transfusions were necessary. Now I take another vitamin which includes iron and liver plus B-12 and an iron shot once a week. So far the blood count is staying up. I eat three regular meals a day plus small meals in between and at bedtime, but am unable to gain much weight. Have you heard of this before? I sure have not.

Dear Reader — This sometimes happens after such surgery. There are two problems involved. The lining of the stomach produces a substance called "intrinsic factor" which is necessary for the absorption of B-12. As long as your stomach is working properly and there is some acid and intrinsic factor formed, you will absorb the sources of B-12 in your diet, and in turn, this will help the blood-forming organs to produce the proper amount of red blood cells.

If the stomach fails to produce intrinsic factor, then your ability to absorb B-12 and vital substances important to blood formation disappears. This may result in pernicious anemia. Giving liver shots as you described provides these substances directly to the body, thereby avoiding the problem of not being absorbed from the digestive tract. Following the surgery you are either not producing enough intrinsic factor, or you have poor intestinal absorption, which causes you to be susceptible to anemia. This is a form of pernicious anemia occurring as a complication of your surgery, and this fits with the type of treatment that you are getting.

The other problems you are describing are related to "dumping syndrome." Your small stomach is not able to store food. One of the functions of the stomach is to be a large food reservoir to store the large volume of food we eat. A small amount is then passed progressively into the small intestine. In the total absence of the stomach, or if your stomach is very small, the food you eat is rapidly "dumped" into the small intestine. This overloads the small intestine's capacity, and causes it to move the food along too rapidly.

ALL IMPORTANT digestion and absorption of food material occurs in the small intestine. When it moves through too rapidly this interferes with absorption of the food material, and you don't get the full benefit from the calories, vitamins, and nutrients in your diet. One treatment for this problem is to have multiple small meals. In the course of time, the stomach often enlarges, and the condition is partially relieved.

The small meals that you eat should avoid large amounts of starches and sweets. With your type of problem — which is entirely different from people with normal digestive functions — you need to concentrate on a diet that has a higher protein and fat and less from carbohydrate. This does not mean, however, that you should eliminate carbohydrates entirely.

'A more relaxed atmosphere'

New England psychologists form a 'modified' sex clinic

FRAMINGHAM, Mass. (UPI) — A modified approach to sex therapy is being employed by a young psychologist here.

Dr. Peter A. Wish, 28, says his New England Institute of Sexuality offers a more relaxed atmosphere for couples with sexual problems than do clinics patterned after the Masters and Johnson program.

The clinic stretches 20 meetings over a three or four-month time span instead of cramping the sessions into two weeks as do the sex clinic founders.

"Masters and Johnson gave an intensified course," Wish said. Couples must move into a hotel in St. Louis (where the clinic is located) and therapists see them every day.

Most of the problems involve premature ejaculation or impotence on the male's part, or painful intercourse or failure to reach orgasm by the female. Other troubles include low sex drives or a lack of interest by one or both of the partners.

THE FIRST session with the couple is devoted to diagnosing the problem.

In the second session, Dr. Wish discusses the couple's sexual history with the man, while his co-therapist, Dr. Amy Larson, does the same with the woman. Then the doctors switch patients to discuss discrepancies in the history.

Following that the doctors begin to work at solutions.

"Usually we send them home to concentrate on the sensate or caress focus — instruct them how to massage each other's body in a nonsexual, nondemanding way. We hope to remove the fear of sexual performance," Dr. Wish said.

IN SUBSEQUENT sessions, the therapists attempt to further the contact with the man and woman, bringing them closer together physically and psychologically through the use of imagery and further massage techniques.

"The trouble is that many people can have a good sex life for two weeks, but they have to come back home and live together," Dr. Wish said. "We spread out the sessions so couples can change together gradually."

The clinic deals primarily with couples whose sexual problems affect their marriage. The institute is not designed to teach new methods of sexual relationships, but aims at helping couples who have suffered a breakdown in communication that manifests itself in the sexual area," he said.

BEFORE they are accepted, couples must undergo thorough examinations by their own doctor or a physician affiliated with the institute to assure the problems are psychological rather than physiological.

"Sexuality is learned, and most sexual problems are caused by lack of knowledge," said Dr. Wish, a graduate of the University of Miami and Boston College. "Very few problems are physiologically based — 90 per cent of the problems are above the neck and only 10 per cent are below the waist."

Of the 30 or so sexually troubled couples treated by the institute, 90 per cent have been helped, according to Drs. Wish and Larson.

DR. WISH said the institute has available a type of medical consultants.

"We also employ the service of a priest, minister and rabbi to help us deal with religious hangups," he said.

The old comfortable house helps put couples at ease and the doctors and therapists don't dress in white clinical uniforms.

"It's nice to come into a place as relaxing as this because it doesn't make you feel sick," Wish said.

"In fact, we tell them you're not sick. You just have a problem in living. We hope we can make you unlearn."

Why do heart attack victims wait to call their doctors?

(This column is presented by Forest Hospital in Des Plaines, a fully accredited 125-bed psychiatric hospital widely known for its intensive programs in psychiatric treatment, research, education and community service.)

The important question surrounding the psychological aspects of heart attacks is not what the effects are on the victim after the attack has taken place, but rather why the victim waits so long to call a doctor after the pain begins.

Dr. Thomas Hackett, a member of the department of psychiatry at the Massachusetts General Hospital in Boston, explains:

"We know there's a high mortality in cardiac disease and that most of it occurs within the first few hours of the attack. The person who is able to get to a hospital probably has a much better chance of survival. Some say as high as 50 per cent better chance. But most people delay seeking treatment for roughly four to nine hours after the first chest pain."

THE MAJORITY of people, according to tests done by Dr. Hackett and his associate Dr. Harry Owen, responded first by taking an Alka-Seltzer or a Brioschi, not by going to a doctor, despite the severity of the attack.

"There are differences between a stomach ache and a heart attack," Dr. Hackett said. "For instance, any chest pain that occurs particularly over the left side of the chest and lasts longer than ten minutes ought to be checked into by a doctor. If the pain is accompanied by massive sweat and shortness of breath, then there is a greater possibility that the pain is a heart attack."

Dr. Hackett also has conducted some studies on what precipitates a heart attack. "Heart attacks seem to come in response to some kind of stress. Stress can come from a number of sources including pleasures, like marriage, having children, changing jobs, going to a different location in the country. Preventative measures for people who may have cardiac conditions are to quit smoking, eat sensibly — that is, weigh five pounds less than you should weigh, and try to control your state of mind, that is, try to relax.

"A good way to relax is to take up a hobby to get your mind off stressful work conditions or whatever. Take up horseback riding — if you don't like to jog, you can have the horse jog for you. And, above all, exercise on a daily routine and keep yourself fit."

Win At Bridge

by Oswald and James Jacoby

Old man Z, who used to hold down the South seat in the auction bridge columns, still plays duplicate bridge. His bidding is old-fashioned but his dummy play is what you would expect from the hero of hundreds of auction hands.

His jump to four hearts was an overbid, but North had some extra values for him.

West opened the king of diamonds and shifted to the queen of spades. Z won in his own hand and drew trumps and ruffed his last diamond.

He remarked, "Milton Work would turn over in his grave if he saw my next play. I have an absolute sure play for my contract by casting dummy's ace of spades; throwing West in with another spade and discarding my deuce of clubs when West leads another spade. I also can't make an overtrick that way; while if West holds five spades for his overcall I can take a club finesse and play for an overtrick."

After this peroration he finessed the club successfully; cashed his ace of clubs and led a third club. It made no difference who won it. Z was sure of his overtrick.

Vet Roger Bowen to join Brian Keith's TV comedy

HOLLYWOOD. — Comedian Roger Bowen has joined the ranks of show savers who are added to the casts of weak television series to bolster the ratings.

Gale Gordon of "Here's Lucy," Charles Nelson Reilly, Dom DeLuise, William Demarest and others are long-time rescuers of troubled shows.

Paul Lynde was a prime member of the club until he starred in his own show, which needed succor from a show saver itself before it perished.

Bowen was the starry Hamilton Malters Jr., the lamebrained boss of Hershel Bernardi on "Arnie" for two seasons. Before its demise "Arnie" became almost a Roger Bowen vehicle.

NOW HE is being added to the cast of "The Brian Keith Show" which made its debut last season as "The Little People." Thrust of the series is Keith, as a pediatrician, surrounded by squalling brats and dismayed women. The ratings dropped toward the end of the season.

"I think the producers felt Brian needed a man on which to play off some of his humor and anger," Bowen said.

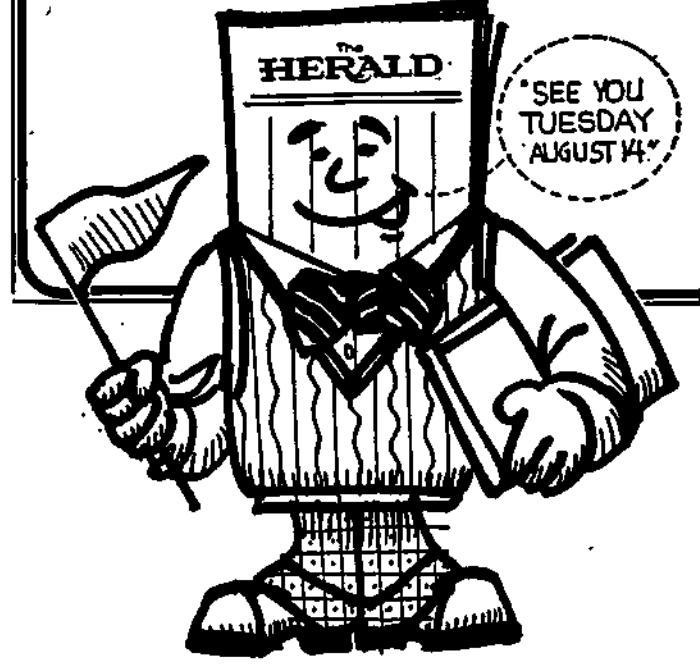

Bowen is a bland looking fellow with a quick intelligence who savors playing stuffed shirts. Ineptitude in persons of authority turn him on.

"I love to play people who take themselves seriously. They become funny."

Paddock blood drive ends

A major blood donor campaign at Paddock Publications has been completed assuring donors and non-donors at the company an unlimited supply of free blood for one year. The immediate family of company employees is also covered.

To assure blood plasma for all its full-time employees and their families, the Paddock Corporation entered into an agreement with the Village of Arlington Heights in which the corporation would get 20 per cent of its employees to donate blood in return for the supply guarantee.

Blood drawing day was July 11 and 97 employees donated a pint of blood each, bringing the total blood supply donated to 99 pints.

The program was in direct response to new state laws prohibiting the sale of blood. Plasma is now available on a "strict replacement basis only."

The Arlington Heights program is underwritten by the North Suburban Association of Health Resources.

Stamp Notes... by Bernadine M. Rechner

Aug. 27 issue to commemorate Lyndon B. Johnson

An 8-cent U.S. stamp will be released Aug. 27 in memory of the late President Lyndon B. Johnson. First day ceremonies will be held at Austin, Texas, not far from the LBJ ranch where the 36th President died Jan. 22. The issue date is the 65th anniversary of his birth.

The design of the commemorative is taken from a portrait by Madame Elizabeth Shoumatoff which hangs in the White House and which is said to have been Mr. Johnson's favorite likeness of himself.

The jumbo stamp will be printed by gravure on the Andreotti press and will carry six plate numbers.

Collectors desiring first day cancellations should send their requests to "Johnson Stamp, Postmaster, Austin, TX 78710" enclosing the proper remittance which is the cost of the stamp to be affixed. Because of the jumbo size, address your cover well to the left and to the bottom.

THE FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT PHILATELIC SOCIETY will mark the release of the Johnson commemorative stamp with a set of two cacheted combination first day covers. Both will feature the 1960 election photograph of the late President. One cover is printed in red and black; the other in blue and black. Both carry the message "Lyndon Baines Johnson, August 27, 1968 - January 22, 1973/Loyal Supporter of Franklin D. Roosevelt's New Deal/State Director National Youth Administration 1935-1937/Representative 1937-48/Lt. Commander U.S. Navy 1941-42/Senator 1949-61/Vice-President 1961-63/36th President 1963-69."

The covers will be franked with the new Johnson memorial stamp as well as a stamp featuring FDR and cancelled on the first day of issue, Aug. 27, at Austin, TX.

The set is available for $1 from the FDR Philatelic Society, Box 150 • J. Clinton Corners, N.Y., 12514. Enclose a self-addressed, stamped, long envelope.

REPORTEDLY, 16 British colonies have announced plans to issue stamps marking the Nov. 14 wedding of Princess Anne. Undoubtedly, more Commonwealth countries will do the same.

Royal Silver Wedding stamps, commemorating the November, 1972, 25th anniversary of the marriage of Queen Elizabeth and Duke of Edinburgh, were issued in 87 values from 37 countries.

Collecting Coins... by Mort Reed

Bicentennial commemoratives need more revision

Frankly, I have seen more enthusiasm generated over the birth of a two-headed calf in Kansas than over the coming 200th anniversary of the American Revolution.

Whether it is a lack of promotion on the part of the Bicentennial Committee, or just plain apathy on the part of the general public is anyone's guess. But unless something is done fast, July 4, 1976 will be just another day on the calendar.

Even the Treasury is putting up an argument. It maintains that wholesale conversion of our present coinage designs to one of a Bicentennial motif is simply not feasible.

Harper slates business seminar

"Efficient communication" is the theme for a business management seminar Aug. 16 at Harper College in Palatine.

A new systems approach to communications will be presented by Marshall Rosenberg, director of Community Psychological Consultants. A goal of the workshop is to eliminate unnecessary written communication, fruitless meetings and superfluous conversation in

And had it not been for the tireless efforts of Mary T. Brooks, director of the Bureau of the Mint; Margo Russell, Editor of "Coin World," and U.S. Rep. Lenore K. Sullivan, D-Mo., chairman of the house banking and currency subcommittee on consumer affairs, there would be no changes at all.

IN H.R. 5241, Congress directed the Treasury to imprint Bicentennial designs on the reverse of the Kennedy half-dollar and Eisenhower dollar. This amounts to exactly 2.8746 square inches of design space to cover 200 years of history, a physical impossibility for any designer or sculptor.

After a bit of nudging from the three ladies mentioned above, the Treasury also allowed the Washington quarter-dollar reverse to be altered adding .69029 square inches but still an impossibility.

According to the Mint proposal, each of the three coin reverses will carry a special Bicentennial design supported by a double date of 1776-1976, which defeats the idea of general circulation coinage in favor of a commemorative issue.

BARRING LEGISLATION to the contrary, general circulation coins above the denomination of one dime must bear the date on the obverse and the likeness of an eagle on the reverse.

It will be difficult at best for any sculptor to design a commemorative device that shares space with a recognizable image of an eagle, unless of course, his theme adequately involves the eagle as a component.

I would suggest leaving the Eisenhower dollar reverse alone, since it depicts the greatest accomplishment of any nation over the past 200 years. Change the Kennedy obverse and reverse to a new daily circulation coin with the date in place on the front and 1776-1976 on the reverse.

I would suggest leaving the Eisenhower dollar reverse as it is with all modeling and Janvier machine time that would have been assigned to a new quarter reverse going to the new half-dollar obverse. This would give us at least one daily medium with a Bicentennial motif.

A survey which I am conducting shows that fewer than three out of every 1,000 people prefer to keep the six coin designs we now have. Since less than 20 of every 1,200 are known collectors or numismatists, this belies the charge that the loudest cry for new coins comes from the numismatic industry.

So, if you agree with this idea, write Congresswoman Sullivan, Margo Russell of "Coin World," Mrs. Mary Brooks, director of the Mint, your congressman or me. It does count. With enough support we will have Bicentennial coinage.

Two looks at friendship, death

Eleanor Gehrig talks about Lou

by MILTON RICHMAN

COOPERSTOWN, N.Y. — She doesn't know how many times she's been here.

She stopped counting long ago. The first time she visited the baseball Hall of Fame was back in 1939, only three years after it opened.

That was the year her husband, Lou Gehrig, was voted in, and now any time the weather is nice, she throws a few of her things together in a small bag and makes the trip here for the induction ceremony because it brings back so many fond memories.

Eleanor Gehrig, widow of the Yankees' unforgettable one-time first baseman, sat quietly and inconspicuously among the spectators Monday listening to the things being said about the six newest inductees.

She was interested in them all, but became particularly absorbed when they called out Roberto Clemente's name and introduced the widow of the former Pittsburgh outfielder.

It's not at all hard for Eleanor Gehrig of Chicago to relate to Vera Clemente of Puerto Rico.

Both married ballplayers. Both watched them become superstars, then household names. Each saw her husband die tragically while still in his 30s, and each saw him ushered into the Hall of Fame without even the customary five-year waiting period.

"You know, I've never met Mrs. Clemente," said Mrs. Gehrig, "but I thought of her often... very often."

Roberto Clemente was 38 when he was killed in a plane crash. Lou Gehrig was 36 when he died of amyotrophic lateral sclerosis, a rare type of paralysis.

More than 30 years have passed since her husband's death, but there is no question about the way Eleanor Gehrig still feels about the man she originally married.

"I wanted to find happiness so much. I went out and married five more men," she said, smiling, teasing, kidding, because she never actually married anyone again, and she knows most everyone knows that.

But Eleanor Gehrig still has a great deal of vigor and spirit about her and she enjoys talking with anyone who ever saw or knew her Lou.

This is going to sound corny as hell, but he was one of the greatest men I ever met in my youth," she said. "I say that from the standpoint of his being a gentleman, a sportsman and a husband. They simply don't come any better."

Eleanor Gehrig suddenly felt she might be conveying the wrong impression.

"Oh, now, I'm not the 'professional widow' who thinks simply because he was my husband, he was the greatest. Now put this in your notes," she commanded. "He left his shirt on the floor for me to pick up. I had to drag him to the haberdashers because he didn't give a damn about clothes, and he smoked as bad as I do.

"We were both chain smokers. We'd be hard put to stop one another today. He'd be sneaking them, and I'd be sneaking them. This isn't good for the younger generation, but it's the truth."

Sometimes, Eleanor Gehrig likes to toss out a little shocker.

"Lou was human, and so was Babe Ruth," she said. "People were so alarmed not long ago that Peterson and Kekich were on the same team and weren't speaking to each other. What if the world knew that Babe and Lou didn't speak for several years? It's true. They had a feud that started years before I married Lou, but they made up later on."

Mrs. Gehrig and Mrs. Ruth aren't what could be described as close friends now, but they get along well enough together the times they do see each other.

"I think distance has something to do with our not being closer," says Eleanor Gehrig. "We both live in New York City but she lives at 86th St. on the east side, I live at 53rd St. on the east side, and neither of us are willing to part with the fare to see the other one."

Mrs. Gehrig still remembers the time her late husband first discussed ending his consecutive game playing streak with the Yankees.

"He never knew he was dying," she said. "He didn't know what his actual ailment was, nor did he know the doctor had given him only another two, two and a half years to live after he had been diagnosed on his 35th birthday. He talked it over with me and said he couldn't give his best anymore, so he was going to take himself out of the lineup. The next day in Detroit he went to the manager, Joe McCarthy, and told him he couldn't play anymore."

Shortly thereafter, Lou Gehrig grew worse. He began laboring for breath and deteriorated rapidly.

At the end, Eleanor Gehrig, her mother, and the doctor were at his bedside.

"He looked up at us and said, 'You are the best three pals of my lifetime,' his widow remembers. "He never knew those were to be the very last words he ever said."

(United Press International)

by IRA BERKOW

NEW YORK — Death and friendship, or, friendship and death are the subjects of two sports-related motion pictures recently released.

"Bang the Drum Slowly," a fictionalized story based on a novel about two baseball players, and "Maurie," taken from the real life friendship between Maurice Stokes and Jack Twyman, one-time Cincinnati Royals teammates, follow on the heels of "Brian's Song," the highly successful screen adaption of the terminal friendship between football players Gale Sayers and Brian Piccolo.

In "Bang the Drum Slowly," a slow-thinking, butt-of-jokes and gentle third-string catcher named Bruce Pearson is struck by a fatal disease. He has only this last season to live. He is befriended by his roommate, Henry Wiggen, the team's star pitcher, a quick-witted fellow but also tender.

Stokes, near the end of the third season in the National Basketball Association (in 1958), was apparently injured in a game and was struck down by a brain injury that reduced all his muscles to virtual jelly.

Stokes was in a Cincinnati hospital and could not be moved. His parents lived in Pittsburgh. Rehabilitation for Stokes would cost about $100,000 a year. That, and constant traveling between cities, would make it prohibitive for Stokes' parents to manage financially. Twyman lived in Cincinnati. He offered to look after Stokes' affairs and eventually became his legal guardian — in effect, adopting Stokes.

Ten years later, and after Twyman had helped raise about $1 million for hospital and therapy bills, Stokes died.

Both young, dying athletes have loving parents, both have a woman they plan to make their wife. In "Maurie," Stokes has the conventional sweet and beautiful girl who grieves. Bruce Pearson is in love with a prostitute who is terribly interested in his welfare, for the sake of the life insurance.

The crux of both films, though, is the love between two men. They are athletes, strong men, who do not fit neatly into any hairy-chested image. They are vulnerable to the whims of the gods. They are capable of crying.

For a good part of the season, Pearson and Wiggen keep the sickness a secret from the rest of the team. When Wiggen, a hold-out, discovers in spring training that Pearson may be shipped to the minor leagues, he demands that a special clause be put in his contract before he signs. Pearson must go where he goes, or, more precisely, where Wiggen stays, because he is too good to be traded.

Manager "Dutch" Schnell is incredulous: "What is up between you two? A roomie is a roomie, not a Siamese twin brother fastened at the hip... Are you a couple of fairies? This is all to much for me."

In "Maurie," Twyman is several times asked, "Why, why do you do it?" He says, simply, that he had to and it wasn't something he has much choice about.

Wiggen, in his understated way, says of Pearson: "He was not a bad fellow, no worse than most and probably better than some, and not a bad ballplayer neither when they give him a chance, when they laid off him long enough. From here on in I rag nobody."

"Ragging" is an essential ingredient in the locker-room life of athletes. "Ragging" happily divests both films of some of the mawkish qualities that Hollywood is insistent upon.

Even the elderly nurse in "Maurie" catches the flavor. When she must lift Stokes (played remarkably well by Bernie Casey, former pro football player) to his bed — he is a lumbersome and rag-doll-like — she says, "Why couldn't you have been a jockey?"

We follow Stokes' courageous rehabilitation, his grunts and gropings, with concern. This is what separates the two movies. We never care terribly about Bruce Pearson, it is difficult to believe in Bruce's impending death. The reason, perhaps, is that the filmmakers were more involved with form than content. They have made a visually beautiful film, but too fey and gauzy.

"Maurie" kept to the straight, with a dearth of cinematic tricks. Yet the heavy hand of Hollywood is there, particularly at the end. On the night Jack Twyman is honored at Cincinnati Garden because this is his last game before retirement, he introduces Stokes. Maurie comes out in his wheelchair, as the crowd stands and cheers.

Then Stokes, in suit and leg braces, stands. The director has Stokes take some clunking steps as the arena swirls around him. It is an attempt at sentimentality. It is grotesque.

Neither athlete, though, dies gloriously. Both still had so much good living to do before suffering so cruel and callous a fate.

Pearson summed it up when he said to Wiggen, "I been handed a raw deal."

Commissioners: big brothers of sport

by IRA BERKOW

NEW YORK — Have we not had enough of high officials acting above the law?

How can National Football League commissioner Pete Rozelle, for example, sitting comfortably behind his desk in the tall building on Park Avenue, decide that a man can no longer earn his living in his profession?

Rozelle has recently suspended Lance Rentzel of the Los Angeles Rams for "conduct detrimental to football." Or, as Dick Young wrote in his column in the New York News, "conduct detrimental to the public image of football." Same thing.

It is not good enough for Rentzel and Ed Garvey, executive director of the National Football League Players' Association. They are filing an antitrust suit in federal court in Los Angeles in an attempt to overturn the suspension.

Rentzel understandably, gets little sympathy from the man on the street. Not only has he been convicted twice on morals charges but most recently he was convicted of possession of marijuana. The case is on appeal.

Meanwhile, Rentzel is not in the pokey, is healthy enough — physically — to continue in his occupation. Our courts of law have not yet seen fit to keep Rentzel off the streets, so why should a private citizen like Pete Rozelle?

Regardless of our feelings about Rentzel, of whether he should be strapped to a psychiatrist's couch, or locked in a stock, or hung by his thumbs, we should ponder over Garvey's remark: "We believe the player should have had the due process of law. We would like to know where the commissioner gets the power to expel a player from the league and terminate his career."

Rozelle gets the power from Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis, first commissioner of baseball, and the white-haired, strong-willed, sour-faced fellow who, along with Babe Ruth, is credited with restoring public confidence to baseball after the near-disastrous Black Sox scandal of 1919.

Landis' image is one of stern and unvarnished judicial rectitude. Yet he banned nine players for life, seven of whom were acquitted in court. The two others were not even indicted.

Landis became both judge and jury: strange, one would believe, from a man supposedly cut from the cloth of pristine law. But Landis was not your run-of-the-mill legal beagle. He did not, for example consider it unethical or a conflict of interest while he was a federal judge and an antitrust suit against organized baseball was pending before him, to accept the new job of commissioner of baseball.

Some thought it an undisguised bribe by baseball. In 1921, the American Bar Association passed a resolution of "unqualified condemnation" of Landis, saying his action was "derogatory to the dignity of the bench."

Whatever Landis did in those days, though, was justified in the interests of regaining integrity for "the national game."

Such unchallenged and arbitrary rule has been sought by commissioners in other sports. And they often have used it — when it did not pertain to THEIR employers, the owners. (Even Judge Landis lusted instead of castigated Charles Comiskey, owner of the Black-White Sox, when he admitted to as much "gully knowledge" of the World Series fix as some of the players Landis blackballed for life.)

One of the most notorious recent cases of arbitrary decision-making by a commissioner was in the case of Connie Hawkins, the basketball player who for years was barred from the National Basketball Association for a crime he denied doing and for which he was never convicted. Commissioner Walter Kennedy admitted that he took only hearsay evidence and never looked into the case. Hawkins, a poor, semi-literate black, was finally allowed to play in the NBA when his case against the league was settled out of court.

The double standard is evident here. When the owners of the Kansas City-Omaha Royals of the NBA were convicted in 1972 by a federal court for conspiracy to conceal ownership in a Las Vegas gambling casino, Walter Kennedy said he'd wait to take an action until after the decision of the Appeals Court. This may have been the correct legal move but it was hardly consistent with his early Hawkins decision.

Baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn will suspend a Denny McLain under the charge of being a bookmaker — it never went to court — while we still wonder what he is going to do with C. Arnholt Smith, on the board of directors of the San Diego Padres, who is being investigated by the Securities and Exchange Commission for improperly using funds of other corporations.

From the Watergate scandal we learn how "national security" was used by members of the Nixon administration to cloak the excesses of arbitrary power. From sports we learn how "public image" is used to cloak the excesses of arbitrary power.

Latest entries include Kathy Whitworth, the all-time leading money winner in the LPGA tour; Beth Stone, who placed second at Burdine's; Pam Barnett, noted not only for her consistent play but also for throwing her wig; and the grand lady of the game, Patty Berg. With the addition of these players, the field now consists of 66 professionals and six amateurs, including 22 of the top 25 money winners.

Also on hand for the event will be Judy Rankin, winner of the Pabst Classic in Columbus, Ohio this past week. Columbus represents the third win of the year for Judy, who is now the leading money winner for 1973 with a comfortable lead over Kathy Whitworth.

According to tournament directors Bob Wileman and Gene McCauliff, Midlane is in excellent shape and should provide a true challenge to the lady professionals. The course will stretch 6525 yards and will play to a par 73. This will be one of the longest courses that the ladies will play during 1973 and will also be one of the finest.

The entry fee is $1 plus greens fee and is now being accepted at the Palatine Hills Pro Shop. The entry deadline is Aug. 14.

Route to women's open

All highways wind their way to the Child and Family Services Open, Thursday through Sunday (Aug. 9-12).

The top women golfers from the Ladies Professional Golf Association will be making their first tour stop since the middle 1960s at Midlane Country Club, located north of Chicago and west of Waukegan in the town of Wadsworth.

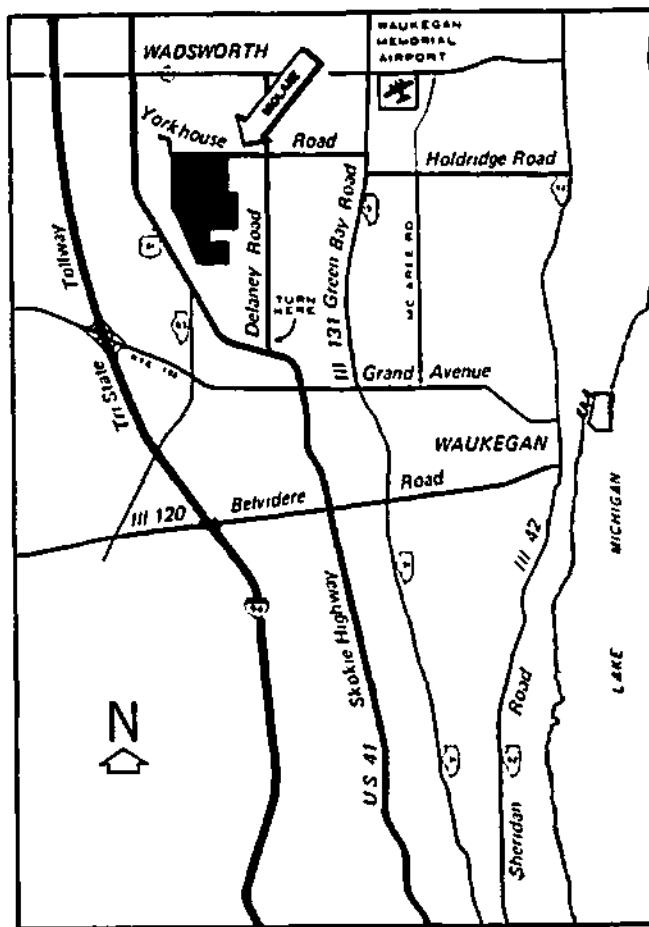

Herald area golfing enthusiasts who would like to see how such top names as Carol Mann, Judy Rankin, Marlene Hagge, Jane Blalock and Sandra Palmer among others play need only follow these directions and use the accompanying map:

Take Golf Road to the Tri-State Tollway and head north. Exit east on Route 132. Turn left on U.S. 41 (Skokie Highway) and head north to Delaney Rd.

Turn right (at the stoplight) on Delaney and go north to Yorkhouse Rd. Turn left and it's only a short distance to Midlane Country Club.

The trip takes approximately 45 minutes.

Plenty of parking will be available right at the course. Galleryites won't have to walk several blocks to get to the tourney as has been the case at other Chicagoland tourneys in the past.

Brad Smith 4th in Junior World wrestling meet

Brad Smith of Arlington Heights placed fourth at 136.5 pounds in Junior World freestyle wrestling competition last week in Miami Beach, Fla.

Smith won two matches and lost two. He also had a bye during the tournament.

He opened by pinning Frank Steen of Sweden at 4:39. Then Smith, formerly of Hersey and now the University of Iowa, was beaten, 8-5, by the East German who placed third.

After recording a 2:30 pin over his Colombian opponent in the third round, Smith received a bye. He was eliminated, 10-9, by the eventual champion from Japan.

The United States team placed third behind Bulgaria and Russia. Smith has received an invitation to try out for America's World Team this Saturday in Pennsylvania.

Never an extra charge for cold beer

Publicly, but maybe not privately

The Babe would be rooting for Hank Aaron

by MILTON RICHMAN

NEW YORK — Right now, Babe Ruth would be throwing one of his arms around Hank Aaron, squeezing him in a bear hug so the photographers could get themselves a good picture and slyly telling him to stick Atlanta for at least a million next year, carry-over contract or not.

That's the Babe Ruth I knew. He was always 100 per cent for the individual, no matter what it was, and I'm sure he'd be rooting for Aaron to break his home run record now.

Publicly, anyway.

Privately, it would be something else again. Babe Ruth was as human as ... well ... Hank Aaron. It's not hard to picture how he'd be feeling now and what he'd be saying to some of those in his close circle.

"Hell, if I knew that 30 years later some bum would come along and break that 716 record of mine, I'd have hung around a little longer and hit 800," Babe Ruth would be saying.

The "bum" would be nothing personal against Hank Aaron. Babe Ruth used the term a lot. Often, even affectionately.

The years have a way of trifling with your judgment sometimes, but even though nearly four decades have gone by since the last time I saw him tap his bat on the plate, bring it back up again and then swing it in that classic style imitated by thousands but never really duplicated by anyone, there isn't the slightest doubt in my mind that George Herman Ruth was the greatest ballplayer I have ever seen. He could run, he could field and he could hit. Lord, how he could hit.

Almost like clockwork, every day, you'd look in the paper and there it would be: home run-Ruth. Sometimes, two. For many people today Babe Ruth is merely a legend, only a name.

The vast majority never have seen him perform, and those who haven't include Hank Aaron.

But once you saw Ruth play, you never forgot him. He had a way of staying in your mind indelibly, regardless of whether you saw him hit a home run or strike out.

Every pitcher who was ever a home run victim of his, remembers him.

Says Fritz Ostermueller, of whom he hit No. 703, about 39 years ago:

"How can anyone possibly forget Babe Ruth?"

I know I never will.

He had a voice like cracked ice and the jolly, laughing disposition of Santa Claus, but he could get his back up, too. He did with the late Jake Ruppert, who used to own the New York Yankees.

"Dammit," he told him once, "don't talk to me like a boy, I'm a man and I wanna get paid like one."

Ruth was proud of the 15 years he put in with the Yankees but bitter about the fact he never got a chance to manage them.

Not long before he died, he said to me:

"The Yankees gave me shoe polish. Only he used another word, and if it wasn't for the Ford Foundation, I wouldn't even have a job now."

Many people thought Babe Ruth was an orphan. He wasn't.

"I know who my parents were," he said to me. "Only they were so poor they had to send me to this home in Baltimore when I was seven."

When I asked him what his biggest thrill was, Ruth's answer was "that Root thing." He meant calling his shot against Cub pitcher Charlie Root in the 1932 World Series. Ruth said he pointed to the centerfield wall, indicating he was going to hit the ball over it and he did.

Now Root said that was absolute garbage. If Ruth had done something like that, pointed, he meant, he would have knocked him down. Years later, I asked the Babe's widow, Claire, if he actually had called his shot.

"I'm surprised you'd ask me that," she said.

The Babe Ruth I remember was unlike many of the ballplayers today. He loved the kids who surrounded him for his autograph but also had a way of giving them the slip occasionally.

Sometimes when they'd cluster around him with pieces of paper, pictures or autograph albums before the game, he'd say:

"I'll only sign baseballs." Then when he'd be mobbed after a game, he'd say:

"I only sign before the game."

The episode which personifies Babe Ruth best to me, however, took place after he was the house guest of a good friend of his. Ruth spent a full week with this fellow at his home. A day later, they were together again when another of the Babe's acquaintances joined them.

Ruth, who had a terrible memory for names, knew he had to introduce the friend at whose home he had spent a week only a day before.

"Uh ... how do you pronounce your name again?" he finally asked.

"Joe," said his friend.

VA set to consolidate burial benefits

Burial benefits for veterans were brought under the single management of the Veterans Administration by the National Cemetery Act signed June 18 by the President.

Transfer of cemetery and grave marker functions from the Department of Defense is effective Sept. 1.

Burial benefits, in addition to the burial allowances of $250, under the new law provide for a plot or interment allowance of $150 for an eligible veteran who is not buried in a national cemetery. Burial benefits up to $800, in lieu of any other burial benefit, are available to veterans who die of service-connected disabilities.

Eligibility for burial in national cemeteries remains unchanged. Veterans, as well as servicemen who die during active military, naval or air service are eligible as are members of the reserves of the army and air national guard when death occurs while on active duty training, inactive duty training or while hospitalized or being treated at the expense of the United States.

HIGHER BENEFITS are in the offing for 191,400 veterans who incurred service-connected disabilities during peacetime military service.

Administrator of Veterans Affairs Donald E. Johnson said August checks will reflect the increases brought about by legislation that equalized compensation rates for peacetime and wartime disabilities. Before the law was enacted, peacetime veterans were paid 80 per cent of rates allowed wartime veterans.

As of May, 2.2 million veterans, including the peacetime veterans, were on VA compensation rolls. Compensation is paid on a sliding scale ranging from $28 monthly for disabilities rated 10 per cent, to $95 for total disability.

Some veterans with certain severe disabilities receive additional payments which run as high as $1,222 monthly, plus allowances for dependents of veterans rated 80 per cent or more disabled.

A STUDY WILL be conducted in 10 VA hospitals by the National Bureau of Standards to determine the potential movement of smoke and toxic gases in the event of a fire in a hospital.

An odorless, nontoxic, chemically and thermally stable tracer gas will be used to simulate smoke movement. The Bureau of Standards will recommend design criteria and operating procedures for smoke systems after the study.

A NEW SURGICAL technique that restores speech to patients whose larynx has been removed is being developed by a team of physicians at the Houston VA medical and Baylor College of Medicine.

The new system is intended to overcome many of the disadvantages of systems now in use that depend on a column of air in the back of the throat vibrated by either a mechanical vibrator or the esophagus. The procedure cannot be used on patients who have had extensive radiation therapy.

SOME 144,000 new job opportunities for veterans have been developed by the VA through a cooperative program with private business firms. An estimated 50,000 openings will be developed this fiscal year alone.

Under the agency's job-training "outreach" program, started in July, 1971, VA specialists visit employers to suggest qualified veterans be placed in training positions to develop skills tailored to their needs.

VA pays the trainee's GI Bill benefits starting at $160 monthly. Employers start trainees with at least one-half the monthly wage the veteran will earn when he completes training.

As the training progresses from six months to two years, VA decreases the VA allowance while the employer increases his portion of the salary.

It is estimated 340,000 veterans have

NATIONWIDE OPPORTUNITIES for licensed practical nurses in VA hospitals are outlined in a new employment pamphlet.

In addition to good paying jobs, VA offers extensive inservice training programs to assure the use of the most up-to-date nursing techniques and optimum in employee development.

The VA employs 5,700 LPN's. There are 20,000 registered nurses in the VA and 26,000 nursing assistants.

These positions are in the career Federal service. No written test is required for civil service eligibility.

TWENTY-TWO PER CENT of the 50,000 veterans seeking help from the VA's mobile van service are from minority groups.

During the first four months of this year, 27,233 interviews were conducted in the vans and 6,111 of them were with minority group veterans.

Vans have now travelled through over 25 states and visited over 800 communities. The vans are staffed with VA counsellors from the state's regional office headquarters.

The van program complements other VA services to stimulate interest in Vietnam veterans in their benefits and to make it easier for them to take advantage of them. Veterans of all wars may use the van counsellors when needing help.

Many veterans outside hospitals have also taken the tests through state government programs.

AND EVERYTHING NICE ABOUT FOOD

Twist the lid off a jar of peanut butter, scoop out spoonfuls, spread it on bread for the inevitable sandwich — but don't stop there.

If there's a birthday in the family, make a peanut butter cake and wrap it in a yummy peanut butter frosting. Or if peanut butter is the family tradition when it comes to cake, put the peanut butter in the ice cream. You can swirl it into supermarket vanilla, or do the old-fashioned thing and turn your own. For ice cream sundaes, the hit of the patio parties, pass a pitcher of peanut butter fudge sauce followed by a choice of soda fountain toppings — stuff like cherries, nuts, candy sprinkles, whipped cream. As a switch from oven baked peanut butter cookies, cool it with crunchy peanut butter cereal bars.

Instead of the usual up-front sandwiches, offered here is an array for snazzy sandwichy ideas. There's a peanut butter flower pot sandwich, rollups and triangles, plus a sophisticated spread and nothing-to-it stuffed celery.

For a folder explaining the role peanut butter plays in protein nutrition, readers may send for "Eating For Good Nutrition With Skippy Peanut Butter" free from Peanut Butter Spree, P. O. Box 307, Coventry, CT 06238.

Peanut Butter Roll-Ups

2 slices white bread 1 tablespoon mint jelly
1 tablespoon creamy or chunk style peanut butter

Remove crusts from bread; flatten. Spread 1 slice with peanut butter and the remaining slice with jelly. Place the jelly topped slice over the peanut butter topped slice, jelly side up, leaving $\frac{1}{2}$ -inch peanut butter showing at top. Roll up together starting at bottom. Wrap in plastic wrap and chill. Cut in $\frac{1}{2}$ -inch slices. Makes 6 Roll-Ups.

PEANUT BUTTER SPREE

Peanut Butter Triangles

1 package (3 ounces) cream cheese, softened 2 tablespoons honey
1/4 cup creamy or chunk style peanut butter 1 teaspoon grated orange rind
8 slices thin bread

Mix together cream cheese, peanut butter, honey and orange rind. Complete sandwiches. Remove crusts, if desired. Cut in triangles. Makes 4 sandwiches, 8 triangles.

Ginger-Peanut Spread

1/4 cup creamy or chunk style peanut butter 1 teaspoon soy sauce
1 package (3 ounces) cream cheese 1/2 teaspoon lemon juice
2 tablespoons milk 1/4 teaspoon ginger
Crackers

Mix together peanut butter and cream cheese, then beat in remaining ingredients, blending well. Chill. Spread on crackers. Makes about $\frac{1}{4}$ cup.

Patio Flower-Pot Sandwich

20 slices white sandwich bread Vegetable flowers, such as carrot or cucumber slices Cheese Filling Vegetable leaves, such as:
Chicken Filling Sprigs of celery leaves or parsley
Egg Filling Green pepper strips, cut leaf shaped Peanut Butter Filling

To make 4 sandwiches: cut out 8 ($3\frac{1}{2}$ -inch), 4 (3-inch) and 8 ($2\frac{1}{2}$ -inch) bread rounds. Spread 4 ($2\frac{1}{2}$ -inch) rounds with Cheese Filling and 4 with Chicken Filling. Spread 3-inch rounds with Egg Filling and 4 ($3\frac{1}{2}$ -inch) rounds with Peanut Butter Filling. Stack to make flower pot putting smallest cheese round on bottom, then 1 chicken, 1 egg and 1 peanut butter round. Top with plain round. Insert picks or bamboo skewers into vegetable flowers and green pepper leaves. Insert into tops of flower-pot sandwiches. Serve with knife and fork.

Cheese Filling: Mix together 1 cup shredded American cheese, $\frac{1}{4}$ cup real mayonnaise and a pinch of oregano.

Chicken Filling: Mix together 1 can (4-1/4 ounces) chicken spread, 3 tablespoons creamy or chunk style peanut butter and $\frac{1}{4}$ cup chopped celery.

Egg Filling: Mix together 3 chopped, hard cooked eggs, $\frac{1}{4}$ cup chopped ripe olives, 3 tablespoons real mayonnaise and $\frac{1}{4}$ teaspoon salt.

Peanut Butter Filling: Spread each slice of bread with 2 tablespoons peanut butter and 2 slices crisp bacon.

Peanut Butter Ice Cream

3 eggs $\frac{1}{2}$ cup creamy peanut butter
1 1/4 cups sugar 1 cup light cream
2 cups milk 1 cup heavy cream

In a 2-quart saucepan beat eggs until foamy; add sugar gradually; beat well. Stir in milk. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until mixture thickens slightly and coats a spoon. Remove from heat; stir in peanut butter. Chill. Mix in cream. Pour into container of 2-quart ice cream freezer; freeze and ripen following manufacturer's instructions. Makes about $1\frac{1}{2}$ quarts.

Quick Peanut Butter Ice Cream

1 quart vanilla ice cream, softened
1/2 cup creamy or chunk style peanut butter

In large mixing bowl, beat ice cream and peanut butter on low speed of mixer until thoroughly blended, about 2 minutes. Freeze. Serve with favorite topping. Makes 1 quart.

Ice Cream Pie: Double recipe for Quick Peanut Butter Ice Cream and turn into 9-inch prepared graham cracker crust. Freeze.

Peanut Butter Cereal Bars

1/2 cup dark corn syrup
1/2 cup creamy or chunk style peanut butter
1/2 cup light brown sugar
3 cups wheat cereal flakes
1/2 cup chocolate pieces

Grease 8x8x2-inch pan. Mix together in 2-quart saucepan corn syrup, peanut butter and sugar. Bring to boil over medium heat, stirring constantly, until sugar dissolves and ingredients are blended. Remove from heat. Stir in cereal and chocolate pieces. Turn into prepared pan, spread evenly and cool until firm. Cut into bars. Makes about 32 (2 x 1-inch) bars.

Stuffed Celery

8 ribs celery
3/4 cup peanut butter

Clean, drain and dry celery. Fill with peanut butter using pastry tube if desired. Cut in lengths desired. Cover and chill until ready to serve. Makes about 32 (2-inch) servings.

Peanut Butter Cake

2 eggs
1 cup water
1/2 cup creamy or chunk style peanut butter
1 recipe Creamy Peanut Butter Frosting

Mix together cake mix, eggs, water and peanut butter in large bowl of electric mixer on medium speed 5 minutes. Turn into ungreased 9x3 1/2-inch tube cake pan. Bake in 350 degree oven 50 to 55 minutes or until cake tester inserted in center comes out clean. Cool 10 minutes, then remove from pan. Cool completely. Frost with Creamy Peanut Butter Frosting.

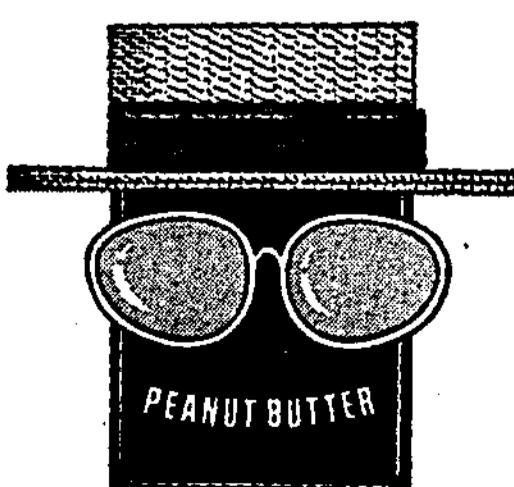

Creamy Peanut Butter Frosting: Mix together 1 package (15.4 ounces) creamy white frosting mix, $\frac{1}{4}$ cup creamy peanut butter and $\frac{1}{4}$ cup hot water in large mixing bowl until blended. Add an additional $\frac{1}{4}$ cup hot water and beat until smooth.

Peanut Butter Fudge Sauce

2 squares (1 ounce each) unsweetened chocolate
1 cup light corn syrup
1/4 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla
1/4 cup creamy or chunk style peanut butter

Melt chocolate in small heavy saucepan over low heat. Stir in corn syrup and salt. Remove from heat; stir in vanilla and peanut butter until smooth. Makes 1 1/4 cups.

Note: Can be reheated over low heat, stirring frequently, until warm.

Macaroni-cheese is one-pot dish

As part of their daily routine home-makers generally spend less time in the kitchen preparing family meals. Use of convenience-type foods is increasing, but often budget-conscious cooks note that dinner mixes may save time without cutting down little on family food costs. A one-pot macaroni and cheese combination is a do-it-yourself dish. It involves a new approach to cooking macaroni. This is to mix uncooked macaroni with all ingredients rather than pre-cooking the pasta which always means another pan to wash.

ONE-POT MACARONI AND CHEESE

$\frac{1}{2}$ cup chopped onion
1 tablespoon salad oil
2 cups milk
 $\frac{1}{2}$ cups water
1 teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons mustard powder
2 teaspoons Worcestershire
2 cups uncooked elbow macaroni (8 ounces)
3 cups (12 ounces) grated Cheddar cheese

Sauté onion in oil in non-stick electric Dutch oven or saucepan until tender. Stir in milk, water, seasonings and macaroni. Cook and stir at 300 degree setting or over medium heat until liquid begins to simmer. Reduce heat to 212 degrees or low heat on range and simmer until macaroni is tender, about 12 minutes. Stir occasionally. When macaroni is tender, remove from heat and stir in grated cheese until melted. Turn into serving dish and serve at once. Makes about 6 servings.

Diabetics warned that meat shortage may cause dangers

The current meat shortage may be fraught with dangers for diabetics.

Taking meat out of the diet may cause serious protein shortages as diabetics seek to substitute other foods with high protein content, warns the Diabetes Association of Greater Chicago.

There are 100,000 diabetics in the Chicago area who require protein to replace any unusual body losses from poor control of their condition, says Dr. Joseph H. Skom, president of the Association. They drop such important items as beef, lamb, pork, and veal from their diet because of shortages or high prices.

If they turn to high protein vegetables, such as dried beans and peas, they will jeopardize their condition, since these foods are also high in carbohydrates, a dangerous intake substance for diabetics. Dr. Skom and the Association recommend the following steps for all diabetics:

In the absence of meat in your diet, consult your meat exchange list for approved protein substitutes.

Stay with proven animal protein foods such as poultry, fish, eggs, and cheese.

Do not, under any circumstances include any new substitutes without checking first with your doctor or the Association.

Make sure that any substitution of vegetable protein foods for the entire family (such as dried beans and peas) are served only to non-diabetic members of the family.

Failure to follow these rules can result in extreme discomfort, and even danger, says Dr. Skom. Free information on safe foods during the shortage is available from the Diabetes Association, 913-8668.

Franfare

by Fran Heckart

"It's un-American," snarled one shopper at a local supermarket upon discovering the space beneath a little red tag marked "T-bone" now held a few packages of chicken.

"And I'm not buying chicken at that price," she glared at the butcher, assumed a most indignant pose, then marched around the aisle with her half-empty cart. The recipient of the lady's wrath merely shrugged his shoulders. He didn't look as though he was having a very good day either. Take away the beef and people are bound to get angry.

This is still "affluent America" but there is no longer a thick, juicy steak on every table.

Naturally, those suffering from withdrawl symptoms — the ones that hoard, steal and curse the farmers — receive a lot of publicity. But it's obvious that most Americans aren't happy when the beef supply is cut off. It's like no more apple pie.

The fact is that thousands of overweight Americans could derive health as well as budget benefits by eating less — of everything.

IN RECENT years, many surveys and published reports from medical sources have said that thousands of us are dangerously overweight because of overeating.

Studies have also shown that our diet is too high in animal fats — partly because of insistence on tender, marbled beef and other meats with high internal fat content. Many doctors say this predisposes us to heart and vascular ailments.

Following are some suggestions to pare dollars from your food budget and excess pounds from your girth. Halve the size of servings when high-cost, high-calorie meat is on the menu. Instead of a pound or more, make it three to four ounces of cooked weight of chops, roast, or stew meat per person.

Fill plates in the kitchen. You'll be surprised at how few requests for seconds you'll get when there's no extra food in sight.

ADOPT THE CUSTOM of starting dinner with a filling salad or other appetizer. And make it with low-calorie but bulky ingredients such as lettuce, cucumbers, tomatoes or cooked green beans. Off season, use drained, canned tomatoes instead of more expensive fresh ones.

Cut out commercially made snacks and substitute raw vegetable sticks instead. Carrots, celery, broccoli and cauliflower always seem to go farther raw, with a dip or seasoned salt, than they do when cooked.

Make a dip with a low-fat yogurt instead of dairy sour cream to save calories as well as cents.

If your family insists on seasoned cracker type snacks, make them from scratch. Brush the crackers lightly with melted margarine or salad oil and sprinkle them with seasoned salt or the herbs and spices of your choice before toasting a few minutes in a moderate oven.

LOOK FOR recipes that use meat or poultry cut in chunks or small pieces.

Diners aren't as aware of small portions of costly foods when they're mixed with other ingredients.

If a whole turkey is too much for your family, ask the meat dealer to half it with his power saw. Freeze half — or store an already frozen half — and roast the other half on top of homemade bread stuffing. Or cut up the second half and use the wing, back and leg portions in a casserole as you would chicken.

Studies have also shown that our diet is too high in animal fats — partly because of insistence on tender, marbled beef and other meats with high internal fat content. Many doctors say this predisposes us to heart and vascular ailments.

Halve the size of servings when high-

Mostly For Men

by Charles Flynn

Out of the deep South come today's recipes which served in tandem offer an excellent combination. Chicken in the Jug is a typically Southern dish and one which you can cook while attending a football game or other afternoon activity because it requires no attention.

Use serving pieces for best results, split breasts, thighs and legs, allowing at least two servings per person. Wash pieces and dry, then sprinkle with salt (1 teaspoon per pound of chicken is about right.)

Now melt a half stick of butter or margarine and squeeze in the juice of a half lemon (or 1 tablespoon of dry white wine). Rub chicken pieces with this mixture then sprinkle liberally with freshly ground black pepper. The original recipe says, "When you think you have enough pepper, start over and use that much again. When you think you have too much, that will be right."

Put the chicken pieces in one or more brown jugs, bean pots, or put all in a large casserole with lid. Do not add any water. Cover tightly with foil, then place lid on top of foil. Bake for 2½ to 3 hours at 325 degrees.

TO ACCOMPANY the chicken, along with a tossed salad, try this cheese grits dish, which is the best I have tasted.

Cook 1 cup grits in 4 cups boiling water to which you've added 1 teaspoon salt.

Stir frequently while boiling for 5 minutes, then add 1 stick (14 pound) butter or margarine and 1 cup grated sharp cheddar cheese. Beat 2 eggs in a cup, then add milk to fill the cup measure.

Add to grits mixture.

Butter a casserole and pour in mixture. Top with corn flakes which have been rolled, then sauté lightly in butter or margarine. I add a bit of grated parmesan to the topping. Bake 45 minutes in a pre-heated 375 degree oven.

Somehow or other, many people hesitate to use grits, probably because just the name is not enticing. However this coarsely ground white corn meal can be utilized in a variety of dishes. So try cheese grits. Serves 4.

Mrs. Dick Waldorf

by LOIS SEILER

Not that sirloin steak is ordinary at today's prices, but when prepared with a teriyaki marinade it is especially appealing to the palate.

Steak Teriyaki is a favorite of Dick and Jean Waldorf of Mount Prospect and their daughter Sara, 7. Jean marinates thin strips of steak in the spicy sauce for several hours, and threads it onto skewers with water chestnuts. Dick grills the meat for a mere ten minutes, basting it with the sauce while it cooks.

Sweet corn makes an excellent accompaniment for the steak, and can also be cooked on the grill. The Waldorfs favorite method is to soak the corn in water for several hours, wrap it in foil, husks and all, and steam it over hot coals.

"It tastes fresher when prepared this way, and is very tender and juicy," Jean said.

She also serves a savory rice dish with this meal that simulates the flavor of wild rice. This is achieved by browning white rice first with celery, onion and green pepper, then simmering it in chicken bouillon.

WHEN JEAN prepares this dinner for guests, she usually tops it off with an elegant dessert. One of her specialties is refreshing lemon souffle; another is a handsome Dobosch Torte.

Although the souffle is not baked, it is made in a souffle dish and is very high, light and lemony. Attractively garnished with whipped cream, lemon wedges and mint leaves, Jean simply passes the dish and lets guests help themselves.

The impressive appearance of her Dobosch Torte belies its ease of preparation. It is made with a pound cake which is cut lengthwise into six thin layers and filled and frosted with chocolate icing.

The torte may be decorated with cherries, pecans or decorator icing if desired, and looks especially attractive when sliced and all layers can be seen, according to Jean.

"I almost feel guilty when I serve this," she remarked. "Everyone thinks I've slaved for hours when in reality it only takes minutes to make."

Jean's other interests include gardening, sewing and playing the piano, and she is active in Newcomer's Golf League, League of Women Voters and Countryside Unitarian Church.

STEAK TERIYAKI

1½ pounds sirloin steak, 1-inch thick
½ cup soy sauce
½ cup brown sugar
2 tablespoons vegetable oil
½ teaspoon monosodium glutamate
½ teaspoon pepper
½ teaspoon garlic powder
1 teaspoon ginger

Have meat partially frozen and cut lengthwise in strips $\frac{1}{4}$ -inch thick. Combine remaining ingredients and marinade meat in sauce at least two hours. Lace meat onto skewers alternately with water chestnuts. Broil ten minutes over gray coals, basting with sauce. Serves 4.

MOCK WILD RICE

1½ cups raw regular white rice
½ cup butter
½ cup chopped celery
½ cup chopped onion
½ cup chopped green pepper
½ cups chicken bouillon
½ teaspoons salt

Saute rice, celery, onion and green pepper in butter in a saucepan until browned. Add remaining ingredients and bring to a boil. Reduce heat, cover and simmer 30 minutes, until liquid is absorbed. Serves 6 to 8.

LEMON SOUFFLE

2 envelopes unflavored gelatin
½ cup water
6 eggs
½ cups sugar
1 tablespoon grated lemon rind
2/3 cup fresh lemon juice
2 cups heavy cream

Prepare a 4-cup souffle dish by taping a foil collar around the top of a dish that is two inches higher than the dish. (When the liquid is poured in, it will be high. The collar can be removed when souffle is firm.) Sprinkle gelatin over water in saucepan and let stand ten minutes to soften. Dissolve over low heat and let cool.

Combine eggs and sugar in large bowl of electric mixer and beat at high speed until very thick and light, 7 to 8 minutes. Stir lemon rind and juice into cooled gelatin and add to egg mixture, beating until blended. Chill briefly in refrigerator or in a large bowl filled with ice cubes, stirring frequently until mixture is thick enough to mound. When it begins to congeal, fold in 1½ cups heavy cream, whipped. Refrigerate three hours or overnight.

Whip remaining ½ cup cream and use to garnish souffle, along with lemon wedges and mint leaves. Serves 8.

DOBOSCH TORTE

1 frozen Sara Lee Pound Cake
1 6-ounce package chocolate chips
½ cup boiling water
4 egg yolks
1 teaspoon vanilla or 2 tablespoons rum or cognac
1 stick butter, softened

Slice cake lengthwise into 6 thin layers.

Place chocolate chips into blender, add boiling water and blend at high speed 20 minutes. Remove top and add egg yolks and vanilla. Blend at high speed and, with motor running, drop in softened butter. Blend 15 seconds. Stop blender and scrape sides at least once after butter has been added. If frosting seems too runny, it can be refrigerated briefly before applying to cake.

Use chocolate mixture as filling and frosting for the cake and refrigerate at least one hour or longer before slicing. Draw fork through the frosting on top of cake and horizontally across sides about ten minutes after refrigerating. The torte may be decorated with maraschino cherries, pecans or decorator frosting, if desired. Serves 12.

'The No-Beef Cookbook'There's more to meals than meat!

by FRAN HECKART

When beef prices first began to soar, two creative homemakers decided it was time to take action.

Virginia Colgne and Marlon E. Pri-look approached the situation realistically. Their answer to the beef dilemma was to pool their imaginations, resources and recipes in such a way that the "chores" of shopping, cooking and serving could become a joyful, creative and satisfying experience — not a source of constant frustration.

The result is a 95-cent paperback entitled "The No-Beef Cookbook" published by Bantam Books. Called a "celebration of the ingenuity of the American homemaker," the book contains more than 100 beef-less, but imaginative recipes.

"This book is concerned solely with attractive and economical main dishes and we have been careful to keep the protein content of our recipes as high as possible," say the authors. They also remind us that the main dish need not be the primary or only source of protein in meals. A short summary of the United States Department of Agriculture Daily Food Guide on recommended protein requirements is included along with other nutrition information.

THOSE WHO believe there is no other entree than beef do well to consider such offerings as Braised Rabbit, Honey Duck, Chinese Shrimp, Egg Foo Young, Rice and Cheese Souffle, Stuffed Peppers or Spinach and Cheese Quiche.

The main dish recipes have been divided into five sections: Company's Coming, Everyday Meals, Cooking Ahead, Main Dish Soups and Cooking for Children, as well as a selection of sauces and salad dressings.

The more adventurous might opt for Stone Soup. Although the name implies a dish less than palatable, it's actually a combination of leftover meat and vegetables, barley, dried lima beans, tomatoes and frozen peas.

This soup gets its name from an old Hassidic story in which the wise man makes a "soup from a stone" by adding bits and pieces of whatever happens to be available, according to the authors.

Perhaps the most important aspect of "The No-Beef Cookbook" is that it offers imaginative as well as practical and economical alternatives to beef entrees. The following recipes are only a sampling from the new cookbook.

CHINESE PORK OMELET

2 tablespoons peanut oil

1 small onion, minced
1 cup diced, cooked pork
6 eggs, beaten
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper

Heat the oil in a frying pan. Add the minced onion and cook until translucent, about 1 minute. Add the diced pork and cook until thoroughly heated, about 5 minutes. Add the beaten eggs to which the salt and pepper have been added. Cook until the eggs begin to set, shaking the pan back and forth every few minutes. Serve immediately. Makes 4 servings.

QUICK FISH STEW
1 large onion, sliced
1 clove garlic, minced
2 tablespoons fat or shortening
3 cups canned tomatoes
1 teaspoon oregano
1 teaspoon basil
1 teaspoon salt
1 pound fish fillets, cubed
1/4 cup white wine (optional)

Brown onion and garlic in the fat or shortening in a large skillet. Add tomatoes, oregano, basil, salt and pepper; bring to a boil. Add fish and reduce heat to a simmer. Cook until fish is tender, about 20 minutes. Serve over noodles or rice.

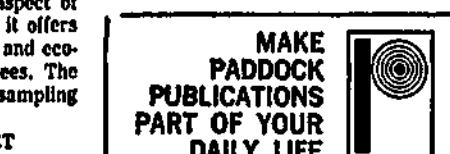

Seniors and calories

Senior citizens need fewer calories each day than the middle-aged, says Karen Kreipke, foods and nutrition specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

"This is because of changes in body chemistry, as well as a decrease in activity," she said.

A woman over 55 years of age needs about the same number of calories as a child four to six years old — about 1,700 calories. A man over 55 needs about the same number of calories as a boy 10 — approximately 2,400.

This dish can be varied by adding 1/4 cup white wine just before serving. Makes 3 to 4 servings.

Note: Almost any fish can be used in this dish. Sole, bluefish, snapper or butterfish are excellent.

NEW ORLEANS TUNA

1/4 cup bacon fat
1 cup chopped celery
1/2 cup chopped onion
1/2 cup chopped green pepper
2 cloves garlic, minced
2 cubes chicken bouillon
1/4 cups boiling water
3/4 cup rice, uncooked
1 (2 lb. 4-oz) can tomatoes
1 bay leaf
1/2 teaspoon thyme or marjoram
Salt
Pepper

2 7-oz cans tuna
1/4 cup chopped parsley
Melt bacon fat in a large skillet and cook celery, onion, green pepper and garlic until soft but not browned. Dissolve bouillon cubes in boiling water. Add to skillet. Add the rice, tomatoes, bay leaf and thyme or marjoram. Salt and pepper to taste. Simmer 30 minutes or until rice is done. Add tuna and parsley and simmer until heated through. Makes 4 servings.

CHICKEN CURRY WITH COCONUT

8 ounces dried shredded coconut

2 1/2 cups water or milk
2 to 2 1/2 pounds chickens, quartered
2 tablespoons coarse salt
3 tablespoons butter
1 large onion, sliced
2 teaspoons chili powder
1 teaspoon turmeric
2 teaspoons curry powder
1 teaspoon dry mustard
2 teaspoons ground ginger
4 cloves garlic, crushed
1/4 cup chopped parsley

Put coconut in a bowl and pour water or milk over it. Allow it to stand for 15 minutes. Either remove coconut a little at a time and squeeze dry and discard or put both coconut and liquid in a blender and puree. Reserve the coconut liquid. Rub the chicken pieces with salt. Melt butter in a skillet and fry the onions until they are translucent. Remove with a slotted spoon and set aside in a dish. Add chili powder, turmeric, curry, mustard, ginger and garlic to the skillet and cook slowly for 5 minutes. Add the chicken pieces and fry until golden on all sides. Add the cooked onion and coconut milk. Cover and simmer until the chicken is tender, about 20 minutes. Uncover and simmer 5 minutes more. Put in a serving dish and garnish with parsley. Makes 8 servings.

Fresh and saltwater fish are available fresh, frozen, dried, smoked or canned. Eating fish two or three times a week is encouraged by doctors whose patients need to follow a low-saturated fat diet. In selecting canned fish such as tuna or sardines, choose those packed in vegetable oils or water pack, or drain and rinse other oils before using in a variety of dishes. Fish is a top source of protein. In most areas prices for fish are high but often there are stocked fish ponds that may offer the fun of catching your own fish for less than you pay in the supermarket. A Fish Pie using the least expensive fish available in your supermarket helps stretch the food budget and has low cholesterol ingredients.

The following recipe is one of several low-cholesterol, low-fat recipes from "The Doctors' Save-Your-Heart Diet" by Aileen Claire and David Hendin. Readers may obtain a copy by sending name, address and zip with check or money order for 95 cents, plus postage and handling, to The Doctors' Save-Your-Heart Diet, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

FISH PIE

1 1/2 pounds fish fillets
10 small cooked onions, sliced
1 tablespoon thinly sliced pimientos
1/4 cup chopped green pepper
3 tablespoons diet margarine
4 tablespoons flour
1 cup skim milk

Poach fish until done, strain and reserve 1 cup stock. Alternate layers of fish, onions and pimientos in a 2 1/2-quart casserole. Sauté green pepper in margarine for 5 minutes. Blend in flour, then add fish stock. Cook, stirring, until sauce begins to bubble. Add lemon juice, salt, Worcestershire sauce, and pepper. Pour over fish. Top with potatoes. Bake at 425 degrees 25 to 30 minutes, or until hot and browned. Makes 6 servings.

To the readers of the Herald: The Herald, like most other daily newspapers, is facing a severe newsprint shortage because of labor difficulties at the large Canadian paper mills.

Our supplier of newsprint, International Paper Co., is now being struck and paper supplies are dwindling.

We will do our best during this paper shortage to give you the full range of news and advertisements you have come to expect in the morning Herald. But for the duration of the Canadian paper strike we will be forced to make some adjustments to our total press run.

Naturally, our home delivered subscribers will get priority delivery of the Herald; there may be a short supply of the Herald at some newsstands while the strike continues.

Projects over next two years to increase supply

Water system improvements planned

by JOE FRANZ

Several major improvements to the water system that will increase the supply of water in Buffalo Grove are scheduled in the next two years, according to Public Works Director William Davis.

The first project, which will be started in about two weeks, consists of a one million gallon addition to the underground reservoir adjacent to well No. 2. The reservoir at 525 N. Arlington Heights Rd., now has a capacity of half a million gallons of water.

Davis said the additional storage space is needed so an adequate amount of water can be provided to every resident, even during drought periods. He explained that the pumps on village wells cannot keep up with the demand for water during high usage periods. By storing water in reservoirs for peak periods, the water system is able to keep up with the demand, he said.

PRESENTLY VILLAGE residents use about two million gallons of water a day. This figure, however, increases substantially during the summer months. The worst times are usually the weekends when more residents sprinkle their lawns and wash their cars, Davis said.

Increasing the reservoir capacity is also important to insure firemen have an adequate supply of water when fighting a serious fire, he added.

If an equipment breakdown at well No. 2 occurs, the added capacity of the reservoir will give repair crews more time before the water supply at the well runs out, Davis said. Workmen will have 48 hours to make repairs before being forced to hook onto another well.

Two years ago when the original reservoir at well No. 2 was constructed, it was designed so that its capacity could be increased at a later date.

THE ADDITION TO the reservoir will be done by Bulley and Andrews Inc., at a cost of $188,642. The bid was the lowest of the nine considered.

The contract states the project should be completed 168 days from the time the village directs the contractor to begin construction. For every additional day after the 168 a penalty of $100 will be assessed to the contractor.

Now the village has five wells and is planning to dig a sixth by 1974 or 1975. Well No. 1 and No. 2 serve one-half of the village while wells No. 3 and No. 4 serve the other half. In the event that one of the two wells which serves a section of the village breaks down, the second well serves as a backup, Davis said.

Although there are no plans at present to increase the one-half million gallon capacity of the reservoir at well No. 1, there are plans to increase its pumping capacity from 350 gallons per minute to 1,100 to 1,200 per minute. Work on the well, which is at 345 N. Arlington Heights Road is scheduled to begin Oct. 1 and take about six months. The work will cost about $90,000, Davis said.

In about two years the village plans to increase the capacity of the reservoir at well No. 4 to one million gallons. At present, the well, which is behind the Ranch Mart shopping center, has a capacity of a-half-million gallons.

THERE ARE NO plans at present for improvements at well No. 3 which is at 160 N. Raupp Blvd. Davis, however, said the well's capacity was increased in 1971 from 450 to 1,000 gallons a minute. The well has a 300,000 gallon reservoir, he said.

Well No. 5, which is located next to No. 4 is a shallow well and is only used in times of severe drought, Davis said. He said water which comes out of the well has a high sulphur content and is not pleasant to drink. There are no plans to improve it at this time, he said.

Village officials are now drawing up plans for construction of the village's sixth well which will be located in the Hawthorn development which is planned for Lake County.

DAVIS SAID the village's water supply at the present time is adequate except during extreme droughts. "Our goal with these improvements is to make it so residents can't tell what time of year it is by the water pressures in their homes. We want the same water pressure throughout the entire year," he said.

Even though the water supply is to be increased, village officials have said it is not likely the sprinkling ordinance will be lifted. The ordinance permits residents with odd street numbers to sprinkle on Mondays, Wednesdays and Saturdays, and residents with even street numbers to sprinkle on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Sundays. No sprinkling is allowed on Fridays.

At present it does not appear the planned improvements in the water system will bring an increase in water rates. Trustees, when discussing the village budget recently, said they were opposed to increasing the rates.

Although village officials have said the supply of water from village wells will not last indefinitely, it appears the possibility of the village getting its water from Lake Michigan is a long way off. Officials are studying the possibility, but have said it would be too costly now.

Blood donor drive Sunday; mobile unit here all day

There's still time for Buffalo Grove residents to sign up to donate blood in the community-wide drive Sunday.

The blood drive is being conducted by the Buffalo Grove Blood Donor Commission in cooperation with the North Suburban Association of Health Resources (NSAHR) and the North Suburban Blood Center (NSBC).

A mobile blood unit will be at Longfellow School, 501 Arlington Heights Rd., between the hours of 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. Residents may make an appointment to give blood anytime during those hours to avoid waiting in line. However, appointments are not necessary.

THIS IS THE first community blood drive conducted in the village since the village board several months ago agreed to participate in the guaranteed blood replacement program.

The blood program provides free blood replacement anywhere in the country for all residents of a community if 4 per cent of its residents donate one pint of blood per year. Buffalo Grove's current population is about 18,000 so about 720 pints of blood will be needed each year the village takes part in the program.

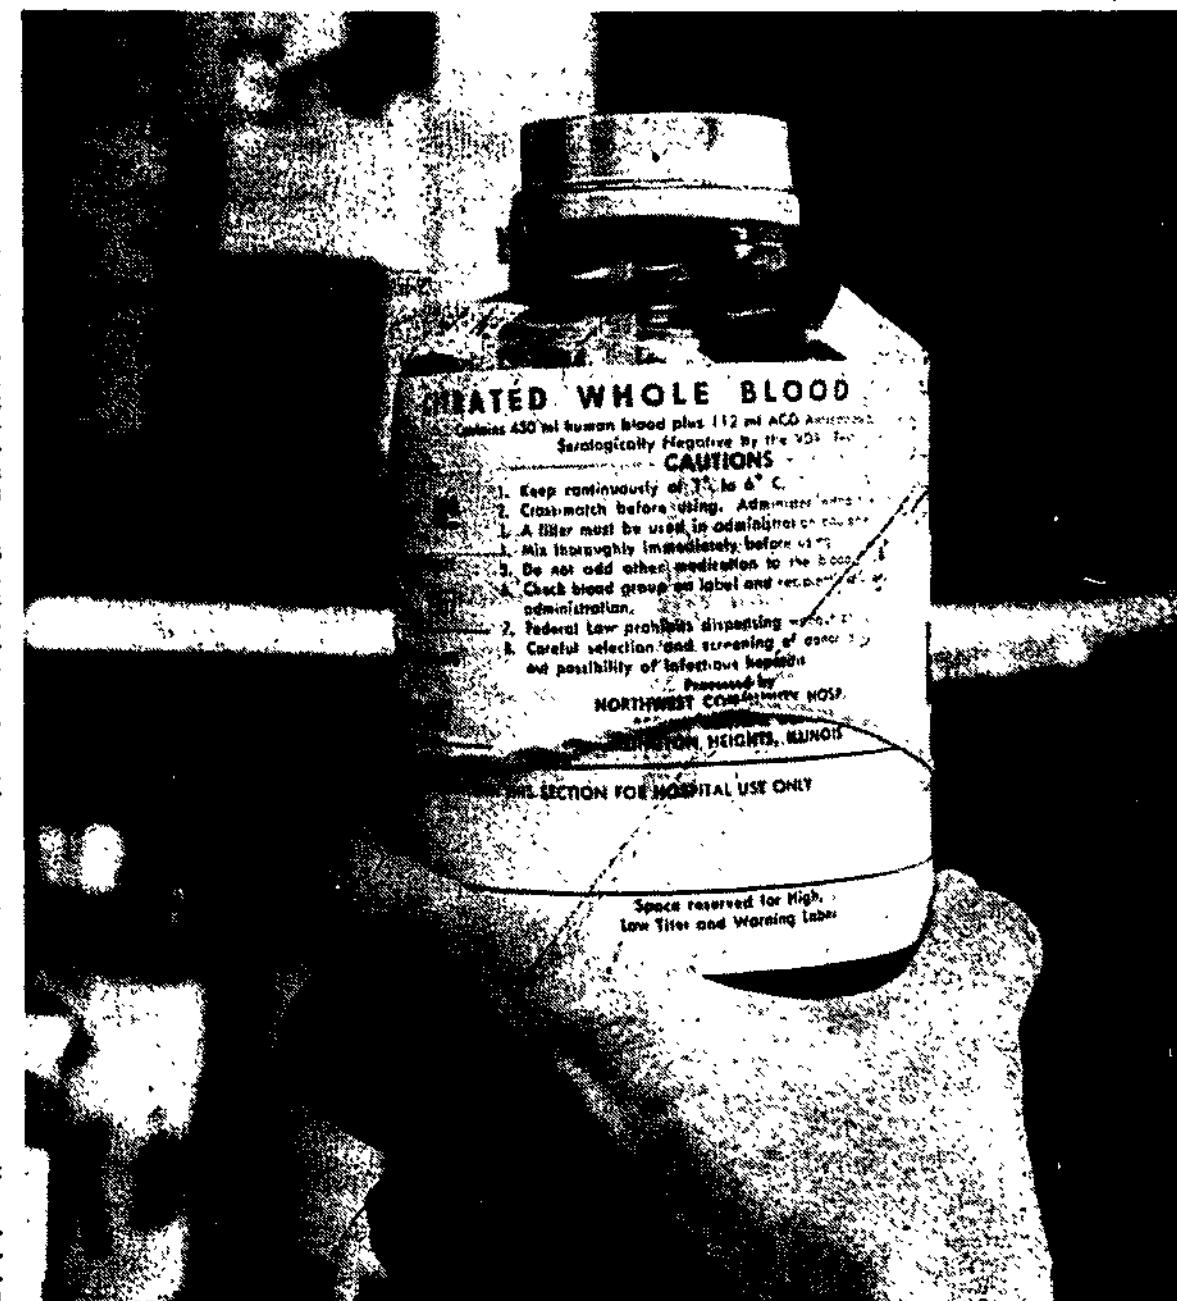

Although the eventual community commitment is 4 per cent for the year, the free blood replacement program goes into effect as soon as one-half of 1 per cent of the residents have given blood.

SINCE 168 PINTS of blood have already been donated by participants in similar guaranteed blood replacement program drives conducted by local organizations, the village is already covered. However, blood donor commission members stress that more blood donors are needed to insure future coverage.

Donors must be between 18 and 65 years old and weigh at least 110 pounds. Persons who have had hepatitis are not eligible to donate. Those who have had other diseases or who have been on medication recently may have to wait before becoming eligible to give.

Appointments to donate blood Sunday may be made by contacting the village hall at 537-8984; Harold Gianopoulos at 537-4422; Carol Lauter at 541-6440; or Fire Chief Wayne Winter at 537-0995.

There are certain foods that blood donors should avoid before giving blood. That information may also be obtained from those taking appointments.

Parks plan pool contest

The Buffalo Grove park district is planning a contest to name the new indoor pool at Buffalo Grove High School.

Contest rules will be discussed tonight by the board at its regular meeting, 8 p.m. in the Emmerich Park building, 150 Raupp Blvd.

The indoor pool is scheduled to be completed along with the rest of the school by Sept. 1. School and park officials have agreed to jointly use the facility.

In other business tonight the commissioners are scheduled to discuss adoption of a personnel policy manual and park employee contracts.

The developers originally asked the village board for "total flexibility" in varying the types of units in the development. This would have allowed them complete freedom to change their plans and drop one or more of the unit types that failed to sell.

The board, however, said it would not accept the project without some control over the type of units built.

A COMPROMISE worked out by the board and the developers gives the builders permission to vary the units, to include no fewer than 80 apartments, 200 townhouses and 250 multi-plex units. The agreement allows the developer to vary units by as much as 70 per cent.

The plan commission, which approved the project before it was considered by the board, recommended the trustees allow no more than a 10 per cent variation in the number of units built.

The Wheeling Public Library is sponsoring the event, which will be at St. Mary's School in Buffalo Grove.

Children who will enter the second grade this fall or are older may participate in the activities scheduled for 1:30 to 2:30 p.m.

According to Joanne Nykiel, children's librarian, the activities will include organized softball, football and dodgeball games. There also will be a free play area for badminton, basketball, jump roping and other games.

Three age groups of children will also compete in races. First, second and third place ribbons will be awarded. Several movies on sports also will be shown inside the school building, Miss Nykiel said.

OTHER COMING children's activities include a "creative dramatics day" to be held next Thursday in the Wheeling Public Library building, at 850 Jenkins Ct., in Wheeling.

Children will do "beginning types of dramatic experiments using their imagination," Miss Nykiel said.

The dramatic activities for second, third and fourth graders will be from 1:30 to 2:30 p.m. Older children may participate between 7 and 8 p.m.

The library also will sponsor an end of the summer celebration on Aug. 25 for children who have participated in the summer reading program.

Achievement certificates will be presented to children who have filled the program requirements and refreshments will be served.

The celebration, which will also take place in the library building, is open to all families and friends of the children receiving awards, Miss Nykiel said.

Over-all crime totals increase, but felonies are down

by LYNN ASINOF

Comparative midyear figures released by the Wheeling Police Department show a 10 per cent increase in the number of reported criminal cases, but a 19 per cent decrease in felonies.

As of the end of June this year 936 criminal offenses were reported to police compared to 869 reported at the same time last year.

Most of the increase is attributed to a rise in the number of less serious criminal cases — including disorderly conduct, drunkenness and minor assaults. This year 637 less serious offenses were reported representing a 28 per cent increase over last year's 536 reported cases.

CRIMINAL CASES considered felonies

include homicide, rape, robbery, aggravated assault, burglary, larceny and auto theft. In this category, the number of reported criminal cases, but a 19 per cent decrease in felonies.

The most substantial decrease in the serious category was in the number of reported larcenies involving less than $50. Last year, 171 cases were reported compared to 93 this year, a 46 per cent decrease.

Correspondingly, the number of reported larcenies involving more than $50 increased 25 per cent from 97 cases last year to 121 this year. Police have arrested suspects in about two per cent of all reported larcenies.

Another large decrease in serious crime was in the number of reported aggravated assaults. Last year 23 cases were reported compared to only eight this year.

OF THE TOTAL number of criminal incidents reported so far this year, police have arrested suspects in 6.9 per cent of the cases. This is a decrease from last year when arrests were made in 8.6 per cent of all reported crimes.

Enforcement also decreased in the number of arrests for serious criminal offenses. The police department arrested suspects in 6.7 per cent of reported cases, compared to last year's 12.6 per cent.

Police made arrests in 6.9 per cent of the less serious criminal cases. Last year arrests were made in 8.2 per cent of these cases.

WHILE THE NUMBER of reported crimes has increased over last year's figures, the number is still well below the 1971 mid-year count. More than 1,100 criminal offenses were reported in 1971 compared to 966 this year.

The total number of juvenile offenses decreased substantially. This year 122 cases were reported, compared to 213 last year, a 43 per cent change.

Serious juvenile offenses decreased largely because of a 47 per cent drop in reported cases of larceny involving less than $50. Last year 28 such juvenile cases were reported compared to this year's 15.

THE NUMBER OF less serious juvenile offenses decreased 40 per cent, with large drops in the number of reported cases of disorderly conduct, weapons offenses and runaways.

This year the number of juveniles involved in disorderly conduct cases dropped 82 per cent from 38 to 7 cases. The number of runaways decreased 19 per cent from 43 last year to 35 this year.

There were, however, increases in the number of reported juvenile drug, truancy and sex offenses.

Most arrested juveniles were released to their parents' custody, while four were referred to family court.

In most areas, the number of traffic offenses increased this year over last year. The number of reported accidents was up 19 per cent from 318 last year to 377 this year.

THE NUMBER OF persons injured in accidents increased 17 per cent, from 54 to 63. Likewise, property damage increased 19 per cent, with 305 cases reported this year compared to 256 cases last year.

The largest number of traffic citations were issued for speeding and parking offenses. The largest increase in the number of traffic citations was for driving while intoxicated. This year 43 persons were charged for this offense while only 12 were charged last year, representing a 238 per cent increase.

Only the number of traffic citations issued for improper turns decreased. This year 28 such traffic tickets were issued compared to last year's 43.

Arlington Park C&NW rates, times set

Chicago and North Western Ry. officials have established the timetable and fares for trains that will stop at the new depot at Arlington Park Race Track, scheduled to open Sept. 1.

The Arlington Park stop on the North Western's northwest line will not affect any existing arrival or departure times in Chicago or at any of the suburban stations.

One exception, train 621, which now leaves Chicago at 4:13 p.m. will be changed to a 4:10 afternoon departure.

A single round-trip ride from Arlington Park to Chicago will cost $2.50, an unlimited monthly pass will be $37.50. Monthly service from the downtown Arlington Heights depot now costs $36.20; from Palatine, $30.

Regular commuter trains are scheduled to begin stopping at Arlington Park on Saturday, Sept. 1. Most trains now running on Saturday and Sunday will stop at the new depot.

REGULAR, Monday through Friday, schedules will not go into effect until Tuesday, Sept. 4, the day after Labor Day.

THE RACE TRACK will make available parking for 800 cars near the new station, built by the village at a cost of $100,000.

Tom Rivera, Arlington Park's director of public relations, said the details of exit and entrance, parking fees and location have not yet been determined.

The first few days of the depot's operation may be complicated by the Future

America Fair, scheduled to run at Arlington Aug. 24 through Sept. 3.

The area around the new station will be used for exhibits and amusement rides, all of which probably will not be cleared away by Sept. 4.

Special trains for fairgoers will run between Arlington Park and Chicago during the 10-day fair which promoters hope will attract half a million visitors.

RIVERA SAID he did not know whether parking would be metered, by permit, or simply collected at the race track gate. Access to the station will be at

A three-way agreement between Arlington Heights, the railroad and the race track limits the cost of parking to the rate prevailing in the village, currently 50 cents a day.

Commuters from northern parts of Arlington Heights, Rolling Meadows, Palatine, Elk Grove, Schaumburg and Hoffman Estates are expected to take advantage of the track's easy access off of Rt. 53.

The new depot was included in the 1969 annexation agreement between the village and the race track.

Brothers 'fiddle on the roof'

by DIANE STEFANOS

Sneakers and cut-off jeans, freckles, cellos and violins — that's what little boys are made of?

At least Steve and Dominick Pezen are so much, that the mischievous but creative twosome days ago decided to present their own rendition of "Fiddler on the Roof" to the world by playing upon their family rooftop.

"FIDDLER ON THE ROOF" became the story of two fun loving boys from Hoffman Estates who decided to do their own roof top fiddling around while playing music from the famous production. Dominick Pezen, 11, left,

It had been what any mother of six would call a normal day until then. The eldest daughter, Laura, 22, was leaving the house when a sudden wind of "If I

WERE A RICH MAN" filled the air.

Plinky, plunky, squeaky notes from horse hair sliding across violin strings echoed throughout the neighborhood. With astonishment, neighbors and family located the origin of the innocent plucking on the family's rooftop.

THE MUSICAL efforts of the two grinning, baseball loving boys were met by the laughing and smiling approval of those who looked on.

"It's really a shock for a mother to see her sons practicing their instruments as they usually do on the roof instead of in the family room. Those kids did it all on their own because they like music so much," Mrs. Dolores Pezen said.

Inspired by the fiddler of fate and the musical score from the movie "Fiddler on the Roof," the two young string students decided to bring a little Jerry Goldsmith's musical composition to their Hoffman Estates neighborhood.

Dominick, 11, loves to play the violin as much as his brother Steve, 12, loves to play his cello. The two of them team up for practice at home and in their school District 84 orchestra.

It was Dominick's idea to play on the roof, first playing outside on the family's front lawn and later moving to the wooden fort the boys had built in their backyard.

"I don't know really why I went up there. I thought it would be fun because the fiddler in the movie did it. Besides, it made a lot of people laugh and enjoy it," Dominick said.

"We play classical music in school and I like that. But I like songs with rhythm that move too, like the songs from 'Fiddler on the Roof.' That's why Steve and I decided to play that ourselves," he added.

IT'S IMPRESSIVE enough when children ask to take up playing instruments on their own at a young age, but when they take it upon themselves to do their own improvising, it can only prove parental satisfaction, Mrs. Pezen said.

Every member of the Pezen family seems convinced that music brings out the best in people, creatively, spiritually and emotionally. When Lawrence Pezen gathers with the rest of his family after a day's work, Loretta, 17; Lawrence Jr., 19; Stan, 14, and grandma Celia, all play audience to the two musicians' practice sessions.

"We watch musical shows on television like Arthur Fiedler and the Boston Pops, or we go to hear concerts at Harper Junior College. Hearing music and seeing musicians at work stimulates the boys and gives the whole family a good experience," Mrs. Pezen said.

The boys enjoy playing cello and violin enough to stick with it through high school.

"Both of us might do it professionally someday. I'll do it if the orchestra's good enough," Dominick said.

by PAT GERLACH

The acceptability of a 5 per cent rent decrease compensating the lack of recreational facilities promised Sheffield Village apartment residents will be considered when its tenants association meets tonight.

The apartments are located in Schaumburg, southeast of Golf and Barrington roads.

"I don't know really why I went up there. I thought it would be fun because the fiddler in the movie did it. Besides, it made a lot of people laugh and enjoy it," Dominick said.

Apartments, commercial buildings fail to get permits

Sewer hookups violate state laws

by DOROTHY OLIVER

More than 20 apartments and commercial buildings in Des Plaines have tied in to sewers in violation of state regulations.

State sewer permits issued by the Environmental Protection Agency have been required since April 16, 1972 for all commercial and industrial buildings as well as all single buildings which house more than 15 persons.

But according to EPA records, only two permits have been issued in Des Plaines since the regulation took effect.

The HERALD discovered 23 buildings have been or are being constructed here without the required state permit. The EPA permit is required in addition to city and Metropolitan Sanitary District sewer permits.

Section 901A, Chapter 3 of the Illinois Pollution Control Board Rules and Regulations sets forth the requirements for the state sewer permit:

"No person shall cause or allow the construction of any new treatment works, sewer or wastewater sewer or cause or allow the modification of any existing treatment works, sewer or wastewater sewers without a construction permit issued by this agency..."

THE STATE regulations are designed to prevent overloading by controlling sewer connections. "If a sewage treatment plant becomes overloaded, we can cut off further permits for its lines," an EPA environmental protection engineer said yesterday.

Permits are not required for storm sewers that transport only land runoff, sewer tie-ins for a single building housing less than 15 persons, or sewers built before April 16, 1972.

"I would find it hard to believe that no one in Des Plaines had applied for a permit," said Jack Marco, acting director of the EPA.

He said it was "nearly impossible" for any large number of buildings to be built without EPA permits. "Every consulting engineer in the state knows about the EPA regulations, they live with them every day," he said.

LOCAL BUILDING commissioners, engineers and environmental personnel should have found out about the regulations through the Illinois Pollution Control Board (IPCB) newsletter, trade journals, federal publications and newspaper articles, he said.

Although Des Plaines Environmental Control Officer Philip Lindahl receives the IPCB newsletter he said he has never heard of the need for state permits. Neither has Building Commissioner Al fred Prickett or any other city official contacted by the Herald.

"I've never heard of such a thing," Prickett said. "They (builders) need a city permit and in some cases an MSD permit but no one ever told me they needed any other state permit."

"We held extensive hearings on this particular regulation," said Marco. "We put public notice in the newspapers, called the hearings and then formed the regulation. Professionals especially should know about it."

"ENFORCEMENT of the EPA sewer permit is up to the surveillance section. Local officials may grant sewer permits before builders have received an EPA permit.

Ben Leland, supervisor of the Des Plaines River Basin surveillance section, said engineers and sanitarians from his section inspect construction sites if they believe a builder has not applied for an EPA permit.

According to EPA records no complaints have been received on Des Plaines sites and no action has been taken on the illegal sewer tie-ins.

"If someone does not have an EPA permit it's probably because they are not aware they needed one," Leland said. "We give them the benefit of the doubt but tell them they must go get a permit. Generally that ends it."

WHEN LELAND was told at least 23 buildings have been constructed without EPA permits he said, "I'm not quite sure what we'll do about it. We've got so many people with so many things to do — it's a matter of priorities as to what gets done."

Leland suggested the Herald contact

Marco. Marco was in Springfield yesterday and unavailable for comment.

The two EPA permits that have been issued since April 1972, were for Des Plaines Mazda, 900 Rand Rd. and the Cook County Housing Authority for the the city's citizen housing project at Lee and Ashland.

Buildings that require EPA permits but did not apply for them include:

386 Alles St., 11-unit apartment, B and C Builders; 960-88 Des Plaines Ave., 26-unit apartment, Harmony Builders; 303 N. River Rd., 120-unit building, Holy Family of Nazareth; 1627 Oakton Place, hardware store, Alvin Nagel; 2074 Wolf Rd., group of retail stores, Prentiss Corp.; 1226 Washington Ave., 12-unit apartment, Northwest Suburban Real Estate Investment Corp.; 31 E. Oakton St., office-warehouse, NTN Bearing Corp. of America; 2379 Ballard Rd., service station, Cities Service Oil Co.; 1229 Touhy Ave., store, Joseph Wahl; 211 River Rd., office building, Continental Office Corp.; 1445-53 Ashland Ave., 17-unit apartment; E.T. and W.J.F. Behrel to sell bank stock 'to avoid interest conflict'

Des Plaines Mayor Herbert Behrel has announced he is in the process of selling stock he owns in two local banks that hold city accounts.

The Herald disclosed last month that Behrel owned 100 shares in the First National Bank of Des Plaines and 45 shares in the Des Plaines National bank. The stock is valued at about $6,100.

Behrel said that while he did not consider ownership of the stock a conflict of interest, he was selling the stock to remove any suspicion.

He noted the stock paid only 2.5 percent interest and he could make more money by putting the funds in a savings account.

The mayor said he plans to use proceeds from the stock sale as a down payment on a home in Arizona.

THE QUESTION OF conflict of interest arose when the two banks in question announced plans to buy the land for the Superblock redevelopment project and lease it to developers.

The mayor was recuperating from a hospital stay and did not attend the July 16 council meeting when aldermen voted on the Superblock proposal. He later said he would have abstained from voting on the issue if he had attended.

City Atty. Robert DiLeonardi said someone could challenge the proposal in the courts and delay the project for several years.

"I decided it was the better part of valor not to vote," Behrel said at a press conference on July 17.

"I would have abstained if I had been there. I still feel no compunction in holding bank stock," Behrel added.

Another city official Ald. Charles Bolek (3rd) had owned bank stock but sold it about 90 days ago. Ald. Thomas Koplos (1st) also owns bank stock and abstained from voting on Superblock.

A number of the principals in the Superblock project are listed as owners of bank stock, according to records in the Cook County Assessor's office.

Resident reports burglary attempt

Burglars tried to force their way into the home of a local resident Tuesday but apparently did not enter the house. Nothing was reported stolen, said Des Plaines police.

Mrs. Gill Newman, 750 Arlington Ave., told police she was in her basement Tuesday afternoon when she heard noises upstairs but saw no one in the house upon investigating.

Police said however, the woman's husband returned home a short time later and noticed a partially open window screen.

Oakton earmarks 2 sites for permanent campus

by KATHERINE BOYCE

Two sites have been earmarked for the permanent campus of Oakton Community College by the college's citizen's advisory committee.

In a meeting Tuesday night, the committee rejected all potential campus sites located outside the district and split its vote 4 to 4 between the site of the temporary campus and a site in the Northwest corner of the district.

The temporary campus, which college officials say can be expanded to a maximum of 27 acres, is located at 7900 N. Nagle Ave., just south of Oakton Street in Morton Grove. The Northwest site, called the Central Road site, includes 122 acres south of Central Road and east of the Des Plaines River in unincorporated Maine Township.

When voting on a second priority site, the majority of the committee selected another site in the Northwest corner of the district at Wolf and Foundry roads in Des Plaines. The Wolf Road site has 130 acres.

er communities on the North Shore and listed annexation to Oakton as a second choice. The Oakton board of trustees, disappointed by the decision and impatient with the delay, voted last month to select a site immediately.

THE COMMITTEE voted 7 to 1 Tuesday to support the board's decision and voted unanimously to drop all sites out of the district from consideration.

Wallace Lieberman, committee member from Skokie, voted against the Oakton board's resolution to move ahead with site selection. He said people in Skokie are still hoping the college will eventually get a site in Northfield Township. "My personal opinion is to sit and not choose a site," he said.

When the majority of the committee voted to support the board's resolution, Lieberman voted with the majority to reject the Northfield sites. He then said, "I really think that to consider Zenith or Techney (two Northfield sites that had been under consideration) is a waste of time."

College officials tried to get legislation allowing them to annex land in Northfield Township introduced in the state legislature last June. The legislation was never introduced but the college hoped to try again in October.

Oakton trustee Thomas Flynn told the committee Tuesday the college would have trouble passing a referendum to fund a campus on the two Northwest sites because they are not centrally located in the college district.

John Means asked him, "Do you think you could pass a referendum for Zenith a half mile away?"

The Central Road site is owned by the Chicago Catholic Archdiocese and according to Gilson, the church is willing to sell the land to the college. The land had been planned for expansion of All Saints Cemetery in Des Plaines. The site is zoned for single family housing, and is a heavily wooded area located in the Des Plaines River flood plain. The college may build an access road to the site from Golf Road. Other access to the site is from Central Road.

THE COLLEGE now leases land and buildings on the temporary campus from several owners, Cook Electric Co., Vaylor-Singer Co., and an investment trust company located in Chicago. Gilson said the owners of the land are unwilling to sell. The college has the right of eminent domain and may condemn the property, forcing the owners to sell.

Because the temporary campus site is small, academic buildings would be about three stories on four acres of land plus room to park about 2,000 cars. Depending on the way the college decides to develop the site, a multi-level parking garage may be needed.

THE WOLF ROAD site is now farmland and is zoned for single family housing. Because the site is divided by Foothill Ditch, flooding could be a problem, according to a preliminary architect's study. Access to the site is from both Wolf and Central roads.

DES PLAINES

First phase of $2.3 million project

Higgins-Willow Creek work to begin in spring

by STEVE BROWN

The first stage of an estimated $2.3 million improvement project for Higgins-Willow Creek in Des Plaines will be started next spring.

A $60,000 state appropriation for the project was approved in the last session of the Illinois General Assembly.

Mayor Herbert Behrel announced earlier this week that the initial appropriations had been approved by Gov. Daniel Walker.

THE CREEK, which runs along the city's south and west sides, has overflowed several times in recent years, usually causing backups along Mannheim Road in Rosemont and sewer backups in the Orchard Place Section of Des Plaines. The project will also affect the creek in sections of Mount Prospect and Elk Grove Village.

The state appropriation was part of a $41 million state flood control package.

John Guillou, head of the state's division of waterways, said work on the project will probably begin next spring. He said the state is preparing plans for the work which will include channel improvements along the creek.

BESIDES WORK on the creek itself, bridges at River Road and Orchard Place will be replaced. Guillou said funds for the River Road bridge will come from the Illinois Department of Transportation.

The Orchard Place bridge replacement

will be financed by the city through federal revenue sharing funds.

Guillou said that the first channel improvement work will probably be started at the mouth of the creek where it joins the Des Plaines River and where the creek crosses Mannheim Road.

"We plan to work where the channel is the worst in that area," he said.

He noted that when the project was first planned the estimated cost was $1.6 million, but the 12-year delay in receiving an appropriation for the project caused the more than 60 per cent increase.

He said the current project is planned along the lines of the 1961 proposal and there might be additional work required at a later date.

"WE WILL KNOW more about it when we get into the design phase," Guillou added.

He said additional appropriations will probably be approved by the General Assembly in the next few years.

Local officials, including Behrel had initially thought Governor Walker vetoed the money, but Behrel said the governor had vetoed a duplicate bill and the money for the creek had been approved.

Behrel has also said that he plans to meet with Mount Prospect officials in an effort to get that community to provide $10-15,000 in funds for a portion of the work.

Maryville Academy site: River Trails Junior High

by MARY HOULIHAN

The River Trails Dist. 26 School Board voted 5-2 to accept the River Trails Junior High School property, 1000 Wolf Rd., as the site for a new school to house students at Maryville Academy, Des Plaines.

Board Pres. Lloyd Demel and board member Michael Sheyker voted against the decision Tuesday night.

About 35 residents appeared to voice their opinions on the two proposed sites of the school: the junior high property and a site north of Maryville and junior high students, the plus for the Maryville students, Retzlaff said, is that the junior high site would "get the youngsters away from an institutional setting."

"I FEEL THIS is the best location for the school," Retzlaff said. "We don't wish to segregate these youngsters as such because when these kids graduate from eighth grade, they go to Maine North where there is no where else to put them. The sooner we can help them create a self-image to improve their lot in life, the better."

Maryville is an institution owned by the Archdiocese of Chicago which houses students with severe emotional or behavioral problems.

The advantage for the junior high students, Retzlaff said, would be to expose suburban youngsters to more of the world. "The suburban communities are as homogeneous as you can get," he said. "The kids in this district don't know what the city of Chicago is, but they know what the top of the moon looks like."

Another factor entering into the board's decision on the junior high was that of economics. The junior high property is already owned by the school district so the only cost will be for construction. The Illinois Capital Development Board (ICDB) has notified the school board they will not pay any money to acquire a site. The $1 million appropriation includes only money for site development and construction.

THE PROPERTY north of Maryville would cost the district a minimum of $130,000. This includes approximately $75,000 for the site as well as an additional $35,000 or so to develop it. According to Demel a storm sewer exists on the property and part of the site has been built up with landfill which would mean excessive earthwork to put up a building.

Since the ICDB has refused to pay the cost for acquiring a site, the school district would have to bear the burden of the added $130,000. According to board member Sylvia Lurie, if the board had approved the Maryville site, it would have meant going to the voters with a referendum to raise the money.

Maine fresh test

All students who plan to enter one of the Maine high schools as freshmen this fall are required to take a placement test. Students who have not taken this test can do so at 7:45 a.m. Aug. 15, at Maine Township High School West, 1755 S. Wolf Rd. Details may be obtained by calling any of the four Maine high schools.

This notice applies mainly to students who recently moved into the district.

Free dental clinic set

The Cook County Department of Public Health and the Children's Dental Service, Inc., announced the opening of a children's dental clinic at the Westminster Presbyterian Church August 20. The clinic is designed to provide routine prophylaxis and corrective services for dentally indigent children under sixteen years of age.

The clinic will be held every Monday and Tuesday 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Appointments for the clinic can be made by calling 208-3800.

The Children's Dental Service, Inc., was organized to aid the Cook County Department of Public Health establish a dental clinic in North Cook County. The ground work for the organization of this program was done by the Des Plaines League of Women Voters. The location for the clinic was donated by the Westminster Presbyterian Church.

A survey conducted in 1971 identified more than 2,000 children living in North-West Cook County who could not afford services of a private dentist.

Sabbath services slated

Maine Township Jewish Congregation, 6800 Ballard Road, will conduct Sabbath services this weekend. Traditional services at 7 p.m. will usher in the Sabbath Friday. Saturday Rabbi Jay Karzen and Cantor Harry Solowich will officiate at 8:30 a.m. and a special Bar Mitzvah Mincha service at 7 p.m. Dennis Fuller, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Fuller, 8044 A Lyons, Niles, will be the celebrant and become a member of the adult Jewish community.

Registrations for Hebrew, Sunday and nursery school are being processed through the office. School begins after Labor Day.

Short heads schools group

Dr. Richard R. Short, superintendent of schools of Maine Township High School District 207, has been elected president of the Associated Public School Systems, a research and educational service organization made up of 150 public school systems across the nation. He was elected to the office at the association's regular summer conference, held recently in New York City.

The Associated Public School Systems was formed 25 years ago for the purpose of seeking out new approaches and solutions to pressing school problems.

Dr. Short has been a member of the APSS Executive Committee and the organization's regional director for the Kansas, Missouri and Illinois area.

Wilson quits park post

G. Rex Wilson, a seven-year Des Plaines Park District commissioner, resigned his post recently. He had been re-elected to the six-year post in May, 1971.

Wilson, 1145 Van Buren St., is president of the Des Plaines National Bank, 678 Leo St.

Figures from school districts in Des Plaines describe the woeful story. Dist. 207 had 80 openings and about 5,000 interested job seekers, according to Assistant Supt. Ralph Frost.

BECAUSE OF declining enrollments, Dist. 63 cut 32 teaching positions, hiring only 18 new people. But they received more than 500 applications, said Assistant Supt. Donald Stetina.

"Hundreds more called," he added.

Dist. 63 hired only 28 new teachers, though they received 1,502 applications as of July, said Robert Reinke, assistant to the superintendent and board secretary.

MANY OF THE unsuccessful job seekers are accepting jobs as substitute teachers, hoping to gain some experience and

City may use federal money for new land project

Des Plaines officials are exploring the possibility of using federal money to purchase the proposed O'Hare Water Reclamation Plant site for use as recreational land.

Bolek had suggested that land could be used as a golf course and leased to the park district for a small amount.

The U.S. Bureau of Outdoor Recreation has established guidelines that prohibit use of BOR funds for golf courses.

Several other alternatives for funds to acquire the land have been frozen or killed.

A U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development program for open lands acquisition has been frozen indefinitely because of budget cutbacks for that agency.

A NEW STATE assistance program, which would have made $5 million available this year for recreational land was vetoed last month by Gov. Daniel Walker.

Officials predicted that all three possible sources of funds will be frozen for several years to come.

"With the amount of requests that remain to be processed there is little chance that any new applications would have much chance of being funded," one NIPC official said.

Another official explained that federal funds for recreational land acquisition has been reduced to less than $2 million for 1973. This is less than one-tenth of the amount that had been available several years ago.

Clearbrook residents' goal: an independent lifestyle

by JOANN VAN WYE

Janet is an outgoing young adult who likes to come home from work and relax by catching up on the latest on the sports scene.

Ask her anything about sports, the Chicago Black Hawks in particular, and she will talk for hours punctuating her conversation with interesting anecdotes.

She has remained loyal to Bobby Hull, her hero, even though he jumped leagues and is harder than ever to keep tabs on.

Her room mirrors her interest in sports with posters of Hull and other sports favorites plastered over every inch of the walls.

LIKE MANY young adults her age, Janet recently moved away from home. But for Janet total independence is still a few years away. She is retarded.

Janet is currently in the transitional stage between living at home and living on her own in the community. She is one of the first occupants of the Clearbrook House, 420 S. Walnut St. in Arlington Heights, an adult live-in facility for mildly and moderately retarded adults, which opened in July.

Janet now shares the Clearbrook House with nine other young women but by mid-September Ken Jamsa, Clearbrook program director, hopes to have the house filled to its capacity of 13 women and 7 men.

All of the residents are from the Northwest suburbs and many have already been through the Clearbrook day care program in Rolling Meadows and the Clearbrook Sheltered Workshop in Elk Grove Village. They are all employed and able to take care of their own personal needs, according to Byrn Witt, Clearbrook director.

This is where the similarity ends. The residents are a heterogeneous group of young adults with varied interests and levels of achievement.

JANET WAS already earning money at a job in the community and able to take care of her own personal needs when she entered Clearbrook House. She wasn't ready for independent living however, as she still has trouble cooking, using the laundromat, ironing and handling money.

With training Clearbrook officials expect Janet to master these skills and be ready to move into the community within a few years.

The prospect for other Clearbrook House residents is not as bright, Witt said. Many are never expected to be able to work and live in the community independently, although they only require minimal supervision. For them Clearbrook House is a substitute for placement in a state institution when their family is no longer able to provide for them.

Of the original 10 residents at Clearbrook House, only three currently hold jobs in the community and the others are employed at the Clearbrook Sheltered Workshop.

Janet and the other two young women working in the community are responsible for paying part of their monthly room and board at Clearbrook House. Witt admits this imposes somewhat of a penalty on those who are employed.

THE MONTHLY COST for each resident is approximately $36. This is broken down to $108 for basic room and board, $150 for supervision and guidance and $140 for additional training. The three women will be able to keep a minimum of $50 a month with a proportionate amount of the remainder of their wages going to cover their expenses.

The Illinois Department of Public Aid and Illinois Department of Mental Health pay the expenses of the residents employed in the sheltered workshop.

Normalcy is the basic tenet of the Clearbrook House and every effort is made to simulate the lifestyle of a normal person living in the same community.

A homelike atmosphere is somewhat hard to achieve within the confines of a convent and a limited budget, Witt admits.

Clearbrook has a three-year lease to use Our Lady of the Wayside Convent. Since receiving licensing from the Illinois Department of Public Health and archdiocesan and village approval to use the facility, Clearbrook officials have worked hard to transform the austere building into a comfortable place to live.

EACH RESIDENT has his own bedroom and is able to decorate it as he pleases. As might be expected, the decor is as varied as the residents. While Janet's room is done in blue with sports posters and has that "lived in look," the bedroom across the hall is immaculately decorated in a soft pink with a ruffled bedspread.

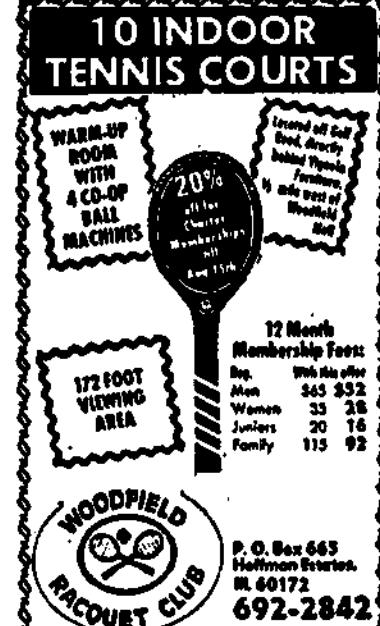

The kitchen, dining room, laundry facilities and a living room are located on the first floor of the two-story stone building and the bedrooms and recreation-TV room are on the second floor.

Daily activities follow an unstructured pattern, as structure tends to promote dependency, officials say. However the residents are responsible for assisting in the planning of household activities, cleaning their rooms and helping with various household chores. They are also expected to participate in activities which will help their advancement to more independent living.

THE WEEKDAY starts at 7:30 a.m. when the residents are expected to get up by themselves. The next hour is spent getting ready for work, eating breakfast if they want, socializing and packing lunches. A bus picks the residents up at 8:30 a.m. and drops them off at work. It is hoped there will eventually be public transportation available for them to use.

The residents are usually back to Clearbrook House by 4:30 p.m. and spend the time until 6 p.m., when dinner is served, relaxing in their room or socializing with others. The residents help with dinner by setting the table, setting out the food in family style, clearing the table and washing the dishes. On the weekends the residents also help with the actual cooking.

Not too many activities are planned by the staff, since the residents are expected to entertain themselves and learn to live cooperatively with others, said Jamsa.

THE RECREATION AND TV room is one of the most popular spots for the 10 women at Clearbrook House. The women relax in front of the television after work and during the evening hours it becomes the hub of all social activities.

Leisure time activities are usually planned by the women themselves.

Walsh reacts to local trustees' resolution

Convention site annex protest futile

by FRED GACA

Arlington Heights Village Pres. Jack Walsh yesterday said an Elk Grove Village protest against the annexation of a proposed convention site by Arlington Heights probably would make no difference in the development of the center.

Walsh said Arlington Heights is willing to work out problems resulting from the center.

Northwest Tollway and east of Arlington Heights Road for the site of the Chicago-O'Hare Convention Center.

The resolution was a "softer" one than had been drafted for the board's consideration.

THE ORIGINAL VERSION stated, "Elk Grove Village hereby publicly objects to the Village of Arlington Heights' present disregard for useful and beneficial intergovernmental relations."

By a 3-2 vote, the paragraph was deleted from the resolution sent to Arlington Heights.

Trustees Nancy Vanderweel and Ron ald Chernick wanted the paragraph left in the resolution. Trustees Ted Stadler and Michael Tosto voted to have the paragraph removed. Pres. Charles Zetek broke the tie in favor of removing the statement.

Trustees Edward Kenna and George Spees were not present at the meeting.

Zetek said he opposed the statement about "useful and beneficial intergovernmental relations" because he knew of no better way to destroy relations than to criticize a government agency's actions in regard to relations with other agencies.

THE RESOLUTION states, "The Village of Elk Grove hereby expresses complete dissatisfaction with the actions of the Village of Arlington Heights in giving consideration to the annexation of any land south of the Toll Road."

The resolution urges Arlington Heights "to exercise its responsibility to foster good intergovernmental relations and to reaffirm itself to be a responsible good neighbor."

Arlington Heights will have a public hearing on Aug. 16 on the annexation.

The Elk Grove Village resolution will be made part of the record of the hearing.

Some Elk Grove Village officials considered the resolution to be a mere formality. "It would have been newsworthy if we did not adopt the resolution," said one trustee.

The site of the convention center has been considered by Elk Grove Village as part of its eventual municipal boundaries ever since a comprehensive master plan was adopted in 1968.

COPIES OF the plan were submitted to Arlington Heights several years ago. "Gentlemen's agreements" and verbal discussions between the two villages had recognized the tollway as a natural boundary between the villages, according to Elk Grove Village officials.

No written agreement, however, has ever been drawn up.

For Arlington Heights to annex the property, it will have to cross the tollway.

In addition to violating the Elk Grove Village master plan, village officials also said construction of the center at the site will force the village to supply police support and other services while the village will receive no tax revenue from the center.

IN OTHER ACTION at the Elk Grove Village meeting:

• The board authorized the plan commission to hold a public hearing on requested zoning changes to permit construction of a 59-unit condominium at Elk Grove Boulevard and Ridge Avenue. The plan commission must arrange a date for the hearing with the developers, Phoenix Construction Co.

• Annexation was approved for 42.4 acres of land at Oakton and Busse roads. The site will be developed into the largest factory in Elk Grove Village. The board must still approve the plat map for the project before construction begins.

• The board adopted an ordinance prohibiting the posting of any handbills, posters or signs on village property. The ordinance was proposed by Stadler. He said he made the motion after he still saw posters advertising last month's Kiwanis Club circus.

Under the ordinance, posters may still be displayed after an organization receives permission from the board. The ordinance will be used to enforce the removal of the posters after the event being advertised has passed.

Charles Siewert, member of the village plan commission for more than three years, submitted his resignation effective Aug. 30. He cited lack of time to handle plan commission functions as the reason for his resignation. The resignation was accepted.

Bell workers stay on job

An anticipated walkout by employees of the Illinois Bell Telephone Co. in Elk Grove Village failed to materialize yesterday morning.

An Illinois Bell spokesman said as far as he could determine all employees had reported for work and were on the job.

The workers staged a "work delay" Tuesday afternoon to protest the firing of a fellow employee. They were to meet at 8 a.m. yesterday to discuss walking off the job if the fired employee was not rehired.

The fired worker was reportedly dismissed because he failed to notify company officials he was going home sick, an employee said.

A spokesman for Illinois Bell said that wouldn't be a reason for dismissal and the employee was fired because of unsatisfactory work.

New VFW home nearing completion

by BOB GALLAS

The parking lot is a sea of mud and the building is still several weeks from completion, but a lighted American flag flies over the site. The new home of the Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 9284 is nearing completion in Elk Grove Village.

Members are hard at work in their spare time, trying to finish work on their new post at 400 E. Devon Ave., just west of Tonno Road.

The building is about 70 per cent complete, according to Lewis Champa, a local contractor and member of the VFW post who is in charge of the final construction. Champa said construction should be completed by Oct. 1.

Up to now the post, which has about 400 members (most of whom live in the village), has met at the Salt Creek Country Club. The dream of a home of their own started about two years after the post was started 10 years ago. Plans got into high gear about three years ago and construction started in the spring of last year.

ACCORDING TO Ed Madden, former post commander, plans for the new structure progressed slowly, since a lot of the organization's money is used for charities.

The members hope to save about half of the building's $250,000 price tag by doing a lot of the work themselves. The outside "shell" of the structure was built by a private company. Post members, a large percentage of whom are in the construction industry, are finishing up the work in the evenings and on weekends. Non-construction workers help too, with the permission of the union, "which has been most cooperative," according to Madden.

The two-story brick building will have about 8,500 square feet of space, including a hall that will accommodate 275 persons, a kitchen, members' bar and office space.

About 15 per cent of the post's members are Vietnam veterans, according to Madden. That is the highest percentage in the VFW's fourth district and a good percentage at any post, he said.

The younger element of the post's membership is quite evident at the construction site as men in their 20s work alongside men in their 40s or 50s.

Plans for opening the post's new headquarters are still indefinite although a "big event is assured," according to Madden, with many VFW and local dignitaries in attendance.

Woman's action averts tragedy

Fire department never got call for help

A recent fire would have been a tragedy if the housewife had not been able to put it out herself, because the Elk Grove Village Fire Department never received her telephone call for help.

The woman's call was mistakenly received by the Chicago Fire Department, and was never transferred to the village fire department.

Fire Chief Allen Hulett said any resident with an emergency requiring the fire department or an ambulance should call the department directly at 439-2121.

The police department emergency number is 437-2131.

FREE DECALS with the village phone numbers listed are available at any village fire station, the police station or at the front desk of the village hall. The decals can be mounted on a telephone for immediate reference in an emergency.

According to Hulett, in the recent incident, a pan of grease caught fire and the woman carried the pan to the sink in an effort to put it out.

The curtains over the sink and the cabinets then caught fire.

The woman said she called the Elk Grove Village Fire Department. She was connected with the Chicago Fire Department, according to Hulett.

The Chicago fireman answering the call recognized her address was not in Chicago and asked her what suburb she lived in.

ACCORDING TO an Illinois Bell Telephone report, an operator then broke into the call, saying she would transfer it to the correct fire department. The woman said "forget it" and hung up. The woman was able to put out the fire herself.

The first call the village fire department received on the incident was after the woman put out the fire. She called the department, that time getting the right number.

Hulett said the village has received about 30 calls in recent months from Chicago residents wanting the city fire department. He said the village department remains on the phone with the caller until the Chicago department can be contacted.

The recent house fire was the first report of a village resident getting the city fire department.

Solutions to current village flood problems and a detailed, village-wide study of potential flooding are the first projects of the newly created flood control committee.

Co-Chairman Joseph Cimino said the committee's findings on flooding and soil erosion will be used to write ordinances and to revise the village master plan to alleviate future problems.

The committee met Tuesday night for the first time since the members were appointed and introduced to each other July 26. The committee is a subordinate agency to the village plan commission. Cimino and Co-Chairman Marcus Grice are members of the plan commission.

The committee will meet on the first and fourth Wednesdays of each month. Cimino said the committee, after getting more information from the village engineer, will begin a detailed study of village flooding. The village will be divided into zones that will be reviewed by the committee. Residential, industrial and undeveloped areas will all be studied, he said.

At Tuesday's meeting, Tom Hamilton, plan commission member and chairman of the Upper Salt Creek Watershed Steering Committee, presented a report on the flood control measures of the watershed plan.

Disorderly case

continued to Oct. 17

The case of a 30-year-old Des Plaines man charged with two counts of disorderly conduct for making obscene phone calls was continued until Oct. 17 in Elk Grove Village Court.

The attorney of Dennis McDermitt, 645 Colonial Ln., said his client is in the psychiatric section of Lutheran General Hospital and was unable to make the court appearance.

The woman said she called the Elk Grove Village Fire Department. She was connected with the Chicago Fire Department, according to Hulett.

The Chicago fireman answering the call recognized her address was not in Chicago and asked her what suburb she lived in.

Cimino said the committee, after getting more information from the village engineer, will begin a detailed study of village flooding. The village will be divided into zones that will be reviewed by the committee. Residential, industrial and undeveloped areas will all be studied, he said.

At Tuesday's meeting, Tom Hamilton, plan commission member and chairman of the Upper Salt Creek Watershed Steering Committee, presented a report on the flood control measures of the watershed plan.

The woman said she called the Elk Grove Village Fire Department. She was connected with the Chicago Fire Department, according to Hulett.

The Chicago fireman answering the call recognized her address was not in Chicago and asked her what suburb she lived in.

ACCORDING TO an Illinois Bell Telephone report, an operator then broke into the call, saying she would transfer it to the correct fire department. The woman said "forget it" and hung up. The woman was able to put out the fire herself.

The first call the village fire department received on the incident was after the woman put out the fire. She called the department, that time getting the right number.

Hulett said the village has received about 30 calls in recent months from Chicago residents wanting the city fire department. He said the village department remains on the phone with the caller until the Chicago department can be contacted.

The recent house fire was the first report of a village resident getting the city fire department.

Solutions to current village flood problems and a detailed, village-wide study of potential flooding are the first projects of the newly created flood control committee.

Co-Chairman Joseph Cimino said the committee's findings on flooding and soil erosion will be used to write ordinances and to revise the village master plan to alleviate future problems.

Higgins-Willow Creek work set

by STEVE BROWN

The first stage of an estimated $2.3 million improvement project for Higgins-Willow Creek in Des Plaines will be started next spring.

A $80,000 state appropriation for the project was approved in the last session of the Illinois General Assembly.

Mayor Herbert Behrel announced earlier this week that the initial appropriations had been approved by Gov. Daniel Walker.

THE CREEK, which runs along the city's south and west sides, has overflowed several times in recent years, usually causing backups along Mannheim Road in Rosemont and sewer backups in the Orchard Place Section of Des Plaines. The project will also affect the creek in sections of Mount Prospect and Elk Grove Village.

The state appropriation was part of a $41 million state flood control package.

John Guillou, head of the state's division of waterways, said work on the project will probably begin next spring. He said the state is preparing plans for the work which will include channel improvements along the creek.

BESIDES WORK on the creek itself, bridges at River Road and Orchard Place will be replaced. Guillou said funds for the River Road bridge will come from the Illinois Department of Transportation.

The Orchard Place bridge replacement

will be financed by the city through federal revenue sharing funds.

Guillou said that the first channel improvement work will probably be started at the mouth of the creek where it joins the Des Plaines River and where the creek crosses Mannheim Road.

"We plan to work where the channel is the worst in that area," he said.

He noted that when the project was first planned the estimated cost was $1.6 million, but the 12-year delay in receiving an appropriation for the project caused the more than 60 per cent increase.

He said the current project is planned along the lines of the 1961 proposal and there might be additional work required at a later date.

"WE WILL KNOW more about it when we get into the design phase," Guillou added.

He said additional appropriations will probably be approved by the General Assembly in the next few years.

Local officials, including Behrel had initially thought Governor Walker vetoed the money, but Behrel said the governor had vetoed a duplicate bill and the money for the creek had been approved.

Behrel has also said that he plans to meet with Mount Prospect officials in an effort to get that community to provide $10-15,000 in funds for a portion of the work.

City may use federal money for new land project

Des Plaines officials are exploring the possibility of using federal money to purchase the proposed O'Hare Water Reclamation Plant site for use as recreational land.

But a Herald survey of state and federal officials involved in such funding shows that there is little chance of the city receiving any funds for the project.

The suggestion to purchase the land for use as a golf course was made Monday by Ald. Charles J. Bolek (3rd). The remedy was brought up as another effort in the continuing fight by the city to keep the Metropolitan Sanitary District's plant out of the community.

Recent cutbacks in federal funds have limited the amount of money available for such projects.

A spokesman for the Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission said that there is little or no money available for such land projects.

ANOTHER OFFICIAL explained that federal funds for recreational land acquisition has been reduced to less than $2 million for 1973. This is less than one-tenth of the amount that had been available several years ago.

Bolek had suggested that land could be used as a golf course and leased to the park district for a small amount.

The U.S. Bureau of Outdoor Recreation has established guidelines that prohibit use of BOR funds for golf courses.

Several other alternatives for funds to acquire the land also have been frozen or killed. A U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development program for open lands acquisition has been frozen indefinitely because of budget cutbacks for that agency.

A NEW STATE assistance program, which would have made $5 million available this year for recreational land was vetoed last month by Gov. Daniel Walker.

Officials predicted that all three possible sources of funds will be frozen for several years to come.

"With the amount of requests that remain to be processed there is little chance that any new applications would have much chance of being funded," one NIPC official said.

It was Dominick's idea to play on the roof, first playing outside on the family's front lawn and later moving to the wooden fort the boys had built in their backyard.

"I don't know really why I went up there, I thought it would be fun because the fiddler in the movie did it. Besides, it made a lot of people laugh and enjoy it," Dominick said.

"We play classical music in school and I like that. But I like songs with rhythm that move too, like the songs from 'Fiddler on the Roof.' That's why Steve and I decided to play that ourselves," he added.

What are little boys made of?

by DIANE STEFANOS

Sneakers and cut-off jeans, freckles, cello and violins — that's what little boys are made of?

At least Steve and Dominick Pezen are so much, that the mischievous but creative twosome days ago decided to present their own rendition of "Fiddler on the Roof" to the world by playing upon their family rooftop.

It had been what any mother of six would call a normal day until then. The eldest daughter, Laura, 22, was leaving the house when a sudden wind of "If I

Were a Rich Man" filled the air.

Plinky, plunky, squeaky notes from horse hair sliding across violin strings echoed throughout the neighborhood. With astonishment, neighbors and family located the origin of the innocent plucking on the family's rooftop.

THE MUSICAL efforts of the two grinning, baseball loving boys were met by the laughing and smiling approval of those who looked on.

"It's really a shock for a mother to see her sons practicing their instruments as they usually do on the roof instead of in the family room. Those kids did it all on their own because they like music so much," Mrs. Dolores Pezen said.

Inspired by the fiddler of fate and the musical score from the movie "Fiddler on the Roof," the two young string students decided to bring a little Jerry Bock's musical composition to their Hoffman Estates neighborhood.

Dominick, 11, loves to play the violin as much as his brother Steve, 12, loves to play his cello. The two of them team up for practice at home and in their school District 54 orchestra.

Sheffield tenants to study 5% rent reduction plan

by PAT GERLACH

The acceptability of a 5 per cent rent decrease compensating the lack of recreational facilities promised Sheffield Village apartment residents will be considered when its tenants association meets tonight.

The apartments are located in Schaumburg, southeast of Golf and Barrington roads.

Residents of the Schaumburg apartment complex organized last month when it became apparent that recreational facilities promised more than a year ago would not be provided this summer.

Levitt Property Management has instituted the rent reduction, effective Aug. 1, until a swimming pool, tennis courts and a club house have been completed, the result of a petition signed by a majority of the tenants.

The reduction will remain in effect until the first day of the month following an opening at the recreational center.

"We admit there are problems in Sheffield Village and are obviously very concerned," said Don Lawrence, national president of Levitt Property Management.

CONSTRUCTION ON the recreational center has been started and completion is expected early this fall, Lawrence said. He also noted that the corporation will handle other complaints on an individual basis.

Tenants contend that recreational facilities were promised verbally by rental agents, advertised in roadside displays and in brochures and pictures displayed in the Schaumburg rental office.

Other tenant demands concern just compensation for property damage suffered through water leakage, 24-hour maintenance service, repair of leaks and cracks, insect and rodent control and unauthorized apartment entry by management personnel.

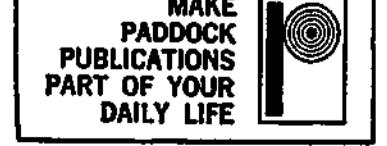

STEVE COOL, co-chairman of the tenants group, described the Levitt response as "apparently inadequate" but said he will not withhold further comment until he has had a chance to study a three-page letter received from Lawrence this week.

"I personally feel they (Levitt) should provide us with a rebate on past rent and we should have more than five per cent consideration," said Cool.

He said the tenants association plans to review Lawrence's letter "to determine if it is a good faith response."

Levitt has not explained the delay in providing recreational facilities at the complex in the opinion of David S. Kreisman, an attorney representing the tenants.

"But I don't live there. It is up to the tenants to make their own decision in this regard," Kreisman said.

Hayter vs. Cornfield?

Public works war may be expanding

The "war" raging in Hoffman Estates between Mayor Virginia Hayter and fired public works employees may have expanded to include Hoffman Estates firefighters.

The battle lines were stretched yesterday after Mayor Hayter phoned Richard Cordova, president of Local 2061 of the International Association of Firefighters.

Cordova then contacted Gilbert Cornfield, attorney for both the firefighters and the public works union, Local 2041 of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, AFL-CIO.

Though Mayor Hayter, Cordova and Cornfield agreed the conversations took place, they disagreed on details of the calls.

CORDOVA WAS reluctant to comment on any of the calls, saying "I have to analyze it." He did say Local 2061, the firemen's group, still has a no-strike provision in its constitution, and the firemen have not yet taken a position on the public works firings. He declined to say whether they would wait until after the men hold their monthly meeting Monday.

Mrs. Hayter said she called Cordova to learn "whether or not we still had anything in common." She said she wanted "to save this whole situation, if we take over the fire district," and was concerned with the reaction of the firemen to the public works crisis.

Mrs. Hayter referred to comments attributed to Cornfield by the press alleging public employees have a right to strike.

"I said 'Dick, do you realize if Mr. Cornfield really believes in those things there can be nothing but trouble ahead for all of us. I know your concern is for the village. You must be able to make some value judgments here, you have to look at the long haul,'" said Mayor Hayter.

THE MAYOR SAID she also noted "we could do business" if the firemen's union retains its no-strike provision, and that Cornfield's statements "give one to believe he does not understand" the village's need to protect health, safety and welfare of the village. The strike violated work rules intended to ensure that protection, she said.

Mayor Hayter also said "Mr. Cornfield called me and told me this is war."

However, Cornfield denied he made any declaration of war on the village.

Cornfield maintains he called Mrs. Hayter because of Cordova's message. "I was advised by Mr. Cordova the mayor had called him and indicated to him she would appreciate hearing from me, but she did not feel it would be appropriate for her to call me," Cornfield said.

THE MAYOR "expounded on her general philosophy of running the local government," said Cornfield. She said she "felt collective bargaining can be a viable and positive force in both private and public affairs," and was sorry for the fired employees. But because of the strike she felt an "overriding responsibility to provide services" to the people of Hoffman Estates, Cornfield said.

While Mrs. Hayter said she felt "a contract could have been worked out, she doesn't like confrontation or warfare," said Cornfield. He said he responded that the village action in discharging the men after they had returned voluntarily to their jobs "creates an atmosphere of confrontation or war."

"At no time did I define the situation as war," said Cornfield, who added Mayor Hayter "said 'I'll see you in court' and that ended the conversation."

Village board must confirm appointment

Public works chief Bennett now acting village manager

Palatine Public Works Director James C. Bennett has been named interim village manager until a full-time appointment is made.

Village Pres. Wendell E. Jones said yesterday he had selected Bennett to take over the day-to-day management of the village until a successor to Berton G. Braun is found because "I think he'll do a good job."

Braun resigned July 25, effective Aug. 20, when he will become village administrator of Woodridge.

Jones said he believed Bennett, 45, "will be able to command the respect of everybody and be able to manage the village" on the temporary basis.

BENNETT WAS not immediately available for comment.

Jones indicated he would submit Bennett's name to the village board Monday night for confirmation, and said he had already consulted trustees and is confident the nomination will be approved.

Bennett would begin working with Braun immediately when his appointment is confirmed before taking over a week later. The appointment will last until a successor to Braun is hired, probably in October or later.

Jones said Bennett is not interested in the position on a full-time basis. But he and other village department heads will be permitted to apply. The new manager, however, probably will come from outside the village, Jones said.

BENNETT WILL get a temporary raise in his $20,160 salary while he serves as manager, but the amount has not been set, Jones said.

In taking over the job on an interim basis, Bennett will be filling the hot seat

Braun has relinquished to go to Woodridge.

The village board had put undue pressure on the manager to carry out its programs, sometimes, Braun complained upon quitting, giving little direction at times and other times specifying certain techniques.

BENNETT HAS served as public works director since July, 1965. Prior to coming to Palatine, he was public works and building department director in Wheeling for four years. From 1956 to 1960 he was the owner of a construction company.

A native of Marion, Bennett is a graduate of Washburn Trade School in Chicago.

He was an unsuccessful write-in candidate for the Palatine Park District Board of Commissioners in the April 3 election.

Arlington Park C&NW rates, times set

Chicago and North Western Ry. officials have established the timetable and fares for trains that will stop at the new depot at Arlington Park Race Track, scheduled to open Sept. 1.

The Arlington Park stop on the North Western's northwest line will not affect any existing arrival or departure times in Chicago or at any of the suburban stations.

One exception, train 621, which now leaves Chicago at 4:13 p.m. will be changed to a 4:10 afternoon departure.

A single round-trip ride from Arlington Park to Chicago will cost $2.90, an unlimited monthly pass will be $37.60. Monthly service from the downtown Arlington Heights depot now costs $36.20; from Palatine, $39.

Regular commuter trains are scheduled to begin stopping at Arlington Park on Saturday, Sept. 1. Most trains now running on Saturday and Sunday will stop at the new depot.

Regular, Monday through Friday schedules will not go into effect until Tuesday, Sept. 4, the day after Labor Day.

THE RACE TRACK will make available parking for 800 cars near the new station, built by the village at a cost of $100,000.

Tom Rivera, Arlington Park's director of public relations, said the details of exit and entrance, parking fees and location have not yet been determined.

The first few days of the depot's operation may be complicated by the Future of America Fair, scheduled to run at Arlington Aug. 24 through Sept. 3.

The area around the new station will be used for exhibits and amusement rides, all of which probably will not be cleared away by Sept. 4.

Special trains for fairgoers will run between Arlington Park and Chicago during the 10-day fair which promoters hope will attract half a million visitors.

RIVERA SAID he did not know whether parking would be metered, by permit, or simply collected at the race track gate. Access to the station will be at Rohrling and Wilke roads.

A three-way agreement between Arlington Heights, the railroad and the race track limits the cost of parking to the rate prevailing in the village, currently 50 cents a day.

Commuters from northern parts of Arlington Heights, Rolling Meadows, Palatine, Elk Grove, Schaumburg and Hoffman Estates are expected to take advantage of the track's easy access off of Rt. 53.

The new depot was included in the 1969 annexation agreement between the village and the race track.

Blood draw set Aug. 14 at Presbyterian Church

The Palatine Health Department is once again asking residents to reach out an arm — and give pint of blood for themselves and their neighbors.

The village's fourth blood drawing will be Aug. 14 in a continuing effort to obtain 1,200 pints of blood.

In the first three drawings, a total of 558 pints has been donated — about 162 pints short of the goal the health department had set for this point in the blood drive.

Some 264 persons have signed up so far to give blood in the fourth drawing largely because of the recruiting efforts of St. Thomas of Villanova Church.

Church members account for 250 of the prospective donors.

"I think they've done an excellent job," Environmental Health Director Richard A. Dawson said.

He appealed to residents of the community to "get involved." "We can't always depend on people like the church to come through with the number of people that we need," he said.

The 1,200-pint target was set because it represents 4 per cent of the village's population and is the amount needed for the American Red Cross to provide an unlimited supply of blood to all Palatine residents for one year.

The Aug. 14 blood drawing will be held from 10 to 11:30 a.m. and from 1 to 3 p.m. at the Presbyterian Church of Palatine, 800 E. Palatine Rd.

Donors must be at least 16 years of age, 110 pounds and in good health.

Volunteers are asked to call the health department, 338-7855, from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. for an appointment.

A fifth and final drawing is scheduled for Nov. 11.

Burglar grabs adding machine

A calculating crook broke into a house in the Willow Woods subdivision in Palatine sometime Tuesday and made off with an adding machine.

Palatine police said the intruder gained entry to the John Jacobs home at 274 N. McArthur Dr. by breaking a pane of glass on the rear door and reaching in to unlock the door.

A damage estimate was not immediately available. Police said the burglary took place between 1 p.m. Tuesday and 9:30 a.m. Wednesday.

Stop signs are to be installed at two intersections in the Pleasant Hill subdivision and at four in the Winston Park subdivision, according to action taken this week by the Palatine Village Board.

In Pleasant Hill, a three-way stop will be located at Stuart Lane and East Gilbert Street. In addition, traffic on South Elm Street will stop for East Gilbert Street.

In Winston Park, traffic on the following streets will now stop for Williams Drive: Kilson (north and south), Dean, Fosket and Morris drives.

Open chief search to local force

Members of the Palatine police force may be permitted to apply for the top spot in the department after all, though village officials have expressed a preference in hiring the chief from outside the village.

Village Pres. Wendell E. Jones conceded yesterday the village board's stated policy that it will not accept applications for police chief from present Palatine policemen may be discriminatory.

If any members of the force would consider legal action to force the village to let them apply, Jones said, "I suppose we would let them."

All in the family

The Ralph Lonergan family of Palatine has hit the jackpot of academia — all three college students in the family were named to the dean's list at their respective schools.

Michael, a physical education major, achieved the honors at Illinois State University, Normal, where he is graduating this month. Susan, a Spanish major, was named to the dean's list at Southern Illinois University, Carbondale, where she is now a junior. Kevin, a general studies major, was honored at the U.S. Air Force Academy, Colorado Springs, where he completed his freshman year.

The Lonergans live at 427 Carpenter Dr.

He described as "fantastic" the job done by Acting Chief Frank Ortiz since his appointment June 25.

However, Jones emphasized that he and the majority of the trustees "still feel we should go to the outside" to hire a chief in order to avoid further factionalizing in the police department.

Village officials have said there are several factions made up of those who supported former chief Robert Centner and those who opposed him.

ORTIZ, FOR his part, says he is not interested in applying for police chief on a full time basis, "even if I could apply."

"Just so they get someone who can do the job," he said, adding that he would be willing to help break in the new chief.

During his short term in office, Ortiz has made numerous changes in personnel and policy, which has prompted some observers to suggest he is making a bid to be kept on as chief.

Ortiz has shifted assignments of officers, initiated a crackdown on drug traffic (resulting in the arrests of two alleged pushers and eight alleged drug users), and sent officers to a training course on overweight trucks.

All three areas — morale in the police department, drug use in Palatine and the inspection of overweight trucks — were cited by village trustees in ousting Ortiz' predecessor, Centner. Centner is now serving as a lieutenant.

Salt Creek district

Twice as much $ for park?

The Salt Creek Park District may have twice as much money to work with next year as it has this year.

A 1973-74 tax appropriation ordinance, approved by the park board Tuesday, allows the district to collect up to $145,781. The amount is twice the $79,781 called for in the 1972-73 ordinance.

The additional revenue probably will not increase taxes, board members said. Instead, the money will come from an expected increase in the district's total assessed valuation.

Most of the additional funds will be used for improvement at the district's three parks, Winston Park on Palatine Road west of Rt. 53, South Park on Euclid Avenue and Rohlwing Road, and Rose Park at 530 S. Winston in Palatine.

JIM DEVOS, director of parks and recreation, said the $145,781 amount is based on the expected increase in the district's total assessed valuation, which the district is estimating will rise from $39 million to $50 million.

The district's current tax rate is 21.2 cents per $100 assessed valuation, or about $21.20 a year for a home assessed at $10,000. The rate is expected to increase only slightly.

According to park attorney Michael Stromberg, the district may levy appropriations according to the highest expected assessment of taxable property. He said the $50 million estimate may not be reached, but the county would make adjustments to lower the amount if needed.

Assessment figures will not be computed by the county until next year when tax bills are prepared. Taxing districts must therefore submit appropriation requests based on estimates of their assessed valuation.

DEVOS SAID the district's appropriation ordinance last year was based on an estimated assessment of $40 million. The year before the district's property was assessed at only $25 million.

Because the district's assessment did jump some $14 million, almost exactly as the district had estimated, actual revenue being collected by the district this year will total some $83,000, higher than the $79,941 originally anticipated.

"We got almost exactly what we asked for," Devo said of this year's tax collection. He said the addition of the Levitz Furniture store, being built on Rohlwing Road near Northwest Highway, and the Baybrook condominiums near the Winston Park subdivision in Palatine, will increase the district's assessment next year.

The district includes in its taxing area the Arlington Park Race Track, which was assessed this year at $12,658,611.

May delay South Park tennis court

A tennis court for South Park in Rolling Meadows may not be ready before the end of the summer.

The Salt Creek Park District board of commissioners Tuesday delayed a decision on final plans for the tennis court and agreed instead to hold a special board meeting next Tuesday to discuss the proposal further.

The district's master plan calls for the installation of a tennis court in the park located at Rohlwing Road and Euclid Avenue. Dir. of Parks and Recreation Jim Devo had said the court could be available by the end of August if the board agreed to let bids and contract for the work.

ESTIMATES BY Recreation Planning Association, a Skokie firm preparing the district's master plan, said a tennis court could cost from $5,000 to $7,000.

But commissioners felt the appraisal was too high, saying repaving of the existing asphalt section of the park, where the court would be built, should not be that expensive.

Commissioner Dennis Schnell said the matter should be discussed with a representative from the planning firm before a decision is made on the court. Schnell said the representative should be present at next Tuesday's meeting to discuss the plans and cost of the court.

The action could delay completion of a court for the park this summer, Devo said. He added, however, that if a decision is reached by the board, a tennis court could be built in three weeks.

THE BOARD also may meet next week with representatives of the Baybrook condominium project, being built near the Winston Park subdivision in Palatine. The district has requested a contribution from the developers of a cash sum to build tennis courts in Winston Park in the north end of the district.

Devo indicated at the board meeting, however, that the developers are not willing to make a contribution to the district.

"They said it all depends on their sale," Devo said yesterday of the developers. He said the developers have indicated they would be willing to meet again with the district, but apparently are not prepared to make a contribution.

Explosion, fire rip home in Arlington Hts.; boy hurt

An explosion and fire ripped through the basement of the Paul K. Spanning home, 714 E. Rockwell, Arlington Heights, yesterday afternoon, injuring a son, Steve, 14.

The boy is in Northwest Community Hospital in fair condition with second and third-degree burns on his chest, arms and legs. A neighbor drove him to the hospital before firemen arrived on the scene.

Arlington Heights Fire Chief Jack Hayden said the blast occurred when solvent fumes in the basement were ignited by the pilot light on the water heater. Hayden said the boy was using a gasoline, naphtha and paint stripper mixture to remove floor tiles.

Firemen removed scorched containers for the fluids and a charred bucket from the basement.

The fire was confined to the basement of the two story stone front house. The ground and upper floor sustained smoke and some water damage but no damage estimate was available.

Mrs. Spaulding and Steve were alone in the house when the explosion took place. Her husband was reportedly out of town on business and another child was playing in the neighborhood.

Fire Capt. Jack Bensen said the mixture used by the youth was highly flammable and dangerous to use in the basement setting. He said the boy was lucky to escape the basement when the explosion and flesh fire occurred.

Phillips appointed hospital director

Charles D. Phillips of Palatine has been named executive director of the American Protestant Hospital Association.

Phillips, of 927 E. Cooper Dr., has served as assistant executive director of the Chicago-based national organization which claims 240 member hospitals since 1957.

His selection as executive director was made by the hospital association's board of trustees. He succeeds John C. Eller, who retired April 1.

Firemen's union may be involved

A wider public works war?

The "war" raging in Hoffman Estates between Mayor Virginia Hayter and fired public works employees may have expanded to include Hoffman Estates firefighters.

The battle lines were stretched yesterday after Mayor Hayter phoned Richard Cordova, president of Local 2081 of the International Association of Firefighters.

Cordova then contacted Gilbert Cornfield, attorney for both the firefighters and the public works union, Local 2041 of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, AFL-CIO.

Though Mayor Hayter and Cordova agreed the conversations took place, they disagreed on details of the calls.

However, both Mayor Hayter and Cordova said they are "at war."

CORDOVA WAS reluctant to comment on any of the calls, saying "I have to analyze it." He did say Local 2081, the firemen's group, still has a no-strike provision in its constitution, and the firemen have not yet taken a position on the public works firings. He declined to say whether they would until after the men hold their monthly meeting Monday.

Mrs. Hayter said she called Cordova to learn "whether or not we still had anything in common." She said she wanted "to save this whole situation, if we take over the fire district," and was concerned with the reaction of the firemen to the public works crisis.

Mrs. Hayter referred to comments attributed to Cornfield by the press alleging public employees have a right to strike.

"I said 'Dick, do you realize if Mr. Cornfield really believes in those things there can be nothing but trouble ahead for all of us. I know your concern is for the village. You must be able to make some value judgments here, you have to look at the long haul,'" said Mayor Hayter.

THE MAYOR SAID she also noted "we could do business" if the firemen's union retains its no-strike provision, and that Cornfield's statements "give one to believe he does not understand" the village's need to protect health, safety and welfare of the village. The strike violated work rules intended to ensure that protection, she said.

Mayor Hayter also said "Mr. Cornfield called me and told me this is war."

However, Cornfield denied he made any declaration of war on the village.

Cornfield maintains he called Mrs. Hayter because of Cordova's message. "I was advised by Mr. Cordova the mayor had called him and indicated to him she would appreciate hearing from me, but she did not feel it would be appropriate she call me," Cornfield said.

THE MAYOR "expounded on her general philosophy of running the local government," said Cornfield. She said she "felt collective bargaining can be a viable and positive force in both private and public affairs," and was sorry for the fired employees. But because of the strike she felt an "overriding responsibility to provide services" to the people of Hoffman Estates, Cornfield said.

While Mrs. Hayter said she felt "a contract could have been worked out, she doesn't like confrontation or warfare," said Cornfield. He said he responded that the village action in discharging the men after they had returned voluntarily to their jobs "creates an atmosphere of confrontation or war."

"At no time did I define the situation as war," said Cornfield, who added Mayor Hayter "said 'I'll see you in court' and that ended the conversation."

Omni-House fund-raising drive 'complete success'

by JEANNETTE DE WYZE

Omni-House: Youth Services Bureau has declared its first year fund-raising efforts a complete success, according to director Peter Digre.

The bureau's first grant year began July 1, 1972, when Omni-House received a $131,000 grant from the Illinois Law Enforcement Commission. The bureau then committed itself to raising one third of that amount from other sources to make up the remaining funds for the year.

"Because of our extreme frugality we've been able to extend that first grant year to Oct. 1, 1973," Digre said.

THE BUREAU has now raised more than the approximately $44,000 in matching funds required for the first grant year, "so we're declaring a success now," Digre said.

"We're sort of giving the community a chance to rest. There's got to be some kind of a break or the community will get tired of our constantly harassing them for money," he said.

"Our financial development has gone much better than we expected. In fact, I'm rather awed by it," Digre said.

He said the bureau has attempted to develop a multi-source fundraising program in the second year. To date, 12 different areas of the community, including PTAs, churches, individuals, businesses, social service clubs, industry, foundations, the United Fund and local governments have contributed.

THE OMNI-HOUSE budget for the second grant year will be slightly lower than the first year's budget, Digre said.

However, the Illinois Law Enforcement Commission grant for the second year will be cut in half, since the first year grant was intended primarily as seed money, he said. Consequently, a greater percentage of funds for the second year budget will have to come from the community.

Despite the lower second year budget, more money will be available for programming in the second year, according to Digre. This is because many first year expenditures, such as desks and office equipment, will be unnecessary in the second year, he said.

Sheffield tenants group to study 5% rent reduction proposal

by PAT GERLACH

The acceptability of a 5 per cent rent decrease compensating the lack of recreational facilities promised Sheffield Village apartment residents will be considered when its tenants association meets tonight.

The apartments are located in Schaumburg, southeast of Golf and Barrington roads.

Residents of the Schaumburg apartment complex organized last month when it became apparent that recreational facilities promised more than a year ago would not be provided this summer.

Levitt Property Management has instituted the rent reduction, effective Aug. 1, until a swimming pool, tennis courts and a club house have been completed, the result of a petition signed by a majority of the tenants.

The reduction will remain in effect until the first day of the month following an opening at the recreational center.

"We admit there are problems in Sheffield Village and are obviously very concerned," said Don Lawrence, national president of Levitt Property Management.

CONSTRUCTION ON the recreational center has been started and completion is expected early this fall, Lawrence said. He also noted that the corporation will handle other complaints on an individual basis.

Tenants contend that recreational facilities were promised verbally by rental agents, advertised in roadside displays and in brochures and pictures displayed in the Schaumburg rental office.

Other tenant demands concern just compensation for property damage suffered through water leakage, 24-hour maintenance service, repair of leaks and cracks, insect and rodent control and unauthorized apartment entry by management personnel.

STEVE COOL, co-chairman of the tenants group, described the Levitt response as "apparently inadequate" but said he prefers to withhold further comment until he has had a chance to study a three-page letter received from Lawrence this week.

"I personally feel they (Levitt) should provide us with a rebate on past rent and we should have more than five per cent consideration," said Cool.

He said the tenants association plans to review Lawrence's letter "to determine if it is a good faith response."

Levitt has not explained the delay in providing recreational facilities at the complex in the opinion of David S. Krelman, an attorney representing the tenants.

"But I don't live there. It is up to the tenants to make their own decision in this regard," Krelman said.

Arlington Park C&NW depot sets rates, timetables

Chicago and North Western Ry. officials have established the timetable and fares for trains that will stop at the new depot at Arlington Park Race Track, scheduled to open Sept. 1.

The Arlington Park stop on the North Western's northwest line will not affect any existing arrival or departure times in Chicago or at any of the suburban stations.

One exception, train 621, which now leaves Chicago at 4:13 p.m. will be changed to a 4:10 afternoon departure.

A single round-trip ride from Arlington Park to Chicago will cost $2.90, an unlimited monthly pass will be $37.60. Monthly service from the downtown Arlington Heights depot now costs $36.20; from Palatine, $30.

Regular commuter trains are scheduled to begin stopping at Arlington Park on Saturday, Sept. 1. Most trains now running on Saturday and Sunday will stop at the new depot.

Regular, Monday through Friday schedules will not go into effect until Tuesday, Sept. 4, the day after Labor Day.

THE RACE TRACK will make available parking for 800 cars near the new station, built by the village at a cost of $100,000.

Tom Rivera, Arlington Park's director of public relations, said the details of exit and entrance, parking fees and location have not yet been determined.

The first few days of the depot's operation may be complicated by the Future of America Fair, scheduled to run at Arlington Aug. 24 through Sept. 3.

The area around the new station will be used for exhibits and amusement rides, all of which probably will not be cleared away by Sept. 4.

Special trains for fair goers will run between Arlington Park and Chicago during the 10-day fair which promoters hope will attract half a million visitors.

RIVERA SAID he did not know whether parking would be metered, by permit, or simply collected at the race track gate. Access to the station will be at Rohwing and Wilke roads.

A three-way agreement between Arlington Heights, the railroad and the race track limits the cost of parking to the rate prevailing in the village, currently 50 cents a day.

Commuters from northern parts of Arlington Heights, Rolling Meadows, Palatine, Elk Grove, Schaumburg and Hoffman Estates are expected to take advantage of the track's easy access off of Rt. 53.

The new depot was included in the 1969 annexation agreement between the village and the race track.

3 rezoning hearings to go before board

Public hearings will be held this month on separate requests to build a nursery school and commercial stores near Palatine and a small shopping center near Rolling Meadows. All three locations are in unincorporated Palatine Township.

The nursery school would be on a quarter acre lot at the northwest corner of Quentin Road and Kenilworth Street, about four blocks south of Palatine Road.

The stores would be on a half acre lot on the northeast corner of Plum Grove Road and Wilmette Avenue, about a block south of Illinois Avenue.

The shopping center would be on a two-acre parcel at the northeast corner of Algonquin Road and Thorntree Lane, in the Plum Grove Woods subdivision.

All three rezoning hearings have been set for 3 p.m. Aug. 24 in Palatine Village Hall, 54 S. Brockway St. The Cook County Zoning Board of Appeals will conduct the hearings, then forward its recommendations to the Cook County Board of Commissioners for action.

GIGANTIC, A LARGE robot shaped climber with tube slides, is a favorite with kids at South Park. Rolling Meadows Park District employees have been busy installing new playground equipment based around different themes at three parks this month. The playground themes are 21st Century Village at South Park; Storybook Village and Campbell Street Park, and Frontier Village at Creekside Park.

must therefore submit appropriation requests based on estimates of their assessed valuation.

DeVOS SAID the district's appropriation ordinance last year was based on an estimated assessment of $40 million. The year before the district's property was assessed at only $25 million.

Because the district's assessment did jump some $14 million, almost exactly as the district had estimated, actual revenue being collected by the district this year will total some $83,000, higher than the $79,941 originally anticipated.

"We got almost exactly what we asked for," DeVos said of this year's tax collection. He said the addition of the Levitz Furniture store, being built on Rohwing Road near Northwest Highway, and the Baybrook condominiums near the Winston Park subdivision in Palatine, will increase the district's assessment next year.

The district includes in its taxing area the Arlington Park Race Track, which was assessed this year at $12,658,611.

New assistant principals named

The appointments of two new assistant principals were approved by the Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 Board of Education last night.

Wayne Pederson was appointed assistant principal of Palatine Hills Junior High School in Palatine. He replaces William Zuehlke who resigned this month to accept a principalship in another district.

Brian Willett will fill a vacancy in Winston Park Junior High School in Palatine caused by the resignation of Michael Greene. Greene also resigned this month to accept a principalship in another district.

Salaries were set at $12,338 for Pederson and $11,864 for Willett.

Pederson has taught physical education at Carl Sandburg Junior High School in Rolling Meadows for the past seven years. He holds a bachelor's degree from Luther College in Decorah, Iowa, and is currently working on his master's degree.

13-yr-old injured on bike reported in fair condition

A 13-year-old Rolling Meadows boy was reported in fair condition yesterday at Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights with injuries suffered late Monday when the bicycle he was riding was struck by a car backing out of a parking space.

Injured in the accident was Felix Rojas, 13, of 4863 S. Wilke Rd. The boy was riding his bike when a car driven by David Marx, 21, 2284 Algonquin Parkway, struck the youth as the car pulled out of a parking space on Algonquin Parkway.

The boy suffered a broken collarbone and apparent amnesia, police said.

Police charged Marx with improper backing of his vehicle. The boy's father, Gabriel, also was cited for permitting the boy to ride without a light on the bike. Police Chief Lewis Case said the father was charged since he is responsible for his minor-aged son.

The citation against the elder Rojas is part of the department's new crackdown on enforcement of traffic laws as they apply to bike riders. Police have said they will ticket parents of children found to be violating traffic laws in certain cases.

Both Marx and Rojas were released on $250 bond and are scheduled to appear in Arlington Heights Circuit Court Aug. 27.

The incident was the twelfth bicycle injury accident to take place in the city this year.

Firemen's union may be involved

A wider public works war?

The "war" raging in Hoffman Estates between Mayor Virginia Hayter and fired public works employees may have expanded to include Hoffman Estates firefighters.

The battle lines were stretched yesterday after Mayor Hayter phoned Richard Cordova, president of Local 2061 of the International Association of Firefighters.

Cordova then contacted Gilbert Cornfield, attorney for both the firefighters and the public works union, Local 2041 of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, AFL-CIO.

Though Mayor Hayter, Cordova and Cornfield agreed the conversations took place, they disagreed on details of the calls.

CORDOVA WAS reluctant to comment on any of the calls, saying "I have to analyze it." He did say Local 2061, the firemen's group, still has a no-strike provision in its constitution, and the firemen have not yet taken a position on the public works strings. He declined to say whether they would until after the men hold their monthly meeting Monday.

Mrs. Hayter said she called Cordova to learn "whether or not we still had anything in common." She said she wanted "to save this whole situation, if we take over the fire district," and was concerned with the reaction of the firemen to the public works crisis.

Mrs. Hayter referred to comments attributed to Cornfield by the press alleging public employees have a right to strike.

"I said 'Dick, do you realize if Mr. Cornfield really believes in those things there can be nothing but trouble ahead for all of us. I know your concern is for the village. You must be able to make some value judgments here, you have to look at the long haul,'" said Mayor Hayter.

THE MAYOR SAID she also noted "we could do business" if the firemen's union retains its no-strike provision, and that Cornfield's statements "give one to believe he does not understand" the village's need to protect health, safety and welfare of the village. The strike violated work rules intended to ensure that protection, she said.

However, Cornfield denied he made any declaration of war on the village.

Cornfield maintains he called Mrs. Hayter because of Cordova's message. "I was advised by Mr. Cordova the mayor had called him and indicated to him

she would appreciate hearing from me, but she did not feel it would be appropriate she call me," Cornfield said.

THE MAYOR "expounded on her general philosophy of running the local government," said Cornfield. She said she "felt collective bargaining can be a viable and positive force in both private and public affairs," and was sorry for the strike she felt an "overriding responsibility to provide services" to the people of Hoffman Estates, Cornfield said.

While Mrs. Hayter said she felt "a contract could have been worked out, she doesn't like confrontation or warfare," said Cornfield. He said he responded that the village action in discharging the men after they had returned voluntarily to their jobs "creates an atmosphere of confrontation or war."

"At no time did I define the situation as war," said Cornfield, who added Mayor Hayter "said 'I'll see you in court' and that ended the conversation."

Sheffield tenants group to study 5% rent reduction proposal

by PAT GERLACH

The acceptability of a 5 per cent rent decrease compensating the lack of recreational facilities promised Sheffield Village apartment residents will be considered when its tenants association meets tonight.

The apartments are located in Schaumburg, southeast of Golf and Barrington roads.

Residents of the Schaumburg apartment complex organized last month when it became apparent that recreational facilities promised more than a year ago would not be provided this summer.

Levitt Property Management has instituted the rent reduction, effective Aug. 1, until a swimming pool, tennis courts and a club house have been completed, the result of a petition signed by a majority of the tenants.

The reduction will remain in effect until the first day of the month following an opening at the recreational center.

"We admit there are problems in Sheffield Village and are obviously very concerned," said Don Lawrence, national president of Levitt Property Management.

CONSTRUCTION ON the recreational center has been started and completion is expected early this fall, Lawrence said. He also noted that the corporation will handle other complaints on an individual basis.

Tenants contend that recreational facilities were promised verbally by rental agents, advertised in roadside displays and in brochures and pictures displayed in the Schaumburg rental office.

Other tenant demands concern just compensation for property damage suffered through water leakage, 24-hour maintenance service, repair of leaks and cracks, insect and rodent control and unauthorized apartment entry by management personnel.

STEVE COOL, co-chairman of the tenants group, described the Levitt response

as "apparently inadequate" but said he prefers to withhold further comment until he has had a chance to study a three-page letter received from Lawrence this week.

"I personally feel they (Levitt) should provide us with a rebate on past rent and we should have more than five per cent consideration," said Cool.

He said the tenants association plans to review Lawrence's letter "to determine if it is a good faith response."

Levitt has not explained the delay in providing recreational facilities at the complex in the opinion of David S. Kreisman, an attorney representing the tenants.

"But I don't live there. It is up to the tenants to make their own decision in this regard," Kreisman said.

Omni-House fund-raising drive 'complete success'

by JEANNETTE De WYZE

Omni-House: Youth Services Bureau has declared its first year fund-raising efforts a complete success, according to director Peter Digre.

The bureau's first grant year began July 1, 1972, when Omni-House received a $131,000 grant from the Illinois Law Enforcement Commission. The bureau then committed itself to raising one third of that amount from other sources to make up the remaining funds for the year.

"Because of our extreme frugality we've been able to extend that first grant year to Oct. 1, 1973," Digre said.

THE BUREAU has now raised more than the approximately $44,000 in matching funds required for the first grant year, "so we're declaring a success now," Digre said.

In fact, Omni-House has raised around $70,000 from the community, meaning that some funds for the 1973-74 are committed already. However, Digre said further fundraising for the 1973-74 year will be postponed until Oct. 1.

"We're sort of giving the community a chance to rest. There's got to be some kind of a break or the community will get tired of our constantly harassing them for money," he said.

"Our financial development has gone much better than we expected. In fact, I'm rather awed by it," Digre said.

He said the bureau has attempted to develop a multi-source fundraising program in the past year. To date, 12 different areas of the community, including PTAs, churches, individuals, businesses, social service clubs, industry, foundations, the United Fund and local governments have contributed.

THE OMNI-HOUSE budget for the second grant year will be slightly lower than the first year's budget, Digre said. However, the Illinois Law Enforcement Commission grant for the second year will be cut in half, since the first year grant was intended primarily as seed money, he said. Consequently, a greater percentage of funds for the second year budget will have to come from the community.

Despite the lower second year budget, more money will be available for programming in the second year, according to Digre. This is because many first year expenditures, such as desks and office equipment, will be unnecessary in the second year, he said.

Police say Burts killer may have been 'a weirdo'

Tulsa, Okla., police still have no leads in the shooting death of Mrs. Wills Burts of Schaumburg Sunday, but are operating on the theory the gunman "may possibly be a weirdo."

Sgt. B. J. Horn of the Tulsa detective bureau yesterday said investigators still don't know if the bullet that killed Mrs. Burts was intended for her, for someone else, "or for just somebody." They hope to know more when they are able to determine the exact location and position in which Mrs. Burts was standing when she was shot, he said.

"A lot is contingent on the direction she was facing when the shot struck her, exactly how her body was turned," said Horn.

Police have interviewed witnesses to the shooting, but "the witnesses have told us nothing, other than that they don't know where the shots came from," said Horn. Witnesses' reports conflict on the precise location of Mrs. Burts, he said.

POLICE HAVE determined Mrs. Burts was killed by a 22-caliber bullet fired from a distance of 40 to 60 yards. They believe the shots came "from away from the parking lot, in a slightly wooded area," said Horn. But he emphasized there is no physical evidence to pinpoint the location. Their belief is based on the suspected projection of the bullet and positioning of Mrs. Burts' body.

Mrs. Burts had been in Tulsa only about four days prior to the shooting, said Horn. Although earlier reports indicated she was attending a reunion of her own high school graduating class, Horn said police learned it was a reunion of Mrs. Burts' sister-in-law's class.

People attending the party at the Tulsa F.W.W. Hall "were not members of Mrs. Burts' graduating class," said Horn, and Mrs. Burts attended the party only as the guest of her sister-in-law. Mrs. Burts' husband did not attend the party and was not present when she was shot.

Although police earlier were discounting the possibility of a sniper because of the small size of the bullet, Horn said yesterday "you could call it a sniper, but this is only a possibility."

Mrs. Burts, 34, lived with her husband and their two young children at 1412 Allison Ln. She taught last year at Eastview Junior High School, Bartlett, and previously taught in the Elgin school system. She was active in Our Redeemers United Methodist Church, Schaumburg, and in Southern Christian Leadership Council and Soul in Suburbia. She was a native of Okmulgee, Okla.

Park maintenance summer help

'Job just great,' say girls

by STEVE BROWN

A summer job to many young people usually means three months of work, a little extra cash and maybe a good time.

For two area girls the summer jobs they have with the Schaumburg Park District add up to just that, and the girls are really cleaning up.

The pair, 16-year-old Debbie Naponelli and Debbie Kennedy, 21, have joined the district's park maintenance staff for the summer.

"The job is just great," said Miss Naponelli.

"I like it because it is different from other jobs I have had," said Miss Kennedy in agreement.

"We both like to work outside and this job offers plenty of that," added Miss Kennedy.

ALTHOUGH THE PAIR do not see themselves as being part of a big women's lib movement, both agreed they could see no reason why women should not work in the parks.

Their boss, Ron Dudley, superintendent of parks, concurs with that observation.

"They have been excellent employees and we have been very proud of the work they have done this summer," he said.

Dudley said the girls seem to be a little more careful with the district equipment and their work.

He said the two Debbies have done so well that he may hire additional girls for his department next summer.

BOTH GIRLS said they would like to work for the district again next summer.

"I have enjoyed it and I am giving some thought to majoring in recreation," said Miss Kennedy, who will be a student at Harper College this fall.

Her younger partner, who lives in Hoffman Estates and attends Conant High School, also has her sights set on recreation as a possible college goal.

While neither has any objections to her summer job, Miss Kennedy did offer one piece of advice for people who follow in her footsteps.

"It is a great job, but I would not recommend it for someone who wants to stay clean," she said.

Plan group urges extend moratorium

Members of Schaumburg's plans commission voted Tuesday to recommend extension to Oct. 1 of a moratorium on issuing building permits in the proposed "Olde Towne" historic district at Schaumburg and Roselle roads.

Their recommendation will go to the village board for action next week.

Last spring a 90 day moratorium was established to permit completion of an ordinance and plans for the area; it was later extended to Aug. 1.

The ordinance, being prepared by a plans commission sub-committee, is scheduled for presentation to the whole commission at a special Aug. 22 meeting. Tentative date for a public hearing on Olde Towne is Sept. 4.

All land one-quarter mile north, south and west of Schaumburg roads and an area extending east on Schaumburg Road to St. Peter's Lutheran Church has been designated as a historic district in the village.

It is to be developed along specific guidelines and will be supervised by a professional planner.

Schools cooperate in park shift

Playground equipment in various parks in Hoffman Estates is being rearranged and replaced by the park district in cooperation with School Dist. 54.

Playground equipment located in the Hillcrest and Lakeview Parks has already been transferred this summer from blacktop areas to grassy surfaces. Equipment at MacArthur Park is presently being transferred to grassy surface and much of the equipment is also being replaced.

"It is the philosophy of both the park district and the school district that because a child can be seriously injured on a hard surface, the playground equipment should be located on grassy surfaces and not on a black top area," said Al Binder, park district director.

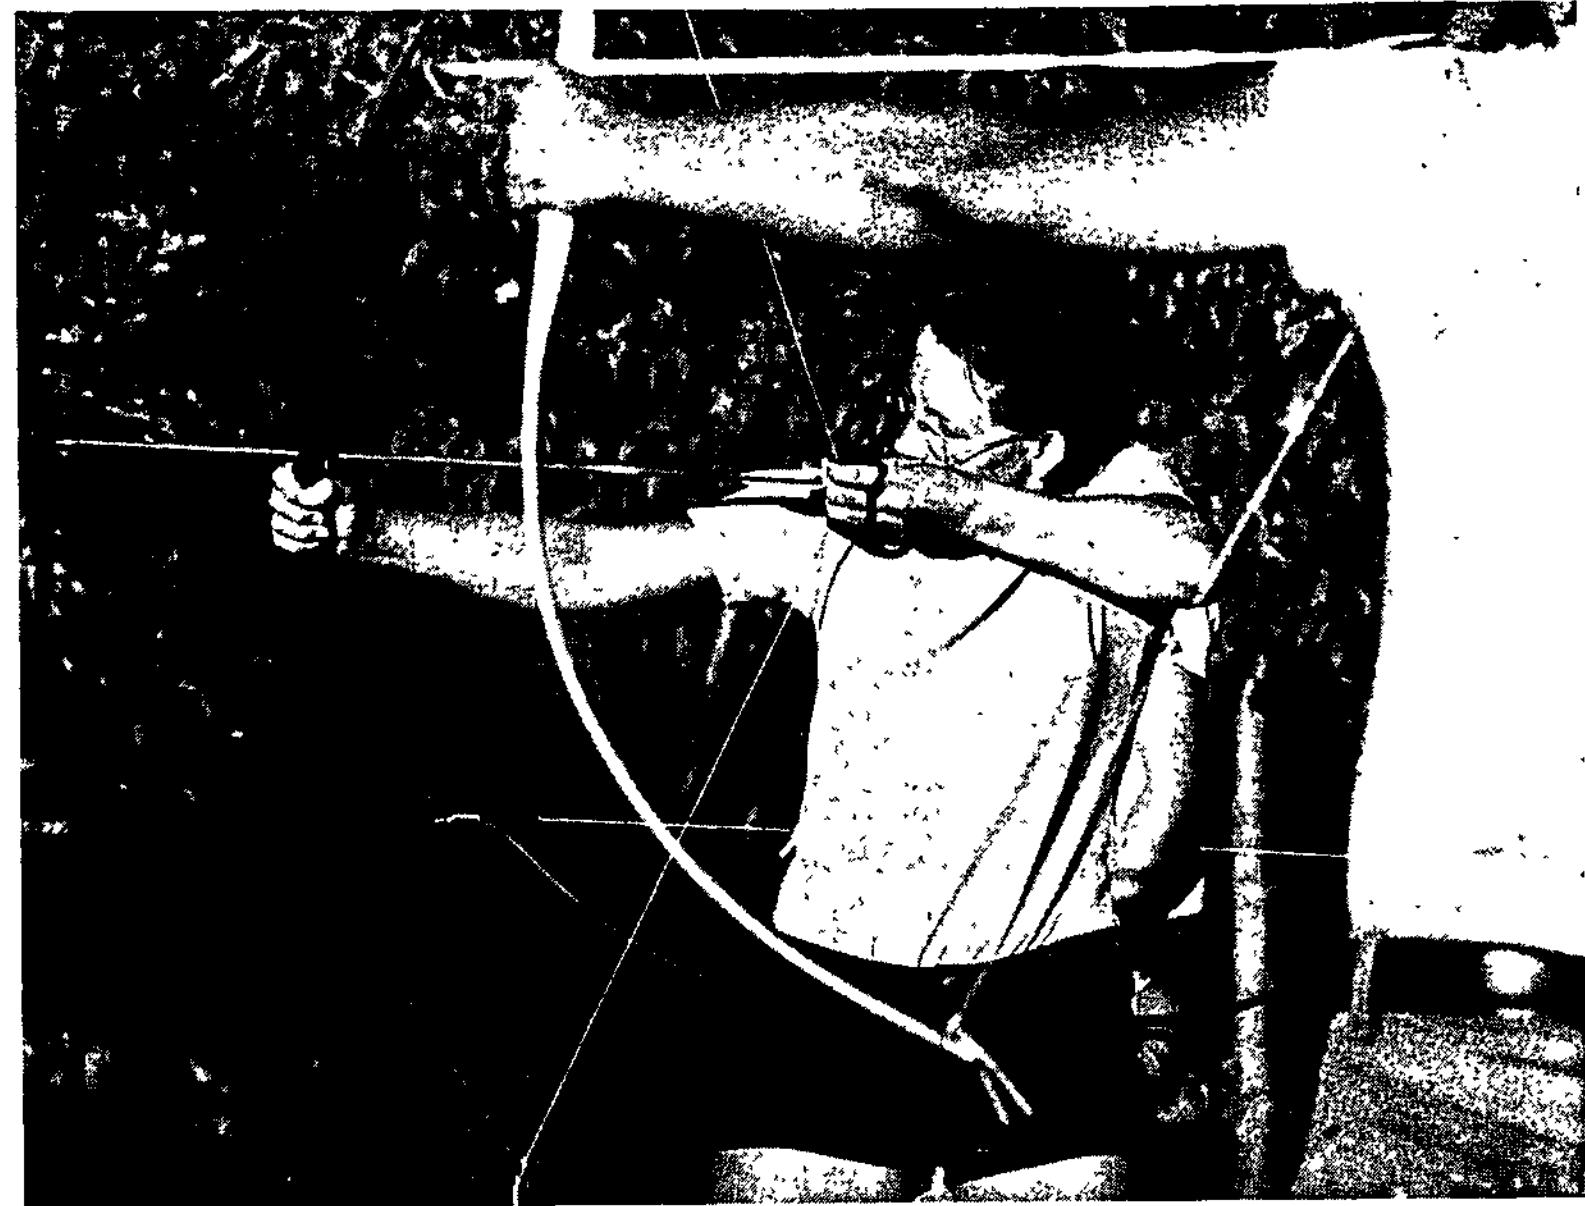

The equipment was first installed on hard top surfaces when the schools at these parks were constructed. Incidents since that time have dictated the playground equipment should be installed on the grass.

"This will not only help to protect the children who play on the equipment from being injured, but it will allow more open blacktop area for the school to conduct organized activities," Binder said.

Because some of the playground equipment at MacArthur Park is old and damaged from wear, much of it will be replaced by new equipment in the rearrangement. A swing set, a slide and a climbing device will be newly installed in the park.

"The new equipment will cost between $300 and $400 and that money will come out of the school and the park district's annual budget. There will be no labor costs as park district and school district personnel are doing all of the transfer work on these parks," Binder said.

The work on MacArthur Park should be completed by the beginning of September's school session.

TAKING AIM ON the target, Mrs. Barbara Barwing takes part in the Hoffman Estates Park District's archery program. The classes which teach both youngsters and adults the fundamentals of the sport is one of the many programs offered by the district this summer.

Homeowners to hold picnic

The

Lancer Park Homeowners Association will have their annual picnic Sunday in the Busse Woods Grove Two.

Paid members and their families are admitted free. Non-paid member families including children will be required to pay a $3 entrance fee.

Board appointments

Several new appointments and reappointments were made at Hoffman Estates Village Board meetings this week.

Dan M. Fox, 100 Evanston St., Hoffman Estates, was appointed for one year to the home rule study committee. Also Walter J. Miller, 422 Hassell Place of Hoffman Estates, was appointed for a two-year term on the plan commission.

Reappointments to the plan commission included Bob Bartosch, 294 Milton Ln. for two years, and Edward Pliera, 1921 Kenilworth Circle for another two-year term.

Other plan commission reappointments for three-year terms included Roger Bergstrom, 223 Firestone Dr., Michael Redmond, 119 W. Firestone Dr.; and Richard Bleek, 162 Hillcrest Ct.

Thomas Taylor, 542 Edgeline Ln., was reappointed for a four-year term on the plan commission.

Marvin Morse also resigned Monday night from the Hoffman Estates Youth Commission because he is moving from the state.

Easier to get a taxi?

Residents of Hoffman Estates and Schaumburg may soon have an easier time getting a taxicab home from the Palatine train depot.

The Schaumburg Yellow Cab Co. this week was granted three licenses by the Palatine Village Board, authorizing the company to pick up passengers at the Chicago and North Western station.

The licenses are contingent on the inspection of vehicles and the licensing of drivers.

Currently, Schaumburg and Hoffman Estates commuters who seek a taxi to or from the station must call for a cab. With the three new licenses, the Schaumburg cab firm will be allowed to solicit passengers in Palatine, thus cutting down on the waiting time for cab riders looking for a way home from the depot.

Fares are expected to be a flat $1.50 from the depot to Euclid Avenue, then based on local mileage rates.

Septemberfest committee

The

Schaumburg's Septemberfest committee meeting will be conducted tomorrow and Aug. 30 at Melneke Center, 220 E. Weathersfield Way, and Aug. 18 and 23 at the Great Hall, 231 S. Civic Dr. All sessions begin at 7:30 p.m. during which time plans will be made for fireworks, game and food booths and other Labor Day celebration activities.

Information concerning Septemberfest can be received from committee chairman, Tom Conaway, 894-2072, or Bob Pratt, 894-7458.

The

Four new patrolmen in the Hoffman Estates Police Department have completed basic training. They will be formally introduced to the village at next Monday's board of trustees meeting. The department now includes 38 officers.

Graduating July 14 in the top 80 per cent of their class at Benedictine College, Lisle, were Patrolmen Casimir Krzyminski, Bruce Lambert, Joseph Tazelaar and Michael Wash.

Krzyminski is a graduate of Maine Township High School West, and previously worked for the U.S. Postal Service. He and his family live in Schaumburg.

Lambert is a Conant High School graduate, now living with his wife and daughter in Hanover Park. He served with the U.S. Army in Vietnam.

Walsh is a former Army man, and also has worked as a salesman and truck driver. He attended Taft High School, Chicago.

Tazelaar attended Harper Junior College, Palatine, and was graduated from Conant High School. He served with the Army two years, and now lives with his wife in Hoffman Estates.

Tennis tourney eliminations

A single elimination tennis tournament will be offered for Schaumburg adults by the Schaumburg Park District, Aug. 20-23.

Entry fees of $2.50 per person for one event (singles or doubles), and $3.50, for two events are due by Tuesday. Finals will be held at Schaumburg High School on Saturday, Aug. 25 beginning at 9 a.m.

Each person is required to supply his own Wilson Championship or Dunlop Championship tennis ball.

Public works 'war' may be expanding look at the long haul," said Mayor Hayter.

THE MAYOR SAID she also noted "we could do business" if the firemen's union retains its no-strike provision, and that Cornfield's statements "give one to believe he does not understand" the village's need to protect health, safety and welfare of the village. The strike violated work rules intended to ensure that protection, she said.

Mayor Hayter also said "Mr Cornfield called me and told me this is war."

However, Cornfield denied he made any declaration of war on the village.

Cornfield maintained he called Mrs. Hayter because of Cordova's message. "I was advised by Mr. Cordova the mayor had called him and indicated to him she would appreciate hearing from me, but she did not feel it would be appropriate she call me," Cornfield said.

THE MAYOR "expounded on her general philosophy of running the local government," said Cornfield. She said she "felt collective bargaining can be a viable and positive force in both private and public affairs," and was sorry for the fired employees. But because of the strike she felt an "overriding responsibility to provide services" to the people of Hoffman Estates, Cornfield said.

While Mrs. Hayter said she felt "a contract could have been worked out, she doesn't like confrontation or warfare," said Cornfield. He said he responded that the village action in discharging the men after their had returned voluntarily to their jobs "creates an atmosphere of confrontation or war."

"At no time did I define the situation as war," said Cornfield, who added Mayor Hayter "said 'I'll see you in court' and that ended the conversation."

Airport panel awaits study OK

The Schaumburg Airport Study Committee is awaiting state approval of its study to determine the need for a municipal airport.

The airport study is being considered as phase I planning of a regional transportation center proposed in southern Schaumburg near the existing airport along Irving Park Road.

The Schaumburg study is being coordinated with revisions now being made in the Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission regional airport network study and other state agencies, Fred Dietrich, airport committee chairman, said.

May delay new contract

Price controls may keep trash pickup costs down

by TOM VON MALDER

Mount Prospect's garbage collection costs may not go up as much as expected, because of Phase IV federal price controls.

The village board Tuesday voted to sign a service contract with the Barrington Division of Browning-Ferris Industries, a contract that calls for a 42 per cent increase in the basic monthly rate per household in the village.

But the new basic rate of $3.18 per month per household may not be in effect for some time. Through Sunday, the "Phase 3 1/2" price freeze keeps the collection rate at $3, the rate agreed upon last May for a two-month extension of the old service contract. Whatever the rate, the cost is paid with village tax money.

Once Phase IV begins on Monday, the garbage collection rate could be any one of three different rates, according to Village Trustee Kenneth V. Scholten.

SCHOLLEN, CHAIRMAN of the village finance committee, said yesterday the Phase IV rate could be a continuation of the current $3 rate or it could be the $3.18 rate as bid by Barrington. Or, he said, the rate could be much lower — $1.84 plus an additional amount for cost of living increases.

This last rate would be based on the government formula of using the last three months of 1972 as a base for figuring what the price should be. At that time, the village was under the old contract with the $1.84 rate.

David Page of Barrington told the board Tuesday his firm expects their price to be set at $3 or less. In any case, he said the contract price would not be higher than $3.18.

As approved by the village board, village residents will continue to have unlimited, once-a-week pickup at the curbside. Trash cans will still be used until the board makes a decision on whether to switch to plastic bags. Under an agreement with Barrington the village has a year in which a decision to switch to bags can be made.

Scholten said the board will make a choice between bags or cans by late September. A questionnaire will be distributed to residents later this month and it will give residents a chance to "vote" for either bags or cans.

IF THE SWITCH to bags is made, the village stands to save some money. Barrington's bid for garbage pickup with bags only had a basic price of $2.86 per month per household. If the scavenger service is to deliver 50 bags twice a year to each household, the price jumps to $2.86.

Based on the village estimates of 10,000 homes and 2,400 apartments within the municipality, the yearly cost for garbage pickup at the $3.18 rate would be $473,184; for plastic bags it would be $425,866; and for plastic bags delivered by Barrington it would be $440,746.

The village board Tuesday also voted to have an ordinance drawn up that would require garbage pickup twice a week for apartment and other multi-family residences. The village will pay for only one of those pickups. According to Barrington officials, some 90 per cent of the apartments in the village already have twice-a-week pickup.

The board's vote to sign the garbage service contract was 4-0. Trustees Bud Richardson and Donald B. Furst were absent.

IT WAS A RINGER for Tom Meier, 3, Park, the carnival featured booths from each of the parks in the district.

Senior citizen center earmarked for country club

The Mount Prospect senior citizen drop-in center will be at the Mount Prospect Country Club Community Center, 700 S. See-Gwin Ave.

An office will be made in the reception area of the building for use by Kathleen Stoga, senior citizen program coordinator. The Mount Prospect Park District has offered the space, as reported last month in the Herald.

Mrs. Stoga's office may be ready by the end of next week, according to Marjorie Boswell, village health officer (Mrs. Stoga works under her department). Also available will be three rooms for use by senior citizens as the drop-in center.

While Mrs. Stoga will be headquartered at the Country Club, she will have a part-time branch office at the walk-up center of the Mount Prospect State Bank on Maple Street. This space was donated by Howard Alton Jr., bank vice-president.

MRS. STOGA will conduct a survey to determine when she should have office hours at the bank site. Mrs. Boswell said her hours there could be once a week or even a couple of hours a day. She said the best time to be there would be when senior citizens receive their social security checks each month.

"This is our choice," Mrs. Boswell said of the Country Club location. Senior citizens already have the use of one room there. She said the bank location has the advantage of being downtown.

Under a state grant, Mount Prospect has $25,100 available for senior citizen program use. Mrs. Stoga's salary is $10,000 a year and comes from those funds. The remainder will be used for senior citizens, with transportation being the only determined need so far.

MacDonald sewers to be installed soon

Installation of sewers in the Mac Donald Acres area of Prospect Heights will begin within the next month, according to Old Town Sanitary District Supt. Richard Schuld.

Forty-five homes on Alton, Edward, Camp MacDonald and Wolf roads and Edward Court will be affected by the construction. It is one of the last areas in the rural Prospect Heights area to receive sewers, Schuld said.

A $68,000 contract for construction was awarded to Scully, Hunter and Scully Co. at a special meeting July 31. Schuld said he expects construction to be completed by the first of the year.

Based on the village estimates of 10,000 homes and 2,400 apartments within the municipality, the yearly cost for garbage pickup at the $3.18 rate would be $473,184; for plastic bags it would be $425,866; and for plastic bags delivered by Barrington it would be $440,746.

The village board Tuesday also voted to have an ordinance drawn up that would require garbage pickup twice a week for apartment and other multi-family residences. The village will pay for only one of those pickups. According to Barrington officials, some 90 per cent of the apartments in the village already have twice-a-week pickup.

by MARY HOULIHAN

Donnalois Ahlslett has resigned as assistant to the superintendent of River Trails School Dist. 26, effective Sept. 1.

In a letter sent to the Dist. 26 Board of Education and read at Tuesday's board meeting, Mrs. Ahlslett stated she was leaving the district to take a new job at a better salary. In September, she takes over as director of curriculum in Glenview Dist. 34.

Though the board accepted Mrs. Ahlslett's resignation, there were two board members who voted against accepting the resignation, Board Pres. Lloyd Demel and member Leora Rosen.

In voting against acceptance of the resignation, Demel said he realized the motion would be passed. He voted against the motion for two reasons, he said: because "I don't like people breaking contracts indiscriminately," and "I think Donnalois has made a contribution and could continue to make a contribution."

MRS. AHLSTEDT took over as assistant to the superintendent a little more than a year ago. The position, a new one, was created by then-Supt. Thomas Warden, who resigned under pressure in May.

Asked if one of the reasons Mrs. Ahlslett left was because she was disgruntled about Warden's resignation, acting Supt. James Retzlaff said, "I wouldn't care to comment on that."

School milk prices to increase because of big federal cutback

It will cost a student in River Trails Dist. 26 two cents more next year for a 1/2 pint carton of milk if he brings his lunch to school, due to a cutback in federal milk subsidies.

Formerly, the federal government subsidized the price of milk for students who brought their lunches to the tune of four cents in Dist. 26. However, Pres. Richard Nixon's budget for the 1974 fiscal year includes only $24 million for milk subsidies, a reduction from last year's appropriation of $35.4 million. As a result, most school districts will lose thousands of dollars in federal funds for milk.

"Normally the students pay three cents for a 1/2 pint," said Acting Supt. James Retzlaff. "The bid price is more around seven cents."

Rather than pass the total cost of the milk on to parents, the board votes to split the difference and charge five cents for milk next year for students who bring their lunches.

THE DISTRICT will absorb the extra two cents. The increase will not affect students who already buy their lunches at school. "We will continue to furnish the 1/2 pint with the regular lunch in the cafeteria," Retzlaff said.

In the beginning of the discussion on the increase, Board Pres. Lloyd Demel said he would only vote for the increase in milk if the board decided to rescind its authorization to increase textbook fees by $1.50 per child next year. However, Demel voted for the split increase.

Only one board member, William Haase, cast a dissenting vote. "I feel it's something that's been subsidized in the past and I am opposed to the increase being passed on to the kids," Haase said.

In other business Tuesday, the board approved the appointment of Tommie E. Barnhart, 42, as the new principal at Parkview School. Barnhart, of 360 May Ave., Glen Ellyn, was informally appointed to the principal's post at a closed meeting of the board in July. Demel said the board was satisfied that Barnhart had a definite "commitment to stay" at Parkview for more than one year.

Mr. Ahlslett was out of town and could not be reached for comment.

Replacing her in the post of assistant to the superintendent next year will be Al Levine, the district's art consultant. Levine holds a master's degree in fine arts from Drake University. He is also taking administrative courses in education.

In other business Tuesday the board directed the Dist. 26 administration to proceed with the necessary steps to sell bonds to cover the cost of Life Safety code repairs at the district's schools.

According to board member William Haase, the total cost of repairs has been estimated at about $276,000. Thirty thousand dollars of these repairs has already been deducted from the district's Life Safety fund. The rest, about $250,000 worth, will be raised by the sale of bonds.

To raise money for the repairs, the dis-

The Mount Prospect Chamber of Commerce membership drive is "coming along great."

That's what C. O. Schlaver, Chamber executive director, said this week as he commented on the rise in membership from 149 last January to the current 184.

With the Chamber at its greatest strength ever, Schlaver said the drive will continue until the goal of 200 members is reached.

Four weeks ago, Schlaver and three helpers began calling on businesses to solicit membership. Paul Dasso, Bill Radke and Robert R. Anderson are the three helping Schlaver.

"As their contribution to the community" residents and professional persons are joining the Chamber as individuals, Schlaver said.

Schlaver is also putting together a directory of members and services they offer.

He said he hopes to organize a Chamber open golf day for next summer. Other area Chamber of Commerce groups, such as Arlington Heights, already have annual golf outings.

Schools expand bilingual offerings

School Dist. 21 has received $37,880 to establish a district-wide program of bilingual instruction for Spanish-speaking students.

The program, scheduled to go into operation this fall, is funded by the Illinois Office of the Superintendent of Instruction. With the monies, the district will be able to expand bilingual instruction that has previously been provided on a limited basis.

UNTIL NOW, bilingual instruction for Spanish-speaking students has been offered only at Hawthorne School in Wheeling.

Beginning in September, there will be two full-time bilingual teachers at Hawthorne, one at Holmes Junior High School and two itinerant teachers who will travel regularly to other schools in the district to tutor Spanish-speaking students.

One bilingual instructor will handle students at Alcott, Sandburg and Field schools and the other teacher will work with students at Twin and Whitman schools.

The main purpose of the new program is to teach English as a second language to Spanish-speaking students, according to Steve Stavrakas, Dist. 21 personnel director.

"THESE CHILDREN are having difficulty learning to read, speak and write English," he said. "It helps the children when someone is able to give them some tutoring in these areas."

Stavrakas said school officials decided to seek funds to expand the program this year because of an increasing number of Spanish-speaking students in the district.

"Our principals are alerting us that an increasing number of children need this kind of assistance," he said. "With the itinerant teachers we'll have enough instructors to be able to work with them on a one-to-one or very small group basis."

Stavrakas said he is still looking for two bilingual teachers to participate in the program. The instructors must be able to read, write and speak Spanish, certified to teach in Illinois and have lived in a Spanish-speaking country for at least two years.

Dist. 21 serves Wheeling, Buffalo Grove and portions of Arlington Heights and Mount Prospect.

In fact, Omni-House has raised around $70,000 from the community, meaning that some funds for the 1973-74 are committed already. However, Digre said further fundraising for the 1973-74 year will be postponed until Oct. 1.

"We're sort of giving the community a chance to rest. There's got to be some kind of a break or the community will get tired of our constantly harassing them for money," he said.

"Our financial development has gone much better than we expected. In fact, I'm rather awed by it," Digre said.

He said the bureau has attempted to develop a multi-source fundraising program in the past year. To date, 12 different areas of the community, including PTAs, churches, individuals, businesses, social service clubs, industry, foundations, the United Fund and local governments have contributed.

THE BUREAU has now raised more than the approximately $44,000 in matching funds required for the first grant year, "so we're declaring a success now," Digre said.

Mount Prospect's first grant year began July 1, 1972, when Omni-House received a $131,000 grant from the Illinois Law Enforcement Commission. The bureau then committed itself to raising one third of that amount from other sources to make up the remaining funds for the year.

"Because of our extreme frugality we've been able to extend that first grant year to Oct. 1, 1973," Digre said.

Village may get new shopping center

Mount Prospect may get a new shopping center. A California firm wants to build a shopping center along the west side of Ill. Rte. 83, just south of Algonquin Road.

The firm, Naredel of California Inc., based in Los Angeles, has petitioned the village for annexation of the 15.5-acre property and for retail zoning. Naredel is the contract purchaser of the property.

A hearing has been scheduled for 8 p.m. Aug. 23 before the village zoning Board of Appeals. Tentative plans for the center call for a grocery store, drug store, department store, shoe store and several smaller shops. The property is east of the Nordic Road Industrial park annexed to the village last April.

Local man charged with drug possession

A Mount Prospect man was charged with drug possession yesterday after police stopped him for allegedly speeding on his motorcycle.

James C. Battaglia, 21, of 402 W. Walnut St., was stopped on Isabella Street after police said he was clocked going 40 mph on Thayer and Maple streets. Police charged him with speeding, driving with a suspended license and possession of marijuana. The arrest was made at 1:38 a.m.

Battaglia is to appear Sept. 28 in Mount Prospect branch of Cook County Circuit Court.

Lincoln Street widening to begin in late summer

Milburn Brothers Construction Co. of Mount Prospect was awarded a $225,489.45 contract this week to widen Lincoln Street in Mount Prospect.

Construction will begin late this summer on the half-mile stretch from Busse Road east to Sha-Bonee Trail and completion will be in December. Milburn Brothers' bid was about $40,000 under the village's cost estimate for the project.

Elk Grove Township is contributing $43,024.75 to the project's cost because part of the street lies outside the village's boundaries and in the township's jurisdiction.

At Tuesday's board meeting, the village trustees also voted to increase the board of health from five to seven members. The current board of health had asked for the change because it would give the board an opportunity to broaden its technical expertise.

Mayor Robert D. Teichert presented certificates of merit to two former members of the Architectural Commission, which was recently phased out. The pair receiving the certificates were Bernard Hemmert and Ray Schultz.

Others awarded certificates, but not present to accept them, were Theodore Erbach and William Lebock, both formerly of the architectural commission; William Zinga, formerly of the community services and mental health commission; Robert Klovstad, former chairman of the drainage and clean streams commission; Fred Mamule, formerly of the safety commission, and Richard Lamey, formerly of the board of health.

Steal yard equipment from an open garage

Three pieces of yard equipment were stolen Monday night from an open garage at 705 W. Milburn Ave., Mount Prospect.

Police said a snow blower, lawn mower and hedge trimmer were taken from the garage between 10:15 p.m. Monday and 8:30 a.m. Tuesday. Owner Gene Boba told police the equipment was worth $162.

Police said a step ladder was used to remove the snowblower, which was stored in the garage rafters.

15-year-old boy hurt

Explosion, fire rip S. Side home

An explosion and fire ripped through the basement of the Paul K. Spaulding home, 714 E. Rockwell, Arlington Heights, yesterday afternoon, injuring a son, Steve, aged 15.

The boy is in Northwest Community Hospital in fair condition with second and third-degree burns on his chest, arms and legs. A neighbor drove him to the hospital before firemen arrived on the scene.

Arlington Heights Fire Chief Jack Hayden said the blast occurred when solvent fumes in the basement were ignited by the pilot light on the water heater. Hayden said the boy was using a gasoline, naphtha and paint stripper mixture to remove floor tiles.

Firemen removed scorched containers for the fluids and a charred bucket from the basement.

The fire was confined to the basement of the two story stone front house. The ground and upper floor sustained smoke and some water damage but no damage estimate was available.

Mrs. Spaulding and Steve were alone in the house when the explosion took place. Her husband was reportedly out of town on business and another child was playing in the neighborhood.

Fire Capt. Jack Bensen said the mixture used by the youth was highly flammable and dangerous to use in the basement setting. He said the boy was lucky to escape the basement when the explosion and flash fire occurred.

CHIEF JACK HAYDEN directs his men in fighting a fire in the basement of the Spaulding home, injuring a Spaulding youth.

Fresh paint, carpeting await pupils, teachers

Students and teachers can look forward to newly painted classrooms, carpeting in libraries or new flooring when they return to schools in Dist. 25 this fall.

Approximately $246,000 has been poured into remodeling, maintenance and restoration projects that began in early June and are scheduled for completion the first week of September.

Most of the district's 18 schools required painting and reroofing improvements, said James E. Monroe, director of building grounds and auxiliary services.

Principals of each school submitted

Monroe. "Manufacturers no longer make the old 9-inch-square tile. In order to replace one square of old tile, we have to take out several so a 12-inch-square would fit. It's too expensive just to replace one tile."

Worn out tiles will be replaced with seamless flooring in classrooms and corridors of some schools.

In Miner School, the hot water system will be replaced at an estimated cost of $13,000. Some of the schools will get new fixtures in the wash rooms, new drapes, exhaust fans and air conditioners in offices and lounges. Girls at South School will get new locker room facilities.

A MAJOR LANDSCAPING project for Berkley and Rand Schools began this summer with grading, seeding and planting. Berkley will get additional play-ground equipment and Rand will have basketball backboards in the fall. Four baseball backstops have been purchased for the Rand-Berkley campus.

The district has also purchased tables and other furniture for kindergarten classes, audio-visual equipment, chairs, tables and desks. Allocation in the school budget for these purchases is $87,000.

Also, maintenance crews are planning to finish a two-year project of resurfacing asphalt surfaces of all the schools' play-grounds and walking areas.

WORN OUT ASPHALT tiles proved to be a problem to repair, according to

Chicago and North Western Ry. officials have established the timetable and fares for trains that will stop at the new depot at Arlington Park Race Track, scheduled to open Sept. 1.

The Arlington Park stop on the North Western's northwest line will not affect any existing arrival or departure times in Chicago or at any of the suburban stations.

One exception, train 621, which now leaves Chicago at 4:13 p.m. will be changed to a 4:10 afternoon departure.

A single round-trip ride from Arlington Park to Chicago will cost $2.20, an unlimited monthly pass will be $37.60. Monthly service from the downtown Arlington Heights depot now costs $36.20; from Palatine, $39.

Regular commuter trains are scheduled to begin stopping at Arlington Park on Saturday, Sept. 1. Most trains now running on Saturday and Sunday will stop at the new depot.

REGULAR Monday through Friday schedules will not go into effect until Tuesday, Sept. 4, the day after Labor Day.

THE RACE TRACK will make available parking for 800 cars near the new station, built by the village at a cost of $100,000.

Tom Rivera, Arlington Park's director of public relations, said the details of exit and entrance, parking fees and location have not yet been determined.

The first few days of the depot's operation may be complicated by the Future of America Fair, scheduled to run at Arlington Aug. 24 through Sept. 3.

The area around the new station will be used for exhibits and amusement rides, all of which probably will not be cleared away by Sept. 4.

Special trains for fair goers will run between Arlington Park and Chicago during the 10-day fair which promoters hope will attract half a million visitors.

RIVERA SAID he did not know whether parking would be metered, by permit, or simply collected at the race track gate. Access to the station will be at Rohrling and Wilke roads.

A three-way agreement between Arlington Heights, the railroad and the race track limits the cost of parking to the rate prevailing in the village, currently 50 cents a day.

Commuters from northern parts of Arlington Heights, Rolling Meadows, Palatine, Elk Grove, Schaumburg and Hoffman Estates are expected to take advantage of the track's easy access off of Rt. 53.

The new depot was included in the 1969 annexation agreement between the village and the race track.

Arlington Heights diving team tops in conference

The Arlington Heights diving team won first place in diving events at the Northern Illinois swimming Conference meet in Park Ridge Tuesday. Arlington defeated Northbrook's defending diving champions, 34-28.

Each of the six competing teams had two divers entered in four events. Team points were awarded according to places. Although Arlington Heights had only one first place, its overall depth enabled it to win the title.

Point-getters for the winners were: Boys 14-and-under, second place, Devin Giles (120.15 points); third, Scott McCrath; girls 14-and-under, second place, Julie Kremer (105.15); third, Tisha Fliczer (91.35); girls 15-and-over, second, Kelly Holland (140.85); third, Carol Hoffmeyer (129.35); boys 15-and-over, first, Tom Pongot (179.05); seventh, Jeff Munk (128.45).

The team, coached by Jeff Thielman, works out for 1½ hours each weekday during the summer at Olympic Park pool. Their season record is four wins and one loss. The only loss was to Northbrook, which was avenged at the conference meet.

Points scored by the diving team will be added to those for the Arlington swimmers to contribute to total points for the Northern Illinois swimming championships.

REGULAR Monday through Friday schedules will not go into effect until Tuesday, Sept. 4, the day after Labor Day.

THE RACE TRACK will make available parking for 800 cars near the new station, built by the village at a cost of $100,000.

Tom Rivera, Arlington Park's director of public relations, said the details of exit and entrance, parking fees and location have not yet been determined.

The first few days of the depot's operation may be complicated by the Future of America Fair, scheduled to run at Arlington Aug. 24 through Sept. 3.

The area around the new station will be used for exhibits and amusement rides, all of which probably will not be cleared away by Sept. 4.

Safety costs money

Apartment owners must comply with village's new housing code or risk fines

BY KURT BAER

Arlington Heights apartment owners are finding out that safety costs money. One by one, owners of apartment buildings in Arlington Heights are being told they will have to bring their buildings into compliance with the village's new housing code or risk a fine of $1,000 a day and the complete shut down of their rental business.

"We realize we're hitting some people pretty hard, especially the guy with a small, four-unit building. But we're not sitting with tunnel vision either. We realize they've got problems."

"Our main concern is to assure people living in the building the most reasonable degree of safety for their property and, most importantly, for their lives," says Daniel Tarry, village sanitarian who, with representatives of the fire department have been enforcing Arlington Heights' new housing code.

The code requires that each apartment building must pass inspection before it will be given an annual operating license.

Since February, Tarry and fire officials have inspected 25 different apartment complexes and reported 236 instances in which housing conditions do not measure up to the housing code.

MANY OF THE violations are in the realm of fire prevention, especially the fire safety regulations contained in the Life Safety Code recently adopted by the Arlington Heights village board.

"Fire has a habit of seeking the smallest holes to travel through," says Lt. Frank Woodruff of the fire department's fire prevention bureau. It is this fact that led to the Life Safety Code requirement that ceilings above boilers have a one-hour fire resistance rating, he explained.

Without a fire-resistant ceiling, flames can move quickly through wooden joists and even plumbing pipes, filling an apartment building with smoke.

But what may sound like a reasonable and prudent safety measure like a fire-resistant ceiling can wind up costing the building owner a couple thousand dollars.

"It's not easy to get a carpenter to come in, especially for an odd job like wall and ceiling work," Tarry says. The result is that the apartment owner is often given several options.

He may, for example, install the required ceiling or substitute automatic sprinklers or fire detection sensors wired to the fire department's alarm board.

The recommendations are made at the discretion of the fire prevention officer, working within the scope of the ordinance. In the cases of older apartment buildings, more than one measure may be required.

Tarry says that some apartment owners have been reluctant to make the required building improvements but so far none have elected to legally challenge the licensing code, the first of its kind in the state.

Building licenses are being used as a means of enforcing the housing code under Arlington Heights' home rule powers.

INCINERATORS that do not conform to current building and anti-pollution standards are another common violation, Tarry says.

He cited one example of an older building in which trash and garbage was being dropped directly down a chute into an incinerator which did not even approach current operating standards.

Besides the additional $3,000 to $5,000 cost of upgrading the incinerator, the building owner will have extra garbage hauling costs of $130 to $140 a month, Tarry says.

Other violations are not as costly to remedy. They include the painting of railings, balconies, doors and wood trim. The replacement of cracked or broken windows. The refitting of warped doors. And a variety of other chores most people would label as "maintenance."

"We've had some people challenge our authority to require painting, but we maintain that it's a matter of protecting the soundness of the structure. I think this is an area where this ordinance is really going to shine," Tarry says.

Both Tarry and Woodruff say they are aware the housing code is costing apartment building owners more money. But the benefits, they say, will be a cleaner, healthier and safer environment for thousands of Arlington Heights apartment residents.

"The things we are doing have been proved time and time again all across the country," Woodruff says. In some cases, part of the cost of the fire prevention improvements may be recouped.

Elk Grove protest may be futile: Walsh

by FRED GACA

Arlington Heights Village Pres. Jack Walsh yesterday said an Elk Grove Village protest against the annexation of a proposed convention site by Arlington Heights probably would make no difference in the development of the center.

Walsh said Arlington Heights is willing to work out problems resulting from the center.

The Elk Grove Village board of trustees, at Tuesday's meeting, adopted a resolution protesting the expected annexation of 65 acres of land south of the Northwest Tollway and east of Arlington Heights Road for the site of the Chicago-O'Hare Convention Center.

The resolution was a "softer" one than had been drafted for the board's consideration.

THE ORIGINAL VERSION stated, "Elk Grove Village hereby publicly objects to the Village of Arlington Heights' present disregard for useful and beneficial intergovernmental relations." By a 3-2 vote, the paragraph was deleted from the resolution sent to Arlington Heights.

Trustees Nancy Vanderweel and Ronald Chernick wanted the paragraph left in the resolution. Trustees Ted Stadler and Michael Tosto voted to have the paragraph removed. Pres. Charles Zetek broke the tie in favor of removing the statement.

Trustees Edward Kenna and George

Spees were not present at the meeting. Zetek said he opposed the statement about "useful and beneficial intergovernmental relations" because he knew of no better way to destroy relations than to criticize a government agency's actions in regard to relations with other agencies.

THE RESOLUTION states, "The Village of Elk Grove hereby expresses complete dissatisfaction with the actions of the Village of Arlington Heights in giving consideration to the annexation of any land south of the Toll Road."

The resolution urges Arlington Heights "to exercise its responsibility to foster good intergovernmental relations and to reaffirm itself to be a responsible good neighbor."

Arlington Heights will have a public hearing on Aug. 16 on the annexation.

In addition to violating the Elk Grove

Village master plan, village officials also said construction of the center at the site will force the village to supply police support and other services while the village will receive no tax revenue from the center.

If we did not adopt the resolution," said one trustee.

The site of the convention center has been considered by Elk Grove Village as part of its eventual municipal boundaries ever since a comprehensive master plan was adopted in 1968.

COPIES of the plan were submitted to Arlington Heights several years ago.

"Gentlemen's agreements" and verbal discussions between the two villages had recognized the tollway as a natural boundary between the villages, according to Elk Grove Village officials.

No written agreement, however, has ever been drawn up.

For Arlington Heights to annex the property, it will have to cross the tollway.

In addition to violating the Elk Grove

Village master plan, village officials also said construction of the center at the site will force the village to supply police support and other services while the village will receive no tax revenue from the center.

Firemen's union may be involved

A wider public works war?

The "war" raging in Hoffman Estates between Mayor Virginia Hayter and fired public works employees may have expanded to include Hoffman Estates firefighters.

The battle lines were stretched yesterday after Mayor Hayter phoned Richard Cordova, president of Local 2081 of the International Association of Firefighters.

Cordova then contacted Gilbert Cornfield, attorney for both the firefighters and the public works union, Local 2041 of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, AFL-CIO.

Though Mayor Hayter, Cordova and Cornfield agreed the conversations took place, they disagreed on details of the calls.

CORDOVA WAS reluctant to comment on any of the calls, saying "I have to analyze it." He did say Local 2081, the firemen's group, still has a no-strike provision in its constitution, and the firemen have not yet taken a position on the public works firings. He declined to say whether they would until after the men called their monthly meeting Monday.

Mrs. Hayter said she called Cordova to learn "whether or not we still had anything in common." She said she wanted "to save this whole situation, if we take over the fire district," and was concerned with the reaction of the firemen to the public works crisis.

Mrs. Hayter referred to comments attributed to Cornfield by the press alleging public employees have a right to strike.

"I said 'Dick, do you realize if Mr. Cornfield really believes in those things there can be nothing but trouble ahead for all of us. I know your concern is for the village. You must be able to make some value judgments here, you have to look at the long haul,'" said Mayor Hayter.

THE MAYOR SAID she also noted "we could do business" if the firemen's union retains its no-strike provision, and that Cornfield's statements "give one to believe he does not understand" the village's need to protect health, safety and welfare of the village. The strike violated work rules intended to ensure that protection, she said.

Mrs. Hayter also said "Mr. Cornfield called me and told me this is war."

However, Cornfield denied he made any declaration of war on the village.

Cornfield maintains he called Mrs. Hayter because of Cordova's message. "I was advised by Mr. Cordova the mayor had called him and indicated to him

she would appreciate hearing from me, but she did not feel it would be appropriate she call me," Cornfield said.

THE MAYOR "expounded on her general philosophy of running the local government," said Cornfield. She said she "felt collective bargaining can be a viable and positive force in both private and public affairs" and was sorry for the fired employees. But because of the strike she felt an "overriding responsibility to provide services" to the people of Hoffman Estates, Cornfield said.

While Mrs. Hayter said she felt "a contract could have been worked out, she doesn't like confrontation or warfare," said Cornfield. He said he responded that the village action in discharging the men after their had returned voluntarily to their jobs "creates an atmosphere of confrontation or war."

"At no time did I define the situation as war," said Cornfield, who added Mayor Hayter "said I'll see you in court" and that ended the conversation.

Omni-House fund-raising drive 'complete success'

by JEANNETTE De WYZE

Omni-House: Youth Services Bureau has declared its first year fund-raising efforts a complete success, according to director Peter Digre.

The bureau's first grant year began July 1, 1972, when Omni-House received a $131,000 grant from the Illinois Law Enforcement Commission. The bureau then committed itself to raising one third of that amount from other sources to make up the remaining funds for the year.

"Because of our extreme frugality we've been able to extend that first grant year to Oct. 1, 1973," Digre said.

THE BUREAU has now raised more than the approximately $44,000 in matching funds required for the first grant year, "so we're declaring a success now," Digre said.

In fact, Omni-House has raised around $70,000 from the community, meaning that some funds for the 1973-74 are committed already. However, Digre said further fundraising for the 1973-74 year will be postponed until Oct. 1.

"We're sort of giving the community a chance to rest. There's got to be some kind of a break or the community will get tired of our constantly harassing them for money," he said.

"Our financial development has gone much better than we expected. In fact, I'm rather awed by it," Digre said.

He said the bureau has attempted to develop a multi-source fundraising program in the past year. To date, 12 different areas of the community, including PTAs, churches, individuals, businesses, social service clubs, industry, foundations, the United Fund and local governments have contributed.

THE OMNI-HOUSE budget for the second grant year will be slightly lower than the first year's budget, Digre said. However, the Illinois Law Enforcement Commission grant for the second year will be cut in half, since the first year grant was intended primarily as seed money, he said. Consequently, a greater percentage of funds for the second year budget will have to come from the community.

Despite the lower second year budget, more money will be available for programming in the second year, according to Digre. This is because many first year expenditures, such as desks and office equipment, will be unnecessary in the second year, he said.
